MANIFESTO.

To our generous patrons and the public in general the management of this Popular Place of Amusement beg to notify that they have, at considerable expense and outlay, made a complete RENOVATION of the Auditorium of this Theatre under the experienced hands of those well-known city decorators, Messrs. SALE and DARE, having been newly painted by them from floor to roof.

Its Carpeting has also been attended to, being entirely new and of the richest designs.

FOR VENTILATION
it cannot be equalled in the whole of Australia, the roof forming one series of skylights being so arranged that when the necessity arises they can be all thrown open to the ORB of the HEAVENS.

Its LIGHTING has always been perfect, but still in this we have made several improvements, the whole now forming one of the MOST COMFORTABLE and COOLEST THEATRES in the CITY for an enjoyable evening.

Hoping you will extend to us the same generous support in our future endeavours as you have done in the past.

THE CHURCH SOCIETY FOR THE DIOCESE OF SYDNEY.
ADVENT SEASON 1888.
TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Committee of the Church Society are compelled, with regret, to place the following figures and facts before you:—

1. The Receipts of the Society for the current year, to the 15th November, compared with those during the corresponding period last year, show a decrease of £715 19s 1d.
2. Owing to the decrease in the Income, the Committee have been compelled this year, to decline to consider—almost without exception—applications for grants towards Church Buildings.
3. As the income for the current year—estimated at £6000—has been wholly anticipated in grants towards the objects of the Society, should the income not be received in other words, if the deficit is not made good before the year closes, the Society will be involved in debt, and the Committee may be compelled to reduce considerably the grants for the ensuing year.

The Committee confidently appeal to you to assist by a
in the effort now being made to extinguish the deficit. Should you be prevented from making your offering in Church this Advent Season, it will be thankfully acknowledged if remitted direct to the Secretaries, The Chapter House.

COOK WARD ELECTION.
ALDERMAN A. J. RILEY
begs respectfully to announce that he is a CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

TO THE RATEPAYERS OF COOK WARD.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

The period for which you elected me to represent you in the Municipal Council of the City of Sydney, will expire on 30th instant, and I beg respectfully to inform you that I am a candidate for re election.

When seeking election on the last occasion, I promised that I would endeavour to have the following important matters affecting your health and property attended to, with the least possible delay:—Improved Sewerage, Better Roads and Lanes, The Parks Improved, The City Finances inquired into, The Householders to be entitled to vote, and that Cook Ward should have a fair share of the City Expenditure.

Well, what has been done since then? Upwards of £13,000 has been expended by the Corporation on sewers, doing away with some thousand of cesspits, and pools of filthy water lying in the gutters, with the result that there is now hardly a house in the Ward not connected with the main sewerage system; transforming such plague spots as that adjacent to Baptist's gardens and Park-road into healthy localities. Crown-street has been wood-paved, and all the crossings cube setted; Dowling-street, Park-road, and half of Elizabeth-street re-made; nearly all the other main streets put in better order than they have ever been before. Likewise, the various streets and lanes have had especial care, and the footpaths attended to. Moore Park has been made more attractive, and conveniences erected.

Regarding finances. Very soon after my election I had a special committee of the Council appointed to inquire into the system of keeping the Corporation accounts. During the progress of this committee's investigations the celebrated Bradford frauds were brought to light, and, at my suggestion, many improvements have been made to protect the city funds from fraud.

With respect to householders having a vote—The first resolution I moved on taking my seat in the Council was in favour of applying to Parliament for power to give all householders this right, and I supported the bill in my place in the House.

As for Cook Ward having a fair share of expenditure, I need only call attention to the state of the Ward, and, to the fact, that on roadways alone (not including Crown-street), upwards of £16,000 has been expended during the past two years and nine months.

I believe I am one of the most regular attendants in my place in the Council, and have always given prompt attention to any matter brought under my notice. If honoured with your confidence again, I will, with the always ready assistance of my colleagues, endeavour to still further study your interests, and that of the citizens generally.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
A. J. RILEY.

MR. GEORGE CHRISTIE for CITY AUDITOR.
To the Citizens of Sydney.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In view of the election on 1st December next, and at the close of my second year of office, I beg to announce myself a candidate for re-election as one of the City Auditors.

The conscientious performance of the duties of the office involved many weeks labour to myself and colleague (Mr. James Carroll), and necessitated the bringing under notice of the Mayor and Aldermen the incompleteness in the system of accounts and the loss of revenue from various causes. As many of our letters and also our final report have appeared in the daily newspapers, it may not be necessary to enter into details.

I am favoured by being nominated by the Hon. John Sutherland, John R. Street, Esq., M.L.A., East Sydney, and other leading citizens, with whom I solicit a continuance of your kind confidence.

I remain, Ladies and Gentlemen,
Yours truly,
GEO. CHRISTIE,
Public Accountant.

An inspector will call once a month to read the meter and see to the abovementioned objects. Should there be any need for further attention, or subscribers be dissatisfied with work of inspector, notice should be immediately given to the management at head office. Subscribers are requested to give notice of change of address. The annual subscription (where one meter is used) is £1 for all meters not exceeding 20 lights, payable in advance; 35s where two meters are in use on the same premises. An arrangement can be made where there are a number of meters, also as to meters over 20 lights. All communications must be addressed to W. H. Shand, Manager. Office hours, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

IN HALF THE AFFAIRS
Of this busy life
Our troubles come
From trying to put
On the right hand foot.

THAT this is where the shoe pinches there can be no doubt, for if a BIG TOE is put where a little toe ought to be there will be too much room for the one and not enough for the other. And this is so in other matters in which the feet are not involved, but where the understanding is materially affected. Indeed, they crop up in every turn and twist in the paths of life.

WHEN a boy who is cut out for a carpenter and is ever sighing for chisels and screwdrivers, who from his infancy has seized every chance of knocking in nails and screwing up doors, is apprenticed to a chemist, or when a youth of a mechanical turn of mind is put to drive a quill in the Custom-house, stand sentry over piles of useless official minutes in the Lands Department, or is relegated to some occupation about which he knows nothing, and for which he cares less, no good results are likely to follow. In the first case there are such contingencies as mistaking oxalic acid for Epsom salts, and there are such things as coroners' inquests and awkward verdicts, periods of incarceration and short rations, consisting chiefly of skilly and stale bread, while in the supposed case cited no satisfaction will accrue to either party to the contract.

There are so many things that work out this way that it is not difficult to choose a few examples.

A MISFIT in a suit of clothes; a wrong colour in the ribbon of a bonnet; too much length in the skirt of a dress, or too little in the body of a mantle, make all the difference in the world, upset the best tempers, cause the most amiable men to swear at their wives, and the most adorable women to feel as if they could brain their own offspring; in fact such occurrences are but instances of the evils which arise from

ON THE RIGHT-HAND FOOT.

THE PALACE EMPORIUM, HAYMARKET, presents to the public eye a kind of refuge for all who have suffered from the ills which come from misfits, mistakes, misunderstandings, misdoings, misadventures, misconceptions, misapprehensions, miscalculations, or evils and botherations of similar character. At this

no one is disappointed, whether they be small buyers or large, or whether they require

Covering for the
THE OUTER CRUST, or Lining for
THE INNER MAN.

LADIES who wish to be fashionably dressed, and who at the same time desire to be economical, will find every fancy met, and GENTLEMEN whose predilection is in favour of a STYLISH APPEARANCE at a Low Cost, are not slow in discovering that are to be had for next to nothing. HATS of elegant cant, and BOOTS of the true masher breed, at prices so ridiculously low that a belief in their reality is often difficult. Likewise of every class come to the same wonderful Store for similar reasons, based upon the necessity for economy in the family expenditure. Such folks soon find out the goodness of the place, and with that natural 'cuteness with which all Sydneyites are endowed, soon nose out

FAMILY PEOPLE

ABSOLUTE SATISFACTION resulting from
CLOSER ACQUAINTANCE.

SINCE OPENING
GROCERY DEPARTMENT

more and more evidence of this comes to hand, day by day, and by the way orders come in, and by the thousands in which buyers visit the new branch, it might it well be thought that

ANTHONY HORDERN and SONS
GROCERS
all their days
instead of for
SOMETHING LESS THAN A WEEK.

ENGLISH GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.

Bright, pleasant, cool autumnal weather. One must be forgiven for writing about it because of the bad, wet, miserable season that has passed. There has hardly ever in our history been anything so unpropitious for everything as this year's so-called summer. And, as if to carry out the disabilities of the weather from an agricultural point of view, no sooner did the time arrive for the closing days of the harvest than winter fell, white and sere, upon the half-ripened corn. In many districts last week, corn, both standing and cut, was covered with snow. This week, near London, I have seen fruit which should have been ripe a month ago, still upon the trees ungathered and still unripe. The hay harvest was a dire failure, and the corn crops must be lamentably below the average. I am not an agriculturist, but the only consolation of the time seems to me to lie in the splendid condition of the pastures. The country looks rich and green everywhere. There has not been a day when the grasslands have not presented the appearance of fatness and depth of colour, with plenty of green meat for stock. The trees, too, are still full of green leaf. Only here and there are to be seen the first tints of autumn. The London parks are a picture of lovely foliage and flowers.

The fine weather has come simultaneously, it seems, all over Europe. Paris is gay and bright with autumn sunshine. The Parisian journalists are rejoicing over it, and telling their readers of the fogs that come to London with the first frosts of the changing year. This is true as a rule. When the weather is calm and frosty, and the skies should be clear and far away in their depth of blue, the London smoke intervenes and we have fogs. But so far this year we have the delicious autumn weather of the country 20 miles from town. There is a society whose object is to get London to consume its own smoke or use smokeless coal. If this could be accomplished London would be one of the most delightful cities in the world. And supposing we began with an enactment compelling the builder of every new house to put in smoke-consuming grates a fair start for the millenium of blue skies would be made, for we add to London every year what would be regarded on the continent as a new town, and that of no small dimensions.

It is this vastness of the metropolis that foreign critics as well as we ourselves forget when the police are rebuked for not discovering at once perpetrators of crimes which disgrace us and the century. The mysteries of London increase all the time, and one of the greatest of her mysteries would seem to be how some six millions of people are not only fed every day but with the utmost punctuality, and not only with ordinary food but with every luxury. There is no city where the traffic of the streets is so well disciplined, no city where there is so little friction in the matter of locomotion. That we have great and exceptional crimes is not surprising, because we have a great and exceptional population, made up of peoples of all nations and all crimes; a population that is shifting and on the move all the time; a population that comes and goes in ships from and to all the ends of the earth; a population that enjoys the most perfect freedom; nowhere under the sun outside the colonies is there so much personal liberty; nowhere has the police so little power and so few privileges in the work of hunting down criminals. Lord Mayor de Kaiser paid himself and London a poor compliment when he told Brussels one day this week that "London is the cesspool of Europe." Lord Mayor de Kaiser is a native of Belgium. He is the owner of a large hotel in London. For many years he had been a useful and popular member of the Corporation, and last year the civic fathers once more showed how far they are above mere race or local prejudice by electing him Lord Mayor. This week he has been to Belgium, on an official visit to his native city, where he has been indiscreet enough to inform his friends that although he had offered a reward of £500 for the detection of the Whitechapel murderer, he agreed with the Home Secretary that rewards of this kind were not wise nor politic. But he had offered the reward because the public wished it. Then he went on to say that "London is the cesspool of Europe," meaning that it harbours villains of all countries. It must have struck some of his lordship's friends in Brussels that after all it is not a very great honour to be mayor of a city which is "the cesspool of Europe." I am inclined to think that the Lord Mayor will hear of this unfortunate phrase again before the waning days of his official life are ended. He has not been a particularly popular or successful Lord Mayor, and he might have gone out of office with a more savoury and gracious saying upon his official lips than that which has accentuated his visit to Brussels.

To-day's mail from the Congo is expected to bring important news. Its intelligence is more or less anticipated by the Daily Telegraph, which, referring to the articles in the Illustrated London News (more particularly to one which appears in to-day's number) says that Major Barttelot was a threatened man before he began his onward march, and that Tippoo Tib was responsible for the delay in providing the necessary men for the advance. I can more or less bear this out from reliable information. Major Barttelot was a gallant and brave officer; but his excessive discipline will turn out to have been the cause of his death. He conducted the command of his camp as he might have done a camp of highly trained English soldiers. He punished his black followers for trifling faults, he treated the Arabs with a severe strictness of routine, he did not take his fellow-officers into his confidence; and he was shot no doubt on the march by a mutinous camp, and probably by arrangement before he went forward. Poor Jameson died of fever, brought on by anxiety. He was an amiable, clever, young man, son of one of the great whisky distillers, and, as I have previously stated, he contributed £5000 towards the expenses of the expedition. Of the men left behind on the Aruwimi by Stanley, there are only now left Mr. Bonny and Mr. Ward. Nothing has been heard of Bonny for some little time, and a traveller fresh from the Congo, with whom I had a conversation yesterday, tells me he would not be surprised if Bonny is dead. Ward has gone back to Bangala, but is not likely to be instructed to form any further expedition; indeed, it is probable he will be ordered home. He is a very plucky young fellow, and I would not be surprised if he did something in the way of following Stanley on his own account, though such a step would be rash in the extreme. My informant is of opinion that Stanley is alive, and that he will achieve the object of his expedition. It must not be forgotten that Stanley has a good force of men with him, including more or less trained Soudanese soldiers, several white men, and a fine Maxim gun. On the other hand, he had before him when he started from his camp on the Aruwimi an unknown country, as full of natural difficulties as it might be of hostile natives. It is certain that in some portions of it he would have literally to cut his way through the bush, and accompanied by an army of carriers, this would mean very slow progress indeed. The hope that Stanley is alive rests, however, chiefly in the fact that we have no reliable news of his death. Had Stanley lost his life, it is thought by both travellers and soldiers who know Africa that we should have been sure to have had the news. So great a disaster to the white man would have travelled with tremendous rapidity even through the heart of Africa.

On the day after to-morrow, which is Sunday, there will be published by Sampson Low and Company a remarkable book, namely, Sir Morell Mackenzie's account of his doings in Berlin. The volume will not be issued until Monday, but it is practically published on Sunday, because on that day it is to be issued to the Press. Sir Morell Mackenzie gets £1600 for his little book from Messrs. Sampson, Low, and Co., and they have made arrangements with the Press in the direction suggested which probably covers their first outlay. The book will be a mistake so far as Sir Morell is concerned. He was badly treated, no doubt, by some of the German doctors; they were terribly jealous of him, which was natural; there was a cabal against him; Mr. Low, of the London Times, worried and harassed him as much as did his German enemies; he had to combat with great social and political difficulties as well as with the disease that was sapping away the Imperial life; but he had the satisfaction of knowing he had the confidence of the Imperial family, and this should have been enough, followed as it was by touching evidence of the continuation of this respect and confidence even after the Emperor's death. Sir Morell Mackenzie is not popular among his fellow-professionals at home, and there are official honours in London which he has never been able to win; his book will therefore not only be a mark for withering replies in Germany, but it will set going criticisms in London which will tend to increase the excitement of mind under which Sir Morell I am told has for a long time been labouring. Sir Morell is much liked in artistic society, where he and his family have always been prominent figures; he has social, pleasant, and conciliatory manners. During the London season his wife has for years past given some of the most delightfully mixed receptions in town; and during the later summer and early autumn, when the tents of Mayfair are closed, the Mackenzies live on the Upper Thames, and many water parties are made up there, and the charming hostess entertains in a right royal style. Sir Morell at the present moment is in retirement, seeking rest, which he much needs. It is to be hoped that any hostile reviews of his book will be kept from him for a time. He is pugnacious, and it is to be feared that he may think himself called upon to answer his enemies in the Press as well as in his book. During the next few weeks no volume will be so extensively criticised as the work which is to be issued to the press the day after to-morrow, at 4 o'clock.

The amusements of the town are not very notable. "The Armada," at Drury Lane, is the one great show of the time, and it is undoubtedly one of the most interesting and impressive things ever seen in the way of spectacular drama. It is drawing phenomenal houses. Mr. Augustus Harris, despite his enormous expenses, will make a fortune out of it. So great is its success that he has resolved to take another theatre for his Christmas pantomime, so as not to interfere with a run which promises, so far as profits are concerned, to be unprecedented. Mr. Mansfield, at the Lyceum, has produced "A Parisian Romance," which was his greatest card in America, but it is not liked here. The histrionic ability discovered in Mansfield's acting is acknowledged, but the play leaves a very unpleasant flavour in the mouth after it is over; the subject is painful and disagreeable, and the London public will, I fear, not go in great numbers to see it. On this day week Mr. Mansfield will produce what, had he been wise, he would have played at the outset—one of his light and merry pieces. It is called "Prince Karl," and in this bit of comedy he is a bright gay officer of Hussars, and sings several songs. Mansfield is "capital fun" in a drawing-room, has many of the gifts of such men as Grossmith and Corney Grain, and if these are demonstrated as I believe they will be in "Prince Karl," Mansfield will at the end of his stay here have "a good time." Of course as an ambitious artist he would rather have made a hit as Hyde and Jekyll, or as the baron in "A Parisian Romance"—which, indeed, he has done artistically—but an actor, like every other artist, must give the public what they want if he has to live by their patronage. Mr. Willard has added to his reputation as an actor in "The Monk's Room," at the Globe; but the play is not likely to run, although its excellent cast includes Vezin and Alma Murray. "Captain Swift" continues to do well at The Prince's and "Sweet Lavender" maintains its popularity at the Strand. Mr. Irving has replied to the Universal Review. This ostentatious but lively monthly published an article by Mr. Moore (who aspires to be "the English Zola"), attacking actors and the stage, sneering more particularly at players as men who are not entitled to be regarded "as artists, and who are only worthy of being treated as mere mummers," and should have no right to be considered as men of mark and position, but who ought to be relegated back to the position they had (or the position they had not) when they were treated as vagabonds by the law. The article is called "Mummer Worship," and is written with a vulgar disregard of distinction and fame of the great lights of the stage past and present. Mr. Irving is a master of polished invective and satire, and may well be left to take care of himself and the profession to which he belongs. He does not, in a remarkable speech made at the Pen and Pencil Club in Edinburgh, mention the name of the writer of the article, and intimates that he would not have considered the subject worthy of mention had "Mummer Worship" not appeared in a periodical of something like artistic status. Mr. Irving's great success on tour continues, though some of his critics point out that Faust as a play loses by the present Margaret. While Miss Ellen Terry is resting, Marion Terry, her sister, is playing the Gretchen. It is no easy matter following Ellen Terry in any character, but her Margaret is particular popularly with playgoers. If it is not the Margaret of Goethe it is a wonderfully sweet sympathetic and womanly heroine, and that goes a long way towards making the tragic story go straight home to the hearts of audiences who otherwise are flung back mainly upon their imagination.

PARISIAN GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Oct. 12.

President Carnot's tour through Burgundy has called forth even more enthusiastic expressions of confidence and welcome than those which had preceded it. Flowers, delegations, speeches, lunches, dinners, and receptions, with illuminations whenever the weather has permitted this winding-up of a Presidential passage, have been at fever heat all along the line. The President has responded to these demonstrations (which he always sets down, in his utterances, to the devotion of the region to the Republic) by liberal donations to local institutions, the promise to "consult with my Ministers" in regard to the various demands impressed upon his notice as necessary to the local well-being, by an occasional lunch offered to the notabilities, and by an endurance of hand-shaking that must have kept his hand in the same state of pain so feelingly complained of by the Presidents of the "Great Republic of the West." M. Carnot has conscientiously expended, in his succession of tours, every sou of the allowance he received for "travelling expenses," just as he expends on other departments of his Presidential office the whole of the allowance he receives under the head of each.

The main event of the last week has been the issue, by M. Carnot, of a "decree" calling upon all foreigners resident in France to furnish a list of details concerning their age, place of birth, parentage, number of children, if they have any, and various other particulars, to the Prefect of the department in which they reside; each list to be furnished within one month, or the party that has failed to do so to be summoned before the correctional police, fined, and sent out of the country, if the sentence should take that form. The sudden issue of this decree has caused as much surprise as annoyance to the foreign residents, and is blamed by the general public as uncalled for, ungracious, and specially ill-timed when France is inviting "all the world and his wife" to come to Paris and glorify the Exhibition of which the preparatory labours are being pushed forward with so lavish an outlay of skill, hard work, and money. Already the Government has had to explain that [illegible] visitors, comers [illegible] action of this decree, which is now declared to apply exclusively to foreigners who have established, or propose to establish, a permanent residence in France. Several thousands of foreigners in this city have hastened to present themselves at the Prefecture, where their addresses to the prescribed inquiry were entered in a register, and a sort of receipt for the same given to each. But a much larger number, having to send to distant countries for the vouchers required, are unable to present themselves at once, and the delay granted for fulfilling this new requirement will have to be extended. It is, moreover, doubtful whether the President has the legal right to issue a decree so intimately concerning the subjects of other Powers. His right to do so will probably be challenged as soon as the Chamber resumes its sittings; and, if the opinion of that body is in favour of such action concerning the foreigners, a bill to that effect will be submitted to the House, whose vote will endorse, or nullify, the arrangement. It appears that the project of compelling foreign residents to furnish particulars concerning themselves, their identity, families, and doings, has been privately exercising the minds of the people in power for three years past, but without their being able to come to any practical decision. It is more than probable that the true motive of the movement is the desire to facilitate the imposition on foreign residents of a special tax under the heading of a "permission of sojourn."

While the native-born population of France is steadily diminishing, the number of foreign residents has trebled during the last 30 years, and has now reached the not very formidable number of 1,100,000 souls, of whom only one quarter have been born in this country and less than one-eleventh have been naturalised. By far the greater portion of these foreign residents are from Belgium, which has furnished 500,000 of them, while Italy has 250,000 of her children established here, Germany 100,000, Switzerland, Spain, and Portugal 80,000 a-piece, the United Kingdom less than 40,000, and the American Continent a trifle over 10,000, of whom 7000 are living in or near this capital. The enormous increase of public expenditure in France under the Republic, and the disquieting fact that its debt of £200,000,000 sterling is being largely added to every day—the outlay of the present Administration always exceeding its income—the idea of a capitation-tax to be levied on foreigners has been taking hold of many of the minds in search of means of increasing the latter instead of diminishing the former.

As for the forthcoming Exhibition, to whose programme new sections and wonders are added daily—though it is already evident that no mortal visitor will be able to make acquaintance with one half of the marvels it will contain—the buildings now filling the Champ de Mars and all the previously open spaces near it, on both sides of the river, are rapidly approaching completion. Walls may be said to be already built—roofs are about to cover the spaces limited by the walls. There is as complete a certainty as can be predicted of any earthly affair that the whole will be ready before the time appointed, new demands for space are coming in constantly—Roumania being the latest to adhere to the proposed tournament. Any country whose exhibitors should delay the carrying on of their preparations will be promptly excluded from the show, and its space transferred to another. The Spanish exhibitors proving slack in their operations, the managing committee has just informed them, through their Minister here, that, if they have not accomplished certain preparations by a certain date, the space accorded to Spain will be given to another country; in other words, that Spain will be excluded from the coming competition.

As for the promised wonders in the way of novelties, every day adds to the somewhat disquieting length of the list. The latest of these glimpses is that of a steam-engine, which all possessors of sewing machines and other labour-saving mechanism for use in the domestic circle will probably hasten to purchase. This little wonder is the invention of a watchmaker, whose mechanical skill is directed by the tasteful combination of artistic elegance and neatness of form with the perfection of strength and ease of working. It claims to be the smallest piece of mechanism in existence, as it weighs only three grammes, is one centimetre and a half in height, though composed of 780 metallic elements. Its construction has taken two years. It works perfectly, and a few drops of water suffice to set this liliputian motor in movement. Concerning that other mechanical marvel, the "Kelly motor," described in a former letter as offered to the contemplation of M. Chevreul on his 103rd birthday, and which is to be one of the features of next year's show, the learned and the mechanical worlds are unable to come to an opinion concerning it. The fact that the reality of its action is vouched for by the principal scientific and mechanical authorities of the United States alone prevents it from being set down as "humbug;" but the fact that is thus vouched for compels a suspension of judgment in regard to it. As the world is to see it at work next year, it will then be possible to judge of the belief to be accorded to the enormous claims of its friends, who regard it as destined to revolutionise human labour, as well as human ideas in various departments of thought, though it is not expected that Mr. Kelly will consent to reveal his great secret—that is to say, his method of setting his machine going.

The acceptors of Volapük are much grieved by the sudden decease of the inventor of what they believe to be destined to become the complement of all existing languages, enabling everyone to converse and communicate with everybody else. The enthusiast who had just devoted 20 years to the combination of the rules which are to preside at the formation of a universal language and the forming of the words which are to furnish its roots—Dr. Schleyer—has just died at Constance, after a long life consecrated to the study of dead and living tongues, with a view to the formation of one that should become the language of all. The International Congress of Volapukists held last year at Munich under the presidency of Dr. Schleyer showed that Volapuk, contrary to the general belief, had gained a foothold in every country of the planet, several thousands of its votaries being present from every quarter of the globe. A new congress was fixed to be held in Paris in 1889 under the auspices of the learned doctor. The general direction of the Volapukist propaganda, with the dissemination of its dictionary and grammar, has now passed into the hands of the late inventor's enthusiastic disciple and co-worker, M. Kerkhoffs, descendant of an old noble family of Holland, and professor of languages at the High School of Commerce of this city, and author of the dictionary and grammar of French and Volapuk. M. Kerkhoffs is also the author of "Cryptographie," a treatise which, published under the auspices of the Minister of War, has revolutionised the system of correspondence in cypher to be employed in time of war. The friends of Volapuk state that the application of its system to any language can be made, without preparatory study, by the most unlettered in the course of a week, at the end of which period the student of the new tongue would be able to converse fluently with Russian, Danish, German, and Spanish Volapukists—in fact, with the latter, whatever their nationality.

While Dr. Schleyer and his followers have thus been inventing a new language, another party has invented an alphabet of precious stones, for the incrusting of sentiment in jewellery. To this end the stones so generally envied by the superior sex are thus arranged: Amethyst, beryl, chrysoberyl, diamond, emerald, feldspar, garnet, hyacinth, idocrase, kyanite, lynx-sapphire, milk-opal, natrolite, opal, pyrope, quartz, ruby, sapphire, topaz, uranite, vesuvianite (a species of garnet), water sapphire, xanthite, zircon (a Cingalese stone).

The sudden cold will probably bring many families back from watering-places to Paris, where a gay season is to be organised by the leaders of fashion, despite the expectation of a very cold winter—the frost of three nights ago having split the handsome marble fountain in the inner court of the Palace des Beaux-Arts of this city. The descent of snow on vineyards and cornfields—where the crops are still awaiting the harvesters, but levelled with the ground, and, in many regions, completely lost—has destroyed the last hope of an average yield of wine and wheat, to the despair of the populations depending for the means of existence on those crops. Some regions only have good harvests; but the general yield is deficient in quantity, and poor in quality.

The present season is not only [illegible] the shape of the amount of [illegible] crimes is unusually large. An floods [illegible] to be made to reduce the number of attempt [illegible] at the terribly dangerous crossing of the Rue Montmartre and the Boulevard, known for some years past as "The Crossing of Crushings," by the erection of a couple of iron bridges for the use of foot-passengers who will cross thereon, from side to side of these dangerously crowded thoroughfares, above the unbroken streams of vehicles, instead of risking their limbs and life by threading their anxious way between horses' heads and wheels running in every direction. A wealthy Parisian lady, who was crushed at this crossing some years ago, was just able, before she succumbed to the injuries thus inflicted, to add a clause to her will bequeathing the sum of £4000 to the city of Paris, on condition of its being employed in the construction of "passerelles" at the dangerous points. The floating idea of an underground railway, alternately accepted and rejected during several years past, having been shelved for the present, the municipal council, finding that it cannot contrive to obtain possession of this bequest without applying it according to the will of the testatrix, has just determined to begin the much-needed erection of elevated street-crossings, by putting up the crossings alluded to above, and these will be paid for from the benevolent bequest.

The American colony here is in high feather, consequent on the fact that three "American girls" have taken matrimonial possession of the Dukes of Norfolk, Marlborough, and Newcastle, and that the Duke of Portland's engagement to another daughter of the Great Republic is expected to be announced before long. In expectation of the splendid outfits that will be called into existence in honour of these aristocratic alliances, intense relief has been felt through the speedy extinction of the outbreak of fire that occurred a few days ago, in the premises of Mr. Worth, in the Rue de la Paix, happily, without any serious injury being inflicted on the exquisite "creations" of the great English ruler of the feminine toilette.

THE LULL IN EUROPE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Oct. 12.

We are still sailing on uneasily through these halcyon days—uneasily not because there is any prospect of disturbance, but because every country in Europe is as keenly alive as ever to the needs of its army and navy, and listens with a playful smile to the foolish talk about disarmament which is heard ever and anon. There could be no surer measure of the scent of dangers to come than the unrelenting steadiness with which each Power builds up and maintains its public armed forces, and the closeness with which all the political moves are watched by the bourses and the politicians. The reason is that everybody knows that not one single cause of public peril has been removed, and that the Triple League is the sole safeguard of the peace which all affect to desire, and nearly all are labouring heartily to make impregnable. Not one of the Powers could dissipate perils which are in the nature of things, and the best disposed among them can do no more than hold on like grim death to the alliance which counteracts the would-be disturbers, and at the same time stand prepared for any emergency. This time last year it was otherwise. The peril was greater because the preparation was less, and it was the need for meeting the peril which brought about the accession of Italy to the dual alliance of Germany and Austria, and paved the way for the strong measures which, in the following spring, reinforced so largely the German army. In those anxious months the reigning Emperor was too old, and the Crown Prince, smitten with a mortal illness, was too infirm to command the army. The real reason why the danger seemed so great—and was so great—was that the war in rigueurs in France and Russia speculated on the age of one Emperor and the fatal malady of his heir. They were frustrated, partly by the energetic action of Prince Bismarck, but most by the course of events. President Grévy was hoisted out of his chair to make way for a war president, but good sense prevailed in Paris, and even that clever plot failed. The letters about Bulgarian affairs were forged in vain, for Prince Bismarck proved their base character; William I. did not die; the Triple League was formed, and the military strength of Germany was reinforced by a quarter of a million of men. The strain on the public mind, as you know, lasted to the summer, and there were moments when the greatest anxiety prevailed; but as soon as a young and vigorous Emperor was on the throne the tension ceased, for everyone knew that, if necessary, he would mount his horse and take to the field like his grandfather in his prime, and that there would be neither shilly-shallying nor the want of a commander-in-chief who could, and would, give an order none would disobey. The change came like magic; but it will endure only so long as the disturbing Powers—the Powers who want something—see no opportunity of satisfying their ambitions and passions.

On the side of the Allies, all whose best interests are centred in keeping the peace, there is, of course, no cessation of vigilance and effort. From this standpoint we must look at the travels of the German Emperor. He is not merely a young man who wishes to see his neighbours, he is the strongest member of a great confederacy bent on knowing his possible opponents as well as actual allies, and, above all, of cementing the alliance and drawing from it the largest result of power to keep the peace, or, in case of need, to wage war. The visit to Peterhof was gratifying to the Czar, who hates war and troublesome quarrels, but it did not, and could not, produce any permanent effect on the war party, which intrigue or accident might at any moment make more powerful than Alexander III. There are already pretty strong symptoms that the effects of the Peterhof visit are wearing off in Russia, and that the Moscow party is once more at work. Before the winter is over we may see more distinct signs of animosity to Austria, distrust of Germany, and a well-affected bias towards France. The march of things in the East cannot but be displeasing to Russia, and Germany does nothing to give them another direction. Roumania is fortifying such positions as she thinks will enable her to be neutral and bar the land route from Russia to Bulgaria. Queen Nathalie has not been able to plant herself as a Russian garrison in petticoats in Belgrade, the part she desires to play, as a loyal Russian. Prince Ferdinand has not been shaken, or protocolled, out of his throne, and every hour of quiet seems to consolidate Bulgaria. German influence cannot be ousted out of Constantinople. But the fact which gives Russia the most concern, and affords a plausible test to the war party, is the striking innovation on established practice which occurred when the Emperor William was at Vienna. He had gone thither through Stutgardt and Munich, rousing the enthusiasm of the South Germans, whose troops, by the way, are more formidable than they were in 1870; and he brought with him to Vienna the whole weight of his empire. At the great banquet on the occasion, after each had drunk to the health of the other in very strong terms, the Austrian Emperor rose again, and astonished the splendid company by toasting the German army as "the most brilliant incorporation of all military virtues," to which with "trumpet clearness" of voice William II. shouted in reply, "Long live our comrades of the Austro-Hungarian Army," clenched with cries of the hip, hip, hurrah species from the Imperial lips. The incident was of the startling order, and simple though it looks—nothing more than two allied commanders toasting their own armies—it takes rank as a political fact of the first class, since, in the eyes of politicians, as well as soldiers, it makes those armies one. You can easily imagine how this fresh and unwonted demonstration of comradeship in the presence of danger from Russian and Gallic neighbours, made a deep impression at St. Petersburgh and Paris. An impression that the alliance meant business always prevailed, but the need for deepening it must have been great when these fiery toasts were shouted out before all the world. The fact implies that the Russian war-party is even stronger than was supposed, and that the dangers to be warded off are more redoutable than many imagined.

The visit of William II. to Rome, which is going on while I write, belongs to the same category of facts. It completes the process of fusing the Alliance, and is most distasteful to the French. The electric wire will have told you, before this letter arrives, whether anything of an unusual nature had occurred at Rome; but I may say that the visit of the German Emperor to the King of Italy, in his capital, for that is [illegible] are is in itself a very considerable [illegible] they think their prone to follow th[illegible] folks, but they are deeply own [illegible] and their pride is soothed, as well as gratified, by the sojourn of the German Chief in the palace of King Humbert—a German, who comes to Rome, not as a conqueror, but as a powerful ally. The kingdom of Italy is much strengthened by this visit, which brings the King, as well as the nation, on to a visible sentimental and political equality with other rulers and states. Thirty-two years ago, Cavour, as the Minister of Sardinia, sat in a European Congress to settle terms of peace. Within a few years there arose a Kingdom of Italy, "one and indivisible," and in less than 10 years the national flag floated over Rome. The visit of the Emperor William is a direct consequence of the policy which sent Cavour to Paris in 1856, a policy which brought in its train "unity from the Alps to the Adriatic," in a sense far different from that intended by Louis Napoleon when he put the phrase in his proclamations, and has led to the great alliance of peace, and the roar of acclamation which saluted the successor of Barbarossa as he drove to the Quirinal through the streets of Imperial Rome. The call on the Pope, by a diplomatic fiction, is made to start from the German Embassy to the Vatican, and not from the Quirinal, an arrangement which satisfies everybody, and shows that his Holiness Leo XIII. has no wish whatever to pose as an irreconcilable. That visit also, from a political point of view, is a considerable fact, and will help in many ways to improve the internal condition of the German Empire, although it can hardly do anything towards modifying the peculiar relations between the Pope and the Italian Government, which the French, who persecute Catholics at home, do all they can to embitter.

Much in the near future will depend upon the march of events in France. The Government there is engaged in a severe contest with the combined host of Boulanger, the Comte de Paris, and the Bonapartists. The coming year, if not the next few months, will indicate, perhaps, which side will win, and whether there will be order or confusion. But the point to notice, so far as the general peace is concerned, is that Russia will never enter into any engagements with France until her fears of revolution are dispelled, and something like a strong settled executive is established. At the same time, were France involved in war, Russia might, and probably would, move in the East to gain her cherished ends. There seems to me one thing which, whatever Government was in office at Paris, might stir national passions and bring on war. I have referred before to the Luxemburg problem. It may come up for solution earlier than some suppose, for the King of Holland is not in a good state of health. Now, if he were to die, his successor in the Duchy would not be his daughter, but that Duke of Nassau who incurred disgrace in 1866 by violent opposition to Prussia. What I want to notice is that he has been forgiven, and has accepted the grace. When the Emperor William was visiting his relatives, the rulers of Baden, the other day, the Duke of Nassau called on the Emperor, and that interview may mean a great deal. For, suppose on acceding to the headship of the Duchy, he wished to join the German Empire, and bring Luxemburg within its ring-fence? Suppose, further, that he were welcomed—as he would be—how would the French take the addition of the Duchy and fortress, or site of the fortress, to the Empire which possesses Metz, its near neighbour? Could they bear the acquisition, and if they could not, what more likely than war. The interview between the Duke and the Emperor on the island of Meinau, Lake of Constance, has passed without comment; but you will see what a direct bearing it has on the future of Luxemburg, and what an indirect yet suggestive relation to the question of peace or war. Remember that the Allies are bound to resist "attacks"—an elastic term. If the French did not give way to resentment and attack there would be no war; if they did, the operative force of the treaty would come into play all round, and that might furnish Russia with an opportunity of trying to satisfy her longings in Bulgaria and the Straits. At any rate, Luxemburg looks very much as if it might prove to be an impediment in the path of continued peace.

I say nothing about the publication of the late Emperor Frederick's diaries, of which you will have had enough, because the matters directly involved are more German than European. It is part of the attack on Prince Bismarck, begun a year ago, and is made in the interests of responsible Parliamentary Government, and of the so-called "particularists," who still survive. Prince Bismarck is prompt to recognise and close with his foes, and the way in which he has taken up the matter reveals the light in which he regards it. Confusion in Germany, which is not likely, would disastrously interfere with peace, and in that light we might look on the dispute and scandal as having an indirect bearing on the European question at large. At present, however, the stroke at the Chancellor, dealt by somebody, has failed utterly, although it may give a good deal of trouble in the Parliament.

THE MAGAZINES FOR OCTOBER.

SECOND NOTICE.

To the Fortnightly Review Dr. Savage contributes a somewhat repellent article on "Homicidal Mania," which derives its chief interest from the horrible murders which have been committed at the East End of London. Dr. Savage gives from his own experience a number of painful instances of particular forms of monomania, showing how people externally sane and self-controlled have become possessed of an inordinate desire to kill. These people will often make victims of those dearest to them—a husband of his wife, a mother of her children. Frequently they are under some overpowering delusion of a plot against their lives, and in this case the doctor is as often as not the supposed enemy whom they mark out for attack. Epileptic patients, when they commit crimes, do so without realising the iniquity of the act, or making any attempt to avoid the consequences. When there is a succession of deliberate outrages on a special class of people, under circumstances showing that the criminal has taken precaution to avoid detection, the facts are, in Dr. Savage's opinion, irreconcilable with the characteristics of what is generally known as homicidal mania, and the crimes may be regarded as more likely "to depend either on a fiendishly criminal revenge, or else upon some fully organised delusion by persecution or world regeneration." Sir George Baden-Powell makes an important contribution to the discussion on naval defence in an article entitled "Mosquito Defence." Sir George argues that in time of war it is vitally necessary that the ships of the regular Navy should be free to take the offensive, to go well out to sea, and generally to act without considering the actual protection of the coasts. This latter task he would leave to a mosquito fleet, to be made up of yachts and coasting vessels, armed with torpedoes and machine guns. Sir George proposes to divide the English coast line into 17 districts, which could be centres of an organised volunteer reserve. In each of these districts could be stationed a single man-of-war, probably of the more antiquated type, around which the volunteer vessels would gather. The mosquito fleet would, he urges, be sufficient to render it impossible for an invading party to land, and the regular fleet could move freely about as the chances of war required. Mr. H. H. Johnston gives a most glowing account of "British East Africa" in regard both to its natural wealth and its scenery. Canon Taylor, who startled the Church Congress last year by advising that Mahommedanism should be treated in a conciliatory spirit as a half-way stage to Christianity, on the ground that direct Christian missions to native races had failed, returns to the charge with an article on the "Great Missionary Failure," in which he gives a number of facts intended to support his contention. The chief literary article is by Mr. Swinburne on "Ben Jonson's 'Discoveries.'" He culls from the work a number of notable aphorisms. The leading place in the Contemporary Review is given to an article by Mr. R. B. Haldane, M.P., on "The Liberal Creed." It is practically an appeal for a policy of "Constructive Reform" not wholly dependent on the settlement of the Irish question, in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Gladstone. "Mr. Gladstone," he says, "has not unnaturally declared that his ambition is to make the settlement of the Irish question the final event of importance in his political career. He is, as he is entitled to do, concentrating his energies on the subject, to the exclusion of others. But his colleagues are hardly justified in [illegible] which course. Mr. Haldane [illegible] views of the Conservative has come [illegible] of Commons, but he contends that [illegible] the competition for public support they are hampered by the inconsistency which must appear to exist between their general principles and the particular measures of drastic reform on which their leaders may venture. He thinks that in the Liberal programme a leading place should be given to measures directly tending to ameliorate the social condition of the poor, both in town and country. Mr. A. Gallenga has an article on "France and Italy," which takes a desponding view of the relations between the two countries. The animosity between Frenchmen and Italians is spreading from the highest to the lowest ranks, evidence of which is to be found in the tone of the press, and the savage conflicts which have taken place between French and Italian workingmen in a number of French industrial centres. What France may, he thinks, be tempted to try is not a deliberate campaign against Italy, but "simply a sudden and smart coup de main, to humble that country before her big allies should have time or deem it worth their while to come to the rescue." Whether this happens or not, it may, in M. Gallenga's opinion, be regarded as certain that in case of a European scrimmage, the "Latin Sisters" will be the first to come to blows. Mr. Andrew Lang, in a paper called "A Dip in Criticism," comes to the assistance of his friend, Mr. Rider Haggard, who has suffered greatly of late at the hands of anonymous critics. M. Yves Guyot gives a review of the French Budget; and Professor Max Muller has a pleasant philological paper on "My Predecessors." On the whole, however, this is not a particularly animated number of the Contemporary.

The Century has quite a military tone. There is an interesting article on "Machine Cannon and Dynamite Guns," which deals in detail with the American inventions in these kinds of artillery. The writer complains of the little encouragement given by the United States Government to these improvements in warlike machinery, and expresses his belief that owing to the neglect of means for the defence of the coasts, the States are "laying up for themselves an awful retribution." There is a sort of symposium by military men on the "National Military System," in which the weaknesses of the American army are very candidly pointed out. Mr. Walt Whitman writes on "Army Hospital and Cases," and Messrs. Nicolay and Hay on "Abraham Lincoln and his Plan of Campaign." However, the magazine is by no means entirely given up to soldiering. There is a delightful pastoral sketch by the late Richard Jefferies, entitled "An English Deer Park," charmingly illustrated, as such articles in the Century always are. Among the other contents is a chatty article on frontier types, by a writer who has lived among the rough and ready classes he describes, and an amusing little story called "An Idyl of 'Sinkin' Mountin.'"

Temple Bar, contains instalments of the serial stories "From Mow Isles" and "The Rogue," and part I. of a new story, "The Ugly Miss Lorrimer." There is a pleasant paper on Montaigne, and a rather unpleasant and feeble one with the title "Why the Men do not Marry." "Our Diplomatists" is evidently written by some one who knows the diplomatic service well. It is a solid paper containing many interesting personal details. There is a review of the London season, and a poem by Charles Mackay called "Blessings in Disguise." In Longman's there is an article by Archibald Ballantyne on "Wardour-street English," which consists of a vigorous attack on the "sham Saxon" with which certain modern poets, notably Mr. William Morris, overload their verse. There are some pleasant "Reminiscences of the Lakes in 1844"—the lakes, of course, being those of Cumberland and Westmoreland. The number is a good one. The Cornhill also has an article on the Lakes, which describes a coach journey from Rydal to Thirlmere. There is an amusing essay on "The Great American Language," which certainly contains some remarkable specimens. Here is one for an Illinois newspaper:—"Chicago crooks pervaded town yesterday. They were shadowed." Translated into English, this conveys the fact that Chicago blacklegs had passed through the neighbourhood, and that the police kept an eye on them. There are some interesting "Sketches of Indian Life."

In Macmillan there is a fresh instalment of Bret Harte's serial story, "Cressy." Mr. Cornish contributes an erudite and in some respects profound article on "Freedom," by which he means intellectual, not political, liberty. Here is his conclusion:—"The first condition of freedom is sincerity, and the second forgetfulness of self, so that the best and perhaps the only path of freedom is to be a willing slave. There is no maxim which transcends this from the old Service books: Quem nosse vivere, Cui servire regnare est." Miss Cartwright has an article on "The Savile Letters." The letters referred to are those which passed between the Marquis of Halifax, the famous statesman of the Restoration, and his brother Henry, and which are among the manuscripts in possession of the Duke of Devonshire. They throw considerable light on the character of the great "Trimmer," and what they disclose is all to his credit and generally to the credit of both brothers. "Shakespeare Unawares" is a collection of colloquialisms which are current in the present day and are to be found in different works of Shakespeare, showing how many ancient saws and idioms still linger in popular phraseology. There is an intensely amusing article descriptive of the internal economy of "A Tennessee newspaper," in which the writer of the article passed his apprenticeship in journalism. The brilliant but drunken editor, the bellicose manager, the "city man" with his inexhaustible wealth of expletives, and the general topsey-turveydom of the office, are told with a quiet humour which the writer can hardly have acquired in his turbulent experiences in "the South." Scribner contains an article of some length, most profusely and charmingly illustrated, on "The Temples of Egypt." The frontispiece to the number is an excellent illustration of the "Avenue of Sphinxes—Karnak." There is a theatrical paper by Lester Wallach, made up of the theatrical reminiscences of half-a-century, and illustrated with many portraits of distinguished actors. There is much good-natured gossip, and there are a number of amusing anecdotes of stage variety—especially among third-rate actors. One gentleman upset a performance by refusing at the last moment to act because his name had not been put on the bills in sufficiently large type. Another—whose name was Hind—"kicked up a row" because his initials had been omitted. The manager promised to rectify the omission, but forgot to ask what the initials were. The name appeared in the next bill as "Mr. B. Hind," and as Mr. Behind the actor was always afterwards known. There is another interesting paper on the stage called "Behind the Scenes in a Opera House," which lets the reader into many of the secrets of the stage manager. Among the other papers is one—again with many portraits—on "The Railroad in its Business Relations."

The chief engravings in the English Illustrated Magazine are "Gerard Dow's Portrait of Himself," by O. Lacour, after the painting in the National Gallery; "Mrs. Jerningham as Hebe," after Hoppner, R.A.; and "The Spell Cast on Merlin," from a drawing by Henry Ryland. The most important literary contribution is a poem by Swinburne, called "Olive," in praise of a child nine years old. It is a delightful product of [illegible] child-worship in which Swinburne [illegible] the fashion of the late Victor Hugo. Here is the first verse:—

> Who may praise her?
> Eyes where midnight shames the sun,
> Hair of night and sunshine spun,
> Woven of dawn's or twilight's loom,
> Radiant darkness, lustrous gloom,
> Godlike childhood's flowerlike bloom,
> None may praise aright, nor sing
> Half the grace wherewith like spring
> Love arrays her.

SELECTION OF GOVERNORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The debate last night on the appointment of Governors to the colonies shows how shallow a view men sometimes take when they are called upon to act on the spur of the moment. Only one coolheaded man was found amongst 124 members, and Mr. Reid may be proud of his position. He very lucidly and justifiably sustained the ground he entered. The adoption of the resolutions would have been warranted had there been shown in some degree that we either possess superior men of superior quality for such position, or that our Premiers are so situated that they are in possession of superior knowledge, and thus may judge more closely and scientifically than the Imperial Government could, the candidates whom the Imperial Government from time to time have to choose for the Governors. Can anyone answer [illegible] vote for these [illegible] night? As we cannot recommend the men we know, how can we object to men we do not know?

Then again, the quibble put forward, that we are only asking to know the name of the candidate before appointment, is very equivocal. What does it amount to? I shall not say to ask our consent, though virtually it means the same; but I shall say that if our Premiers do not—I shall not use the word object—demur, or rather, more properly, if our Premiers do acquiesce, that candidate so named will be appointed, and if otherwise, another candidate will have to be named, and so on. Does that routine not convey the bare fact that our Premiers will have virtually the appointment of Governors.

We must not forget the episode in respect to the prerogative of mercy. The Governor has that prerogative, but the Queensland Premier uses it, or resigns. The mode will be followed in the case of appointments of Governors should the Imperial Ministry assent to the present Parliamentary resolutions.

I do not think that Imperial Ministers will ever create such insolvable anomalies. In the case of the Governor's prerogative, it it easily got over, the disputants being on the spot; but not so as a block or crisis over a Governor's appointment between home and colonial Ministries. This is tender and dangerous ground, whereon the empty-pated might enter, but the wise will not tread.

It is really amusing to hear, also, that in a democratic community, like ours, men should say that they object to Sir H. Blake because he is of humble origin. Who are these objectors? What were they when they arrived in the colonies? And what are they now? I am, &c.,

INCREASED CONVENIENCE FOR RAILWAY PASSENGERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The smooth and easy way in which the railway is going to be adjusted to the requirements of its customers is illustrated thus:—At Summer Hill there is a large station and a large traffic. There is an entrance in three of the corners of this depot, but in the fourth angle there is no provision for entrance, though a large traffic is derived from that direction. Now, thirty shillings would make a wooden flight of five steps, and a carpenter would fix it in two hours, and the fourth entrance would be made. As a consequence of this defect, which could be so easily amended, hundreds of persons have been strongly impelled to daily infringe the law against passing through the fences, and after years of this sort of thing the Department has struck on the bright idea that it would be better to force its customers to walk to the other end of this long platform rather than make this thirty-shilling improvement, and this morning names and addresses are being taken—and your humble servant's among them—with the object, I presume, of giving us the law. I am, &c.,

A DAY'S DAWDLE.

(By Vaurien.)

The person who can spend a spare day wandering about a large town and its environs without seeing or hearing anything to interest or amuse, has as wretched an old age before him as the man who does not know whist. More especially is this the case when the town and its belongings are so pleasantly situated as Sydney and its surroundings, where sea, sky, and land enter into partnership for the purpose of making a day's dawdle delightful. There is, of course, an absence in this Southern city of the old haunts and their associations which make every foot of some European towns hallowed ground. No remains of graceful columns or huge amphitheatres stand to show where Socrates taught or savages from Britain fought. (N.B. The fate of the old Greek mentioned should be a warning to all persons in the habit of asking ridiculous questions.) No crooked streets where once contending religious factions "fought like devils for the love of God." No castles hoar, beneath whose huge portcullis gay knights and gayer ladies passed a-Maying and a-hawking—the quality found the hawks, the neighbouring peasantry were nice plump pigeons; there was some fun in being a noble then—none of these things are to be seen in the capital of New South Wales or its vicinity. It would be impossible to stand in front of any Sydney building, even before the largest wool store on Circular Quay, and honestly imagine a time when Cœur de Leons or De Bouillons, Plantagenets, or Guelphs emerged from the hall-door or gateway yonder with a train of men-at-arms and a "Strike for the golden lilies now, upon them with the lance," or a "By my Halidom gentles fair! If stout Sir Hugh de Montmorenci do not fetch me that caitiff Cade's head on a spear, things will be mixed in broad England." I reiterate it would be impossible for any but a diseased imagination to picture an Ivanhoe or a Marmion in Sydney, except during the Christmas pantomimes. To show how the order of chivalry is, as to say, trailed in the dust among us, it is but necessary to allude to the fact that only a few months ago a knight with cuisses on thigh and shining hauberk might have been observed riding unnoticed and dejected through the streets on a palfrey whose resigned canter denoted the approach of the last mile-stone on the way to the knackers. He was no true knight, but merely an enterprising tailor's advertisement. His armour, probably of stout paper, would not have stopped a bare bodkin brandished by a baby. So far from his ladye's glove appearing at his breast, his back, front, and legs were veneered with assurances that for cut and durability, especially in summer tweeds, Cabbage and Co., could afford to smile at creation. I had but risen from Scott's Waverley at the School of Arts when this phantasmagoria burst upon and blinded me. "Truly," I said plaintively, "chivalry is no more. But why dig it up and gibbet it in this appalling fashion? Why not let William of Deloraine and Warwick, Capulet, and Crusader alone, now they're dead and—and done for, instead of ghoulishly prising 'em up again and putting 'em astride a beast like that to direct people where to find Tommy Dodd coats?"

But if Sydney lacks some old-world characteristics she possesses traits all her own, which make up for the loss. Some of these have been referred to already. When weary of the crowded streets, a few hundred yards will bring you to the water's edge, where steamers in plenty are to be found anxious to afford you a taste of the sea. When sick of the sea—a contingency always on the cards—there are heights, wooded and lonely, for you to climb, or pleasant beaches to saunter on. Somebody said—Goethe, probably: between himself and Shakespere they said so much that it is pretty hard for those who came after them to make a living—that a man sees and hears just what his eyes and his mind are prepared to see and hear. The person who saw no cause for wonder at Niagara, as there was nothing to stop the water from going over, is not a bad type of the class who from the cradle to the grave see little to attract their attention. Come with me for a stroll, and let us not be above observing incidents, however trivial. Sometimes an emmet trundling a grain of wheat will teach a lesson as well as a whale with a Jew for a cabin passenger. It is a little after 9 a.m. as we take our seats at Neutral Bay for this city. Business men are everywhere, but all the conduits to their brains are closed and barricaded to any impressions beyond those connected with rates of discount, prices of stocks, or fluctuations in sugar and shoddy. A few turns of the screw and we deftly miss the Maid of Australia, a deep-laden schooner outward bound for Parramatta. The Maid's appearance is not prepossessing, and, to an unprejudiced onlooker, the opinion suggests itself that she would be none the worse for a good wash. Singular, the improvement that a little judiciously-applied soap and water has both on vessels and virgins. If the living, palpitating, Circean Australian damsels disregarded personal appearance and pigments as resolutely as their namesake yonder, which is being steered stolidly west by a saturnine manner in shirt sleeves, they would probably continue maids to the end. "For Californy, I s'pose, this trip?" shouted our captain cheerily as a turn of the wheel enabled him to miss the maid by a yard. The seadog at the schooner's tiller turns slowly round, takes in our trim, saucy ferry from end to end, gives a sardonic laugh, punctuated by a wink, and again addresses himself to the perilous duties of his profession. There is nothing mariners appear to enjoy so much as bandying a little gentle badinage when they go down to the sea in ships and pass each other on the bosom of the deep. The fact is, a life in the open air, especially if on the ocean wave as well, confers such sound digestions on men that they approach the problems of existence with a smile. This is why old sailors are nearly always cheery, obliging, and active. In this they differ materially from old soldiers, who are often grumpy and disposed to take a jaundiced view of the Cosmos. Years ago these differing characteristics might have been observed in full bloom at Greenwich and at Chelsea, when old salts flourished in the former, and battered "Ben Battles" in the latter. It is to be feared that as men grow old in both professions, more particularly if they happen to have left one or more extremities on the field of fame, they appear to lose touch with facts—to turn their backs on the majestic simplicity of truth. Thus the remembrances that a truncated naval or military wreck will revel in—especially if one of his upper extremities also has long been detached from the parent-stem, leaving him but a single arm to emphasise his statements—may fitly be described as weird. Away back in the sixties, when survivors of the Nile, of Trafalgar, and of Copenhagen, were as plentiful as they have since become scarce, it was pleasant to sit at the feet or rather stumps of one of these antiques who in Sydney eked out his slender pension by open-air recitals of deeds of personal daring performed when the century was in its infancy, and Europe in arms to curb the ambition of Fortune's and the Revolution's spoilt child, Napoleon. "Did you know Nelson?" some unwary listener would ask simply. Then the old man's face became for a moment fixed and inscrutable, till at last the features relaxed as memories of the past forced their way from the chambers of his brain, and caused the veteran's filmy eyes to sparkle—his lips to tremble with emotion and surprise. "Know him?" would be the sententious, half amused, half contemptuous response. "Make me larf; many's the time his lordship, his glass under his one arm an' a green patch over his game eye, 'd bawl from the poop, 'Where's Bill Bullock?' 'Aye, aye, my lord,' says I from the fore riggin'.' 'Rake that ere Spaniard fore an' aft, Bill, while I orders out the boats to pick up the unfort'nate Dons.' Lor, sir, it do make me wicked sometimes wen people arsks me if I knowed Lord Nelson." Since many years Mr. Bullock has gone before that final Court of Appeal, in whose dread presence all the children of men, gentle and simple, seagoing or shore-folk, must ultimately stand when the last pipe to quarters is heard at the remotest confines of space. Let us hope that on the eventful day he will respond to the ultimate muster with limbs as intact and voice as cheery as before the Danish chainshot almost bisected him by the wild and stormy heights of Elsinore.

The ferry touches Circular Quay, and to their shops, offices, and marts the great bulk of the passengers depart, to pour libations on the high altar of Mammon. What were the harmless romances cradled and nursed in the poor brain of the late Bullock, A.B., compared with the artistic evasions, distortions, and fabrications which the fast-disappearing season ticket-holders will set agoing before the going down of the sun? So this is Pitt-street, with its superb banks and exchanges, its flaunting hotels and fine buildings, sandwiching shops of modest fronts and unassuming—even dowdy—exteriors. The feelings of an old and sturdy, but proud and squat, house as showy upstarts of four or five stories spring up on each side and over the way, must be peculiarly morose. "Hey! my fine fellows," one can fancy its soliloquising, "I was good enough for your owners' fathers, but, forsooth, I'm not fit for their sons. The palsied old bodies who daily totter by my doors on their way to the last and lowliest tenement of all, I saw gambol by as toddling infants when I, too, was fresh and young. By-and-by they carolled in my shadow on their way to school. A few years more and my walls overheard their dallyings or listened laughingly—walls have their ears and remembrances as men—to their passionate vows, interlarded with resonant tokens of tenderness as the moon dipped behind a cloud and the footsteps in the street became fewer and fainter. Yet a little while and they passed me with staider tread and mien more thoughtful. Not unaccompanied were they, for children ran before or plagued their mothers for permission to rest in my shade from the blinding heat. Look at them now, bent and stiff with years, hoping, many of them, that the period is at hand when for the last time they will pass my portals, silent and unresponsive to men's praise or blame. So I, before whose door life's drama or farce has been played from the overture's opening bar to the fall of the curtain—I, in whose very sight and hearing the droll tragi-comedy called 'existence' has been performed by actors innumerable—I am not good company enough for you five-storied parvenus with your shiny door plates, electric bells, new-fangled roofs, and brazen fronts. Pull me down brick by brick and cart me away, somebody. I'm not genteel enough for the forward young minx, Miss Sydney, whom I knew as a wee barefooted chit in pinafore and draggled frock, instead of an improver and a fringe."

Something like the foregoing are the thoughts that fill me as I dawdle along Pitt-street, and observe everywhere, below and around—in the wooden pavement under foot as in the tall houses at the sides—how the old is giving place to the new. Streets have their gradual metamorphoses, their slow but uninterrupted changes, much as men. Return to a thoroughfare after years of absence, and observe how everything is altered since last you passed that way. Altered—and mostly for the worse. At least you think so for the moment, because for the moment you forget, or seem unwilling to admit, that the greatest change of all is really in yourself—that how superior soever the dwellings or the roadway may be to those you remember, still there is wanting that indescribable something which—— My readers can finish the preceding sentence as they list. No more moralising for me, thank you—in this paper at least. Here is a pretentious building—a theatre clearly—and a huge placard, where two warriors in the fore ground, evidently bent on mischief, and crowds of meaner soldiers behind in as apparent hurry to meet, assure the drama-loving citizens that, by special request, Richard III. will that night make his final struggle for England's throne and Sydney's patronage. There is no time to pause and consider who the people are at whose special request manager and star, deformed usurper and credulous Lady Anne decide—much to their credit, be it said—to give a last representation. But actors and entrepreneurs were always a soft-hearted race—always ready to sacrifice their own feelings and pecuniary interests when assured that the public really demanded such a sacrifice. Still (how these ungenerous thoughts will obtrude! Down, unkindly whisperings) still, you see, the fact remains, the brutal fact that never since the world began—never since men trod the mimic stage and cried menacingly "Off with his head!" or asked meaningly "Air you the dook?"—have the person or persons been discovered at whose request a piece has been repeated. That such persons exist anyone acquainted with the ingenuous nature of walking gentlemen and heavy fathers will unhesitatingly admit. Why they've never been produced, and why the impression flourishes that they never will, are questions which have, so far, baffled intellects of the first order. To return. The masterly inactivity of the common soldiers on the pictorial programme yonder shows that even so long ago as the 15th century the rank-and-file had learnt the lesson that for a combination of safety and comfort there's nothing like keeping a few miles of country between yourself and the foe. Once in New Zealand I remember seeing an Irish sergeant taking off his accoutrements preparatory to a stretch, perhaps a nap, after a tedious 24 hours' vigilant guard in front of the enemy. Just as he, fatigued and disencumbered, was about to lie down with a sense of a day's good work accomplished and of a spell of sleep in the immediate future, he heard (we all heard) his captain say to the commandant, "Shall I fall my company in, sir, and disperse those Maoris yonder?" (They were contemptuously gesticulating and harmlessly firing from the outskirts of a patch of bush quite 800 yards away.) Then this Irish non-comissioned officer sat up in the privacy of his tent—he was the only one there belonging to the company offered for the attack—and the prudently subdued language he used towards captains anxious for promotion haunts me still. He was quite ready, mind you—none readier—to face anything in the shape of danger coming his way when duty called. But the idea of starting to meet trouble halfway, especially when there was nothing to be gained by it, tapped in him a hitherto unsuspected reservoir of ribaldry that broke through the banks and submerged the whole surrounding country. Somehow, the highly ornate placard of Bosworth's fatal field called back the painful incident to my mind. There were the decent lads in the distance making as if they would approach each other, but evidently convinced that, in pictures as in politics, the foreground or front seats were for their betters. A few knights and people of consequence, who had incautiously got in the way, were lying placidly on their backs with shafts of unusual size broken in their chests. It appears to have been the practice a few centuries ago not a one to stick a person when you had the chance, but to make him a present of the pike's sharp end by snapping the weapon's handle off short. In the middle-distance were two armoured horsemen pointing rather aimlessly toward the welkin as mounted warriors so often do when they wish their followers to do something, but have not quite made up their minds what. Further in front was a crown—England's, no doubt—on the ground, and near it the real heroes of the event, the rival kings. Richard, always distorted and generally pale, had a malignant look quite in keeping with his record. His hump, too, seemed aggressive and unaccommodating. The crown of proud England was certainly worth fighting for, as, judging by appearances, it would have fitted Magog. Believe me, next to seeing a good play itself, there's nothing like looking at a good picture of it.

Let us begone—the hours pass apace. At an auction room round whose door press dispirited women to see their poor belongings scattered by the official's unsympathising hammer (dear heart! what a romance humble and pitiful the wee cot just sold for half-a-crown may have contained for some poor body), there sits a grave grey-headed man apathetically ringing a bell at long intervals. To put a small bell in the hands of a person over 40 is to court failure. It shows an entire want of the fitness of things, this providing a bell for an elderly individual who would willingly sacrifice half his day's slender earnings if allowed to take out the tongue, when, all the time, a boy of 10 looks wistfully at the half-time-working gong, and would barter his hopes of the hereafter for a quarter-hour's run of it. Gone are the old familiar faces from Tattersall's front. To find them you would to-day have to go full 600 miles—away over wood and wold, over mountain, rock, and river, till the Flemington racecourse, with its assembled thousands, came in sight. There you might depend on running against the cheery familiar ones, of hearing their statement of the odds, distinct and high over the ceaseless hum of many voices. Heigh-ho! If Somebody we all instinctively avoid were to throw a stout and comprehensive net over that same Flemington ground to-day, man alive, what a haul he'd get! To sort them alone would be the labour of a life. It is while pondering these things that the open doors of the Pitt-street School of Arts invite me to enter, and closing, put an end to the morning's dawdle.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

BEE-KEEPING. A SIMPLE WOMAN'S INDUSTRY.

"Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul and health to the bones."—Prov. xvi., 24.

In my mind's eye I see homes where responsibilities are increasing quite out of proportion to decreasing fortune. The brave breadwinner grows daily more bowed and despondent; he reflects when too late upon the questionable wisdom of many acts, self-dissatisfaction breeds irritability that vents itself unreasonably on the noisy boys and girls whose appetites are surely phenomenal—and as to their clothes, why no children ever wore out boots and hats as quickly, no others ever wanted so many things! The mother believes she is conscientiously fulfilling her duty by making a domestic drudge of herself that the severest economy may be practised, yet with all her good intentions ends do not meet. She looks about for means to help her husband by bringing to the mill grist of a substantial sort, and adds to her already overburdened shoulders the strain of morning pupils or boarders. She is totally unfitted for the worry and additional work, and in the end is obliged to acknowledge that it was a mistake to undertake so much.

Poor thing, her mistake is a very natural one. The well-intentioned self-effacement that forgot in the accumulation of petty matters that each human atom holds within its grasp great possibilities for good, overlooked in its zeal the fact that we are not placed here to be miserable, but to add our mite to the sum of the general happiness by the balance of demand and concession. So long as men must work, women must weep, I suppose. Nothing will change our natures to the extent of drying up the fountains of salt tears; but it is quite possible to turn winter storms to April showers by means of light remunerative occupations that do not tax the attention too much, and yet afford a healthy outlet for otherwise brooding thought.

One such occupation is bee-keeping. Not bee-keeping in the colonial acceptation of the term, when a few tea-chests or gin-cases are smeared with syrup, provided with a roost, and become the unhealthy shelter of a swarm of unwary bees, doomed to live or die without further thought of their welfare on the part of their captors, who consider that they do more than their duty by making the process of robbing as merciless as possible; that is, as they know how, by the use of sulphur fumes. I mean the proper cultivation of bees for the sake of their honey, conducted with a certain amount of knowledge and intelligence. Most people seem to think all that is necessary for successful bee-keeping are a garden and a tolerably well-sheltered stand. This is a slight error in judgment, for which our superficial knowledge of most things is responsible. And one of the most striking results is that honey is a luxury, whereas it should be one of the commonest of everyday foods. Apart from its worth as a food, honey is invaluable as a medicine, both as a healer of outward sores and as a corrective of slight internal disorders. It may not be generally known that as a substitute for sugar in stewing fruits for table use, it is an excellent medium, some people consider it very superior to sugar, as it imparts a peculiarly delicious flavour. It has in a higher degree the special quality, when well purified, of preserving in a fresh state anything that may be laid in or mixed with it, and preventing decomposition; this is especially applicable to fruits. Honey costs nothing in its manufacture, while the presence of bees on cultivated lands is now recognised as of the greatest benefit. Without their intervention in cross-fertilisation the self-fertilisation of plants is a very feeble matter, and after a time almost ceases. However, as the question of industry versus agricultural interests is not likely to be of vital moment to the people most fitted to undertake bee-farming, it is not desirable to make more than a passing reference to their indirect value. Bee farming, per se, is not to be recommended to a man as a means of livelihood unless he is disabled from more active or lucrative pursuits, for it can scarcely be regarded as a profitable investment for large capital, or as a large employer of labour; but as a fair field, and certainly as a fairly remunerative one for the industry, skill, and perseverance laid out upon it. The labour and capital required to start it are small, but the skill, tact, patience, and perseverance necessary to the acquirement of a successful apiary are considerable. For these reasons it is an industry peculiarly adapted to women, and is being largely adopted by them in parts of the world suitable for it. Hopkins in his pleasantly practical "Australian Bee Manual," tells us that "in both England and America at the present time some of the most successful apiarists are ladies, and several of the most extensive beekeepers in America are assisted by their wives and daughters. Professor Cook, who states that Mrs. L. R. Baker, of Landsing, Michigan, who has kept bees very successfully for four years, read an admirable paper before the Michigan convention of beekeepers, in which she said:—

"But I can say, having tried both (referring to boardinghouse-keeping), I give beekeeping the preference as more profitable, healthful, independent, and enjoyable. I find the labours of the apiary more endurable than working over a stove, and more pleasant and conducive to health. I believe that many of our delicate and invalid ladies would find renewed vigour in body and mind in the labours and recreation of the apiary. My own experience of the apiary is that it is a source of interest and enjoyment far exceeding my anticipations."

This is strong and encouraging testimony, but it is not all; there are many instances of people of both sexes who have regained health and strength under the pleasantly stimulative effect of this employment. One notable instance in this respect may be quoted in the person of Mrs. L. Harrison, of Illinois, now one of the most successful lady apiarists and writers on bee matters known. This lady was at one time told by her physician that she could not live; but, as she states herself, "apiculture did for her what the physicians could not do—restored her to health, and gave her such vigour that she has been able to work a large apiary for years."

What English and American women can do on one side the world the Australian women can certainly do on the other.

Now as to the climatic conditions that affect bee-farming so strongly. All the great honey-producing countries of the old world, southern Europe, Asia Minor, and Phœnicia lie between the isothermal lines of 41° and 59° mean winter temperature, and the summer isothermals of 68° and 77°. The whole of Australasia south of Queensland has exactly the same mean winter temperature. The rainfall is abundant enough for all honey-making purposes. The bees can gather honey all the year round, and in some places even surplus honey in the winter. The indigenous trees are nearly all honey-bearers, the eucalypti and acacias being particularly valuable for bee forage, as the former bloom during the summer half, and the latter during the winter half, of the year. The natural enemies of bees seem almost wanting in Australia. There are certainly spiders, mice, bee hawks or dragon flies, and the bee moth; but the most effectual defence against the encroachments of such enemies is to keep all the colonies strong, and to use movable frame hives that can be easily examined if there is any suspicion of poachers. What does all this prove? That, given such advantages of temperature and food, it only wants enterprise to found an industry that has the singular advantage of being carried on without requiring close and absorbed attention; as it is quite possible to give a great many hours in the day to household matters indoors, and still have time to turn to the apiary as an outdoor recreation that provides the health-giving effects of sunshine with the pleasant reflection that the time so expended will be recouped in hard cash. Apart from the question of £ s. d., it is one of the most interesting of the natural sciences, supplying ever fresh food for thought and study. A word to the wise. No one should attempt to start an apiary without first learning from trustworthy books how best to treat bees in different climates; as well attempt a problem in Euclid before you have mastered your tables. First learn something of others' experience, and then test your own.

There are some generally accepted fallacies about amateur bee-keeping, which are so very destructive to the unhappy bees that it may not be out of place in this paper of sketchy suggestions to point out a few of them. Fallacy one is that a large flower garden is essential to the well-being of the bee. As a matter of fact, bees care little for cultivated flowers, as they produce a comparatively small quantity of honey; clover, heather, wild thyme, fruit blossoms, and fruit trees are their real resorts. Many plants that are very properly regarded as noxious weeds ordinarily, become invaluable as honey-bearing plants, such as the thistle, dandelion, the American sages, horse-mint, figwort, spider plant, and asters. Such weeds might be sown with much profit to the bees on waste pieces of land and odd corners without doing harm (thistles excepted). Fallacy 2 is to suppose that a large area of ground is necessary for an apiary; so long as there is room for the actual hives in some sunny spot sheltered from the cold and boisterous winds, it is not of paramount importance whether you are monarch of all you survey or not. In any case the bees like to forage in the neighbourhood, though they seldom exceed a radius of two miles in their beats, nor do they prey upon each other's hives except under great straits. Fallacy 3, that they do not require artificial feeding in the autumn and early spring. It is then when they are most in need of it; in the autumn that they may put by, for their winter store, when they may be too weak or sleepy to leave their hives in search of food for themselves; in spring, when breeding commences, and there must be an abundance of food if we look for strong swarms.

It may be objected that bee-keeping can only be practised by those already supplied with a garden or spare piece of land, by the dwellers in the country rather than in towns, and therefore the industry is circumscribed; that is so to a certain extent. But why should not apiculture be the raison d'être of many a flitting from close narrow streets to distant suburbs lying close under the silent Australian forests, where mind and body would each find re-invigoration in congenial pursuits? Undoubtedly one of the strongest causes of domestic jars and foolish marriages is the lack of some fixed interest to occupy the idle thoughts of many women. It is against nature that they should be content to be employed in petty domestic concerns that need only mechanical attention and provide no food for thought. Occupations that carry them into a different atmosphere, both mentally and physically, will do much to silence the futile questions of the day—"Is life worth living?" "Is marriage a failure?" Let each woman find a healthy outlet for her energies in some such pleasant hobby as this, and we shall hear of fewer tragedies in domestic life. This special industry may seem too simple a matter to influence such important results, but, remember, it was the mouse that released the lion. It is trifles that make the sum of life.

MOREE BEALIBA.

FOUR BIOGRAPHIES FROM "BLACKWOOD."

There have been many discussions, and much good advice given in the shape of lists of books about what girls should read; and it is no doubt a very important subject, for I suppose amongst girls between the ages of 13 and 18 there is more searching after and stretching out of hands for an ideal, and more hero and heroine worship than during any other period of life. The mind is just opening to its first knowledge of the world; it has as yet lost none of its illusions, but, like a fresh tender sprout of ivy, is hesitatingly throwing out feelers in search of some higher and stronger object by which it may be supported in its upward growth. Woe to the young ivy branch if it chance to cling to some lower object and be dragged for ever earthwards, or catch its tender feelers between rough stones, which will crush life and light out of it, and woe to the young mind if it loses itself in the rough darkness of worldliness, and sets its aims too low. "Who aimeth at the sky shoots higher much than he that means a tree."

It is especially to young girls, then, that I should like to recommend these four biographies of eminent women, which have been republished from Blackwood. They are brightly and crisply written, each character, whenever possible, is allowed to tell her own story of work and development; and the interest never flags, for we feel it is the genuine history of the acts and lives of four women, who, though they never neglected "the trivial round, the common task," yet did true and faithful work in the world, and "left footprints in the sands of time." Indeed, it is this fact of the double work, and therefore double influence, which stands out in such high relief in three at least of the four lives, and it will scarcely be too much to assume that because the home work was intelligent, thorough, and conscientious, therefore the work in the world was of some value. "The able housewife must necessarily be an efficient woman of business. . . . . . . Efficient domestic management implies industry, application, method, moral discipline, forethought, prudence, practical ability, insight into character, and power of organisation—all of which are required in the efficient management of business of whatever sort." So says Samuel Smiles, who evidently knew a good "manager" when he saw her.

But when I turn to consider the influence these four women exercised outside their home circle, I find it lay in very different directions and represented four sets of faculties. In Jane Taylor there is the quiet retired literary worker; in Elizabeth Fry the enthusiastic devoted philantrophist; in Hannah More the brilliant social influence, and in Mary Somerville the persevering hard-working scientist; and yet with each there was the quiet background of home life, home affections, home sorrows and joys. With Elizabeth Fry and Mary Somerville it is easy sometimes to believe that home life might have been all-absorbing, when we read in the journal of the former—"My mind is tossed with its variety of interests and duties—husband, children, household accounts, meetings, the church, near relations, friends, and Newgate." And again with Mary Somerville, during the period of her widowhood, while she was going through a systematic course of mathematical and astronomical sciences, studying from a list of books supplied her by Professor Wallace, of Edinburgh, she was quietly laying in her store year by year, and writes "A great part of each day I was occupied with my children, and in the evening I worked, played piquet with my father, or played on the piano, sometimes with violin accompaniment." But the habit of patient quiet study had been begun when she was still young Mary Fairfax in her Highland home. "Late into the night the candle would be burnt; for although an early riser, all the daylight hours must be spent in music, painting, needlework, and domestic concerns, so that the beloved study could only be pored over when the house was quiet, and its other inmates wrapped in slumber. Six books of Euclid were thus gone through, no one intervening, since no one knew anything of the matter."

In Jane Taylor's diary also we have many delightful peeps into the home life of the Taylor family: "We hear again and again of Jane's useful domestic life, and we find all the sisters by turn engaged in cooking, making their own clothes, and other employments necessary for people in their station." Mr. Taylor's example might well be followed in principle by many fathers of to-day, for he had all his daughters taught line engraving, and made them practice their art several hours a day, his views of the matter doubtless being, that in instructing his somewhat delicate daughters in a craft which was never likely to enlist many recruits, he was endowing them with the means of self-support, should such be required in after years." Engraving was therefore the "common task" of Jane and her brothers and sisters; but literature was their recreation, and that it was looked upon as such only can be known from the artless confession of Jane's sister Ann, "Having pencil and paper so near at hand, a flying thought could be caught by a feather even when engraving or biting was going on; or, in cases of extremity, when it was feared that all would escape me before 8 o'clock came, I have made a sudden exit, and in honest haste and unintelligible scribble, pinioned the fancy or the lines to the first piece of waste paper I find, there to abide till happy evening." For some time Jane wrote almost in secret, showing her work only to her sister Ann; "but presently—that is to say in her twentieth year, her literary pursuits being by that time recognised by the family—she was permitted to indulge them to the extent of having a room, a whole room (albeit an attic), fitted up for her exclusive use, and even furnished to her own tastes." There, no doubt, so many of the "Original Poems" so dear to our childhood were composed; and through a journal of her sister a glimpse is given us of the reason of their being so dear, when Jane is reported to say, "I try to conjure up some child into my presence, address her suitably, as well as I am able, and when I begin to flag, I say to her, 'There, love, now you may go.'"

The biography of Hannah More has an interest of its own, though her influence was more personal, and therefore more restricted to her own times; and her written works breathe so much the spirit of those times, that as her biographer says, "practically they are now defunct, lifeless." But page after page of the story of her life is turned over with breathless interest, as the "little schoolmistress" is described as the friend of Sir Joshua Reynolds and of Samuel Johnson courted by all the smart people of the day as a femme d'esprit, the intimate friend of princesses, the indefatigable diner-out, sight-seer, and conversationalist, and yet finding time for an extensive correspondence, and the publication of many volumes and plays; having in fact packed her life with intellectual and useful occupations, she enjoyed her leisure when it came with all the greater zest.

In later life noble triumphs were in store for these four women, who all (with the exception of Jane Taylor, whose health was always delicate, and who died early) retained their faculties to the last, and lived to enjoy a green old age. In 1870 Mary Somerville, being then over 80, was sought after by "astronomers from north, south, east, and west, who came to pay her court, and most abstruse and mysterious propositions." She had before been requested by Lord Brougham, in the most flattering terms, to give an account of the "Mécanique Céleste" and the "Principia," two severe works, of the latter of which Brougham affirmed that he did not believe there were 20 people in England who knew this great work except by name, and not a hundred who knew it even by name. When completed Brougham sent it to Sir John Herschell, the greatest astronomer of the period, and it was received by him with an outburst of enthusiastic applause; he had hardly a fault to find or error to correct in the whole book." Whewell looked upon it as the most remarkable work our age has produced, and its author was immediately elected an honorary member of the Royal Astronomical Society, and of several foreign scientific societies. Of Elizabeth Fry can be read how her work springing from its humble beginnings in Newgate, afterwards spread through most of the capitals of Europe; how her advice was sought by all who studied the amelioration of the lot of the prisoners of those days; how kings delighted to honour her, and how, as she describes in her journal, the King of Prussia, anxious no doubt to become acquainted with such a remarkable woman, begged that he might be allowed to lunch at her house, on which occasion she received the King at the carriage door with her husband and seven of her sons and sons-in-law . . . and afterwards in the drawing-room presented her eight daughters and daughters-in-law, and 28 of her grandchildren. Hannah More's more serious work began in 1785, when she retired to Cowslip Green, and began to contract the vast circle of her acquaintance; she died at the age of 84, Elizabeth Fry at 65, and Mary Somerville at 91—surely a proof that a busy life and hard work are conducive to health. Shortly before her death Mary Somerville writes:—"The blue Peter has long been hanging at my foremast, and now that I am in my 92nd year, I must soon expect the signal for sailing." A fitting epitaph for her and her three contemporaries would be what Goethe said of his mother, "She was worthy of life."

"Ay, marry! now unmuzzle your wisdom."—Rosalind.

Sir Henry Parkes does well, every now and then, to adopt the subtle tactics of a certain classical giant, by name Antæus. The strength of this mighty wrestler, whose tomb, when opened by Sertorius, discovered a skeleton (according to Strabo, quoted by Dr. Smith) 60 cubits in length—say 90 to 100 feet, as we must not be too particular, remembering that in those days giants were giants—seems to have been derived not so much from his altitude as from his faculty of keeping in touch with the great giantess from whom he sprang—the Earth. This is probably a figurative way of describing the invincibility of some half-fabulous athlete, who knew better than his rivals how to plant his feet firmly upon the ground. We are told that Hercules, the great dissenting Liberal of that time, was only able to defeat and crush this Gladstonian monster by severing his contact with the maternal parent. So he kicked Antæus up suddenly and strangled him in the air. Let us ponder this fable for a moment. It has, I think, a modern application. Our politicians, not perhaps knowing much about Antæus, are, and should be, prone to follow his example. When in difficulty or doubt play a trump. Take inspiration from Demos. Show yourself in touch with the fundamental instincts of the sacred people—the manhood suffragans. Stick to them and they will stick to you; that is to say, they will stick to you until they generate a preference for sticking to somebody else. But don't sever your connecting-link. Don't get into the air, or talk over the heads and beyond the earthly instincts of your audience. Plant your feet on the solid ground, and budge not, and when you feel your foothold weakening drop down flat on your face, and take sanctuary or succour like Antæus.

With his "office of Governor" resolutions, nominally three, but in reality only two in number, the Premier of this colony not only touched earth Antæus-wise, but struck a deep and strong flowing well of patriotic oil, which gushed up to the surface and was with some difficulty kept from running to waste. Mr. Buchanan, with him Mr. Walker, wanted to put the bore down deeper, thinking the time opportune to resolve separation from the mother country; but 45 were well content with the resolutions as introduced, and by that majority voted that when signed by the Speaker "they should be transmitted both by telegraph and post, through his Excellency the Governor, to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies." And now while they are in transit we have a little breathing time to consider what they may mean. The first resolution is obviously intended to "break the news" to the present Governor. It is so phrased as to take the rough edge off the resolution which follows, and contains a proposition that would have distinctly excluded him from the office which he now holds. Very properly, sagaciously, and graciously, therefore, did Sir Henry Parkes lead off with a preliminary compliment, in acknowledging "the wisdom of the selection of the present representative of your Majesty in New South Wales, who in the performance of his high duties has secured the respect and confidence of all classes of the inhabitants." Indeed, No. 2 would have been, by necessary inference, a censure on the appointment of Lord Carrington if its sting had not been previously extracted by No. 1.

And so we come to the second resolution, which, shorn of introductory matter, declares that "no person in the future should be appointed to the office of Governor who has not had experience in the conduct of public affairs, in high political office, or in the Imperial Parliament." Sir Henry Parkes, in the course of his speech, admitted that this was not a very definite description, and therein, I think, everybody will agree with him; but his explanation does not make his meaning much clearer. There further seems to be two classes of qualifications shadowed forth,—1. Experienced politicians, who have been members of a Government. 2. Experienced Parliamentarians who may not have held office. What appears to be essential is that a man will be disqualified unless he has been in the "public" business. "What it meant was (exclaimed the Colonial Secretary) that in the future the Governors should be confined to the class of public men who might have, and who already had, indicated qualifications to fit them for assisting in the government of the Empire; or in other words, persons accustomed habitually to act with regard to affairs of the Empire." With this explanation as a clue, on which side of the dividing line would Lord Dufferin and the present Governor be, or Sir Henry Loch? Would Sir John Gorst be within the pale, or Sir H. D. Wolff, or Sir Robert Herbert, the Marquis of Lorne, Mr. Ashmead Bartlett, Mr. John Biggar, Mr. Charles Stuart Parnell, or Mr. Henniker Heaton? Again, is the entire diplomatic service excluded, or included only so far it consists of men who have been in the Public business? Are all Governors of other colonies excluded, or only included on the same conditions as the diplomatists? Would Sir Hercules Robinson be inadmissible for re-appointment to his old colony—Sir Hercules, whom many at this moment regard as the most able, straightforward, and "governing" Governor we ever had—or must we put him, and with him scores of other able, distinguished, and successful Governors, on the "professional" list? If Mr. G. H. Reid confessed himself puzzled by the probable operation of this second resolution (and here let me remark, in passing, that many people think Mr. Reid's speech an excellent one), an outsider, such as I, may be forgiven for asking these questions. But, perhaps, in spite of all that Mr. Reid said, or that any one else can say, the strongest argument against the "professional Governor" is to be found in the significant fact that a "professional politician" proposed and carried the resolution which excludes him.

The "Carruthers" proposal to give municipal councils throughout the colony £1 of taxpayers' money for each £1 of rates and contributions, fixed for consideration in committee for last night, is one which should give us pause. At the least it means a grant of £270,854; the rates and subscriptions collected by these councils in 1887 reaching, according to Mr. Coghlan, the sum just named. And if by "contributions" (a rather ambiguous word) is meant not only "subscriptions," but revenue from loans and "other sources," then the grant means £341,514, taking the collection of 1887 as a basis. But suppose it only means two hundred and seventy thousand pounds odd out of the Treasurer's surplus, is it not an extraordinary subsidy, when we value the aggregate liabilities and assets of the municipalities? The total liabilities of these councils for the year 1887, according to the authority just quoted, were £733,147; and the total assets reached £2,824,972, which with the present value of future rates added at 20 years' purchase, becomes £6,825,000. So that, looked upon as debtors, their gross liabilities only represent a trifle over 10 per cent. of their gross assets. The gross amount paid by way of endowments during 1887 was £97,938, about a third of the sum wanted by Mr. Carruthers for 1889. Surely Sir Henry Parkes did no more than his duty to the State when he vehemently opposed the taking into committee of such a prodigal proposal, for it is impossible to disguise the fact that it is the result of a wide-spread determination on the part of those interested to tax anybody and everybody before taxing themselves up to the permitted limit, and the proposal is so framed as to treat all municipalities except Sydney in forma pauperis, whether they are over head and ears in debt, or almost entirely free from it; and yet how hard it must be for a "municipal member" to vote conscientiously against it if he intends to offer himself for re-election next year! For poor little Mr. Carruthers, who is going to heaven on this resolution, it is awful to think what failure means, £ for £ being the only plank in his political catechism.

Let me, if I can, smooth the feathers of Mr. Fred. Staveley, though the ruffling of them was not my offence, but was due to an almost incredible misapprehension of the meaning of words by himself, a misapprehension so stultifying that it seems to disable him from understanding that to suppress essential words when quoting is a kind of fraud on the reader—and not a pious fraud either. "Your salient [salient is better than good] writer of 'As You Like It,' or 'T. over J.,'" writes Mr. Staveley in Wednesday's Herald, "seems unseasonably light or sarcastic when he concludes, after reading all the letters on the subject, that the writers are 'professors, pedants, billet-hunters, or quacks.'" Now, what was said in the paragraph referred to was—"I always read very carefully the letters on irrigation and water-conservation which appear in the daily newspapers, but almost always with a feeling of disappointment. The writers are generally, as it seems to me, professors, pedants, billet-hunters, or quacks." Upon that statement of the case, as it appeared to me, I must, with all respect to Mr. Staveley, repudiate the interpretation by which, on my authority, he would write himself down in one or all of the four categories. "Generally" does not mean "always," or "invariably," but is an adverb with much of the pacifying virtue of qualification in it.

THE SPIT BRIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Unless powerful opposition is raised to prevent the blocking up of Middle Harbour by the proposed Spit Bridge, yachting men and others may shortly say farewell to that beautiful pleasure resort, at least, so far as the larger craft are concerned, whereas, by a judicious additional expenditure in anticipation of future requirements, a proper high-level bridge might be built, leaving the waters open for navigation by craft of reasonable size. I imagine there are from 60 to 100 miles of deep water frontage to Middle Harbour, and the future use of this should be considered before building a low level bridge, and, in a great measure, destroying the approach to it by water. As to swing bridges, I think very few people who have taken notice of the working of the Pyrmont and Parramatta River bridges would advocate such dangerous obstructions both to harbour and road traffic. I write this in the hope that the matter will be taken up by some abler pen with a view to this makeshift bridge being discarded in favour of one giving from 60ft. to 100ft. headway, which will be more suitable to the magnificent waterway which it is now proposed to obstruct.

SOME RELIGIOUS CHARACTERISTICS OF THE COLONIES.

By Belvidere.

By comparison with other parts of the English-speaking world Australians can scarcely be said to be deeply religious if its attitude towards outward form is any evidence. The people of Great Britain are a church-going class. That is, the majority of the people attend chapel or church, and regard the attendance as much a part of their life as the habit of labour or eating. The real source of the stability of the religious habit lies in rural districts. An agricultural population is always more inclined towards religion than any other. This is so, because the tendency of their lives is to bring them into a rather close relationship with nature. This relationship begets a certain contented repose, alien to a condition in which life is hurried or feverish. It would be perhaps the cruelty of satire to say that the world is more religious in proportion to its bucolic habit and mental laziness, but that must be admitted, I think. I am using the word religious here in relation, as I said before, to outward assent. Anyone who has travelled in the rural districts of Great Britain, of the United States, of Canada, and (to go to foreign communities) France knows how simply pious in form the people are, how little they are disturbed by the waves of modern religious thought, and how little they scan the horizon "to see what next is coming in the world of Christian enterprise." The simpler the habits of the people the more apparent is their religious spirit. The Scotch shepherd, the English gardener, the Canadian farmer, the American corn-grower, each in his place is religious after his sort. It is not because he has finer natural elements, more pious tendencies in his mental constitution perhaps, but because he lives in an environment which one urges towards the soothing influences of a comfortable faith. The life of the farmer is one that moves "near to nature's heart." He catches the sweet smell of the soil as he turns it up, and he is influenced by the colour on the heather, the lowing of cattle, the sighing of the pines, the sleepy growth of his "corn and wine and oil;" and there comes upon him a disinclination to move himself out of the tide of quiet harmony that flows down the channel of his existence. He may be narrow; the chances are in most cases he is, but that springs from the small sphere of his labours. He moves all his life in the bounds of ten of fifty of a hundred of a thousand acres, and his ambitions have their limits there. He lives near to his neighbour who is moved by the same feeling. The contact is not too close. The sky and the wind and the soil lie between. Each sees, however, the other doing the simple appointed task, and from these convictions of settled existence far from speculation and from any large element of chance, there comes the disinclination to disbelief, and the inclination to cultivate an unstudied creed and practice in keeping with their habit and life.

This is the natural outcome of an agricultural and soil-cultivating life. I think I never met a gardener who had not a large element of intelligence, and a well-developed religious interest in his nature. He seems from his careful regard for the well-being of the tender growths that spring up beneath his hand to gather some more refined influences from the little world in which he lives, and so to become more thoughtful, and being thoughtful he becomes more religious—not, perhaps in demonstration, but in feeling and in regard to his mental health. What is called by church going people the means of grace are near to the agriculturists in other lands, because districts are more thickly populated, and churches can be more easily built. Who can ever forget the simplicity, the sleepy drowsing easy-dispositioned "meeting" attended in some rural farming district in England or America. Different as the people are the characteristics are the same. The sleepy air, the bare cold walls, the dull-faced labourer, the far-away melancholy voice of the preacher, with an accent that savours of unhappiness and of mental poverty, the lined hymn, the expounded lesson, the long-beaten-out sermon, and the atmosphere of religious satisfaction that pervaded the place, who can forget them? No one, I think. Even the sermon when it thundered was but a source of enjoyment to the listeners. It was a recreation, a recreation of the sense often, but still a recreation. The same kind of recreation one has seen indulged in at a funeral. I knew an old lady once, as kind a hearted old dame as ever lived, one who would give you all the simples that her dispensary held, with honest tears, when one was ill, but who went to every funeral for miles round whether she knew the deceased or not, just to have the recreation of crying and of mourning with the mourners. The corpse, to her, was a means of enjoyment—of sad enjoyment, perhaps; but perhaps as keen as most people would have at seeing Othello or the Medea. We all more or less love the luxury of grief, particularly if we have money enough to afford it. My old friend, Mrs. Bonisteel, in her quiet way could afford it, and she could count on at least one funeral a month. She told me once, with tears in her eyes, that she had been to fourteen funerals that year, and she wondered between a sigh and another lemon tart who would be the next to weep over, for as she said "all flesh is grass." Now the religious spirit was kept alive in Mrs. Bonistell, through the fact that she was permitted under the conditions in which she lived to exercise not only its practical virtues, but enjoy its luxuries as well.

I doubt if Mrs. Bonistel had lived in the bush in Australia that she would have remained as religious as she was to the end of her life. For poor old creature, she died at last, and her daughter, who also had the gift of grief's enjoyment, wrote me that her mother said she hoped if she never saw me again that "I would drop a tear on her memory." I did. I say it with all reverence, I did. There was little luxury in it. She had done her best after her kind, and according to her light. Her religion had brought her a mixed enjoyment. She had alternated between grief and sunshine, and she got more enjoyment out of the grief than the sunshine. I might say in passing that she was humble and comparatively poor. Had she lived in the black-blocks I am afraid that she would not have held so closely to her Wesley's hymns or listened so attentively to the bell for class meeting or for a funeral. Not even the occasional visit of the parson would have kept her faith and its expression active. She would have drifted, just as the majority of the people in the interior of this country have drifted, into a passive indifference towards religion, with possibly pessimism and a tepid philosophy springing from the circumstances by which she was encompassed. The distances between settler and settler, are great in our country generally speaking, and "the means of grace" are not convenient. Therefore the religious habit is not cultivated. But more than all this, I believe the disturbing, the counteracting influence is the uncertainty which attends the business of life here. We are a people who gamble with the weather and the climate, "Rain or no rain?" "Will sheep live or die?" "Can we get our wool to market, or can we not?" these are the questions that people ask themselves here. These are the questions that they have been asking for ever so long. Sometimes it is, "Shall we get gold, shall we strike success somewhere?" Is it not so that such has been the history of this country from the beginning? The agricultural population has been but a small one. A large section of our labours are a shifting population. Do we often consider what this moving, unsettled, mass of shearers and rouseabouts and boundary-riders, and stock-riders and drovers, means to the country? How it affects the national character? The spirit of speculation that pervades our whole life has tended towards making us inclined to "toss-up" with religion, and, indeed, to spend more time in tossing-up than in the exercise of a faculty for or against it. I have spoken of religion in its broadest sense, in the sense that it affects the feeling of worship and reverence for the Higher and the Unknown, not as it affects any particular creed or doctrine, or theological device. There are thousands of people in Australia who never see a minister from one year to another, and who, in fact, never desire to do so. They have fallen out of sympathy with the exercise of the function, and contact with it does not strike them pleasantly either in the senses, or, to use a religious term, spiritually. It would be said, in reply to these things, that people often have a religion of their own which does not find an outlet in ordinary expression. I can understand that. But I am speaking of the attitude of people toward the accepted forms and the accepted doctrines. A man, however, never knows quite what he believes until he begins to define it in careful thought, and if he has the courage and honesty to do that he will give his conclusions demonstration and scope in which to act. But I do not think that, generally speaking, the people of Australia as a whole are perplexed much about religious questions. They usually let things drift. The exception to this is the city of Melbourne. There people have become awake to the outside influences of modern thought upon religion, and to tell the truth are somewhat excitable in regard to the fact. A man in Sydney can believe almost anything he pleases, and men do not worry themselves at all about it, or if they do, it is with a quickly forgetful deprecation. A man can even preach almost anything he pleases, and there is the same disregard. No one gives much thought as to whether a clergyman gives utterance to expressions that would throw doubt upon the doctrine of the Trinity, the Divinity of Christ, or Eternal Punishment. As a people we are too inert religiously to make an effort towards analysis or combat. But Melbourne is in a constant state of ebullition regarding religious matters. Men are on the watch to find "false doctrine" and "insinuating practice." Dr. Strong, Rev Charles Dodds, and others have stirred the people into the belief that they are, in there fighting criticism, being bulwarks of the faith, when after all, in most cases it is but the result of having been disturbed, and finding the exercise of opinion pleasant they have feathered it with orthodoxy. Melbourne is strong in the function; Sydney, as far as she goes, is strong in the intention, but Sydney does not go very far; and both might be called, by comparison with old-world towns, irreligious. Adelaide is by instinct more religious than any of the other colonies, save Tasmania. Tasmania is, I think, the most natural in its religious habit. It has the real element of honesty about it. It is slow in its life, but it is calm. It is old-fashioned in its moral tendencies, but it is safe because of that. I feel certain that there is a finer combination of the social, the religious, and the meditatively intellectual in Tasmania than in any of the other colonies. The people are not aggressive in thought, but they are careful. They might be called soporific, but that is not antagonistic to the exercise of the religious function. They are fearful of being disturbed, and they keep themselves outside the influence of disturbing ideas. South Australia was in the same position once as Tasmania. She possesses the outward reputation, but she has lost much of the inward loyalty. Adelaide is a city of churches, but I think that it lacks vitality, lacks it to a considerable degree, and having professed much, one is disappointed to find that the people are not really occupied more in "good works." There a man need not be a religious man in thought or deed, but he must say nothing about the fact, and he will not be criticised. In Sydney he can, broadly speaking, think and do as he pleases, and no one will care much. In Melbourne he must be very careful what he says or does, and yet Melbourne I do not think is on a par intellectually with Sydney, save perhaps in its preachers. They have some men of mark there as preachers—more than have we. People are accustomed to think there in an excitable sort of way, and they act like opposite counsels waiting for a flaw in evidence; but is it not after all largely mental and religious affectation, and not solid intent and desire after truth?

Let us take a statistical register and see what figures are. They tell us that in New South Wales the average attendance at public worship for the year 1887 was 284,966. The population of the colony is over 1,000,000. That is, there is an average attendance of over one-fourth of the population at Divine service. This looks fairly well. But when one considers the temper of the people I do not think that it is altogether convincing. We must make our estimate according to what we consider to the religious feeling of the people as exhibited in works of charity and in attitude towards all great moral questions. The portion of the community that concerns itself in great social and moral questions is small, as it is small also that is concerned for more local matters of religious interest. The estimate in this article is founded not upon a sceptical feeling, not upon a pessimistic feeling, but upon the witness that one sees daily of a constantly-growing apathy towards all matters of deep religious interest, whether intellectual or otherwise. Faithful and careful as is the work done by the Christian Evidence Society, I doubt that it feels that it is receiving the support it should in so large a population as this. It does not appear that men are growing sceptical or antagonistic to the religious habit, but that they are becoming oblivious to it. It is the same in all the colonies, with such modifications as I have tried to point out. I have not spoken of Queensland in particular, because I do not know it, but I have no doubt from what I have gathered from many sources that it is even less inclined to be seriously moral or religious than the other colonies. What is this indifference, this inertness, working towards? Not exactly, I think, towards an aggressive scepticism and free-thoughtism such as exists here and in Melbourne, and to a lesser extent in the other colonies, but towards an easy-going policy of inactivity and consequent laxity of opinion, and, it will be added by those whose province it would be to take up this subject where I leave it off, moral laxity as well. The religious habit as I have said before, is largely a matter of natural conditions and mode of social and business life, and I think we must face the fact that as a people we are not inclined to make much demonstration of religious vitality.

MODEL OF THE STRASBOURG CLOCK.

Mr. R. B. Smith, of Oxford-street, has just completed a model of the famous Strasbourg clock. It is now about two years since he began the work, and with the exception of the assistance which he has received in the carving and painting, he has been practically unaided in his task. The clock is based, not on another model, but on the original itself, and in this respect it may be said to be an actual fac-simile, instead of a second-hand imitation. Standing about 12ft. in height, it has at the top the automatically worked figures of the 12 apostles passing in and out at regular intervals from a door to the right. In the centre stands a figure of Christ, which bows to each as it comes out, and at the same time makes a salutation with the hand, a feature which was not observable with the well-known model which was exhibited in the colonies some years ago. There is also a representation of Satan appearing to tempt Peter and Judas, with the one turning his back on Christ, and the other ignoring the temptations and bowing all the more profoundly and obsequiously. Below this is a sketch of the four ages of man, and after that comes a contrivance showing the phases of the moon. An addition to the original here is a representation of the rising and falling of the tides. Under this again is an orrery on the Copernican system, including the planets Neptune and Uranus, which were also, of course, absent from the original. A clock adjusted to Sydney mean time stands next with one cherub to the right turning an hourglass, and another to the left striking a warning note every quarter of an hour. Then there are figures of the seven deities marching in procession at intervals of 15 minutes, and at the base the astronomical clock with a planisphere of the southern sky. To the left of this are several timepieces giving the hour and minute at London, Edinburgh, Dublin, New York, St. Petersburgh, and Berlin. This addition was made at the suggestion of the Government Astronomer, Mr. Russell. The suggestion was certainly a very happy one for it serves to render the whole structure much more complete than it would otherwise have been while its value as an educational medium is considerably enhanced. To the right of the basement is the solar time with cycles of the sun and moon, and figures of the seasons, while there are also in appropriate positions portraits of Charlemagne, Clovis, Dagobert, and Louis IV. To the right runs a small staircase, which in the original leads to the centre tower, where the works can be seen. It is intended to place at the top of the tower a miniature bust of his Excellency the Governor. On one side of the structure there is a view on the Rhine near Strasbourg, and on the other a sketch of Sydney harbour, besides a number of allegorical figures and representations of Sir Henry Parkes as Premier of the colony and Mr. Burdekin, M.L.A., as senior member for East Sydney. Without going further into detail, it may be said that the whole work has been excellently done, and reflects the highest credit on those who have been concerned in it. The mechanism is driven by one movement from the main shaft, which runs from the top of the centre tower. Mr. Smith has been assisted in the construction of the clock by Mr. W. Franklin, who has done the carving, and by Messrs. Lyons and M'Ewin, who have had charge of the painting. The clock will be on view to the general public until further notice.

HOWLING OF DOGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Can you advise me what to do to stop the ceaseless barking and howling of dogs in Darlington, more especially at night; in fact, so bad are they that it is quite impossible to get any rest at all, and during the day totally unfits one for his or her work. I not only complain of dogs tied up in yards, but also of those mongrels running loose in the streets spoiling everything as they pass by, and shall feel very thankful for your advice in the matter.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT—Friday, November 23.

In Banco.—(Before their Honors the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Windeyer, and Mr. Justice Innes.)

QUEEN V. JURY, TOPIN, AND WEST.

Mr. Edmunds appeared for the prisoners, and moved to set aside the conviction in each case. Mr. Cohen, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared to show cause why the conviction should not be set aside. Robert Jury, John Topin, and Israel West were convicted before Mr. Justice Stephen on the 12th instant on a charge of riot. During the empannelling of the jury the Crown directed eight jurors to stand aside. Mr. Edmunds, the counsel for the defendants, objected that the Crown had exhausted its right of challenge by directing eight jurors to stand aside. Two of the defendants had made separate challenges, but neither had exhausted his number. His Honor allowed the Crown to order the ninth juror to stand aside, and at Mr. Edmunds' request he reserved the point whether he was right in so doing.

The Chief Justice, without calling upon Mr. Cohen, said it appeared to him that Mr. Justice Stephen had correctly laid down the law in allowing the Crown to challenge eight persons for each prisoner that was tried. The 336th section of the Criminal Law Amendment Act seemed to alter the law, and although no doubt it was intended to restrict the rights of the Crown it had in fact enlarged the rights of the Crown. Before the passing of that section and since the statute 33 Edward I., which was re-enacted by statute 6 George IV., chapter 50, section 29, the Crown had no peremptory right of challenge whatever. All the Crown could do was to direct a juror to stand aside in order to see whether a full jury could be obtained from the panel before the Crown were required to state their cause of challenge. But the person so directed to stand aside was not challenged in the sense that a prisoner challenged the jury, because a prisoner having once challenged a juror peremptorily, he could not be called again, and was off the panel altogether; whereas, if the Crown ordered the juror to stand aside, he could be called again, and the Crown was then called upon to show cause. In the present case the prisoners could not have been in charge of the jury until all the jury were sworn, and it was not until then that the Crown were in a position to say whether they would try the prisoners all together or singly. So that each prisoner's case was distinct and separate, and upon the case coming on each prisoner had the right of challenging eight in a case of misdemeanour and 20 in the case of a capital offence. The Crown had exactly the same power given to them by this statute. He might mention that this point was fully considered in the case of Wright, Heaton, and Company, tried before the late Chief Justice, Sir James Martin. There were, he believed, some 13 persons on trial, and there it was found necessary to exercise the right of challenge. He was at the time counsel for the prisoners, and he took the same point which appeared to arise now, namely, that the Crown had no right to challenge more than eight jurors for the whole of these 13 persons; but Sir James Martin held that they were separate cases, and the Crown, therefore, had the right to challenge eight in each case, and that the prisoners also had the right to challenge eight. He was of opinion that the late Chief Justice's ruling was correct, and that the ruling of Mr. Justice Stephen in this case was also correct. The Crown had the peremptory right of challenge for each person arraigned.

Mr. Justice Windeyer was of the same opinion. The 336th section gave the Crown a greater right than it possessed before. Prior to the passing of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Crown, after it had directed jurors to stand aside, were subject to be placed in the position that if the panel was exhausted by the challenges of prisoners, then the jurors who were ordered to stand aside could be called again, and unless the Crown showed cause why they should not be allowed to sit, they had to be accepted as jurors in the case. Under the present Act, however, the Crown had the same right of challenge in cases of misdemeanour and felony as the prisoner.

Mr. Justice Innes concurred in thinking that the conviction should be sustained, and that the course taken by his Honor at the trial was the correct course. He thought so because of the fact that there was more than one defendant on his trial, and that they had separated on their trial. If there had been only one prisoner, he was not able altogether to free himself from doubt whether under the 336th section the Crown retained its former right, after exercising the right of peremptory challenge there conferred, to say stand aside to an unlimited number of jurors, and then when the panel was exhausted to challenge for cause shown.

The application was refused, and the conviction confirmed.

THE QUEEN V. DE PASS.

Mr. Fitzhardinge, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown. The prisoner was not represented. This was a case stated for the opinion of the Court under the following circumstances. The prisoner, George de Pass, was tried at the Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions on November 14, before Mr. District Court Judge M'Farland, upon a charge of perjury. In the course of prisoner's cross-examination of a witness for the Crown, he asked him if he had not at some time been convicted of some criminal offence, but witness declined to answer the question. Prisoner then desired that an officer of the gaol who was in court at the time should read aloud the book then before him, so that it might be seen whether the witness had or had not been convicted. The Judge, on the objection raised by the Crown Prosecutor, refused the prisoner's application. The prisoner was convicted, and sentenced to four years' imprisonment; and at his request the point was reserved for the opinion of the Full Court whether the Judge was right in declining to allow the gaoler's book to be read.

The Court considered that the matter was not arguable. It showed to a certain extent the mischief of allowing these points to be reserved, as they only took up time unnecessarily.

FINLAYSON V. CLARKE.

Mr. Pring appeared for the plaintiff, and moved for a rule nisi for a new trial. The action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Foster and a jury of four, on the 8th instant, was brought by Alexander Finlayson, merchant, of Sydney, against defendant, to recover the sum of £226 14s. paid by him to defendant for a share in certain land at Kimberley. It appeared from the evidence that defendant and some others had formed themselves into a syndicate for the purpose of purchasing some pastoral property belonging to a Mr. Plumb, of Western Australia. The syndicate were to pay so much cash and the balance by several promissory notes for their own particular shares, and the arrangement made was that when each party had fully paid up, the vendor was to transfer the land so purchased. Clarke bought a one-tenth share and sold one half to the plaintiff, who, after paying the whole amount of the purchase money requested defendant to transfer to him, as agreed upon, his share of the land. Clarke, however, stated that he could not transfer because he had neglected to pay the whole of his purchase money to Plumb. The defendant being absent from the colony did not appear, but the jury returned a verdict in his favour. The rule was now asked for on the ground that the verdict was against evidence, and that his Honor was in error in directing the jury that if they thought the contract was still pending between Plumb and defendant, and that defendant had not had a reasonable time to complete, they should find for defendant.

The rule was granted on both grounds.

IN RE JAMES WOOD.

Mr. Cohen moved on behalf of Mary Ann Wood and Ann Guerin for a writ of attachment against James Wood for disobedience of the order of the Court of the 14th September last for the payment of costs.

Order granted with costs, such order to be in the office for three weeks.

FARMER AND WIFE V BALMAIN STEAM FERRY CO.

Mr. C. B. Stephen appeared for the defendant company, and moved to set aside an order taken out by plaintiffs for the payment of costs on the discharge of the rule nisi moved for by the company. Dr. Donovan appeared for the plaintiffs to show cause. It appeared that plaintiffs succeeded in their action against the company, and the latter then moved for a rule nisi for a new trial. The Court refused the rule, and plaintiffs then took out the rule as discharged, with costs, and made a demand upon the defendants for £10.

The Chief Justice said that the rule appeared in the books in the Prothonotary's Office in error, as dismissed with costs. Plaintiffs were no doubt entitled to the costs of a watching brief, also delivery and other costs in connection therewith, but they were not entitled, as their attorney ought to have known, to any further costs. No costs would be allowed of the present motion.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Windeyer, and Mr. Justice Stephen.)

RE HENRY MARGULES.

Mr. Gibson appeared for the applicant, and moved to make absolute a writ of prohibition to set aside the summons and further proceedings of the District Court at Temora. Mr. Wise appeared for the respondent, Joseph Deitz, to show cause. The applicant Margules had been summoned to appear at the District Court, Temora, to show cause why he should not be ordered to pay a sum of £40 16s. due to the respondent Joseph Deitz for board and lodging in 1883. A verdict was obtained in the absence of the applicant Margules, who now sought to have it set aside on the ground that before and at the time of the proceedings he was a resident of Sydney, and carried on business there.

After hearing the affidavits on either side read, the Court granted the prohibition, with costs.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Foster and a jury of four.)

ST. GEORGE V. BENNETT AND ANOTHER (PART HEARD).

Mr. G. H. Reid, instructed by Mr. George Wallace, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rogers, Q.C., instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Hugh Stuart St. George against Alfred Bennett and Frank Bennett, proprietors of the Evening News, to recover damages for alleged false and malicious libels published in their newspaper of the 8th and 9th September last year, by stating that plaintiff was convicted at the Central Criminal Court, Darlinghurst, of manslaughter, whereas he was acquitted. Damages were laid at £2000. Defendants brought into court the sum of £25 by way of compensation and satisfaction, as being sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim in respect of the libel complained of.

Counsel having completed their addresses to the jury this morning, his Honor summed up, and the jury, after about half an hour's consideration, returned into court with a verdict in favour of the plaintiff for £250 over and above the amount paid into court.

PENGLASE V. BROKEN HILL JUNCTION NORTH SILVER-MINING COMPANY.

Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., and Mr. Wise, instructed by Mr De Lissa, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rogers, Q.C., and Mr. Pring, instructed by Mr. Matheson, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Walter Penglase against the defendant company to recover compensation for alleged trespass upon certain land adjoining and to the north of the defendant company's property. The defendants pleaded that the land originally formed portion of a lease granted to Robert Griffin, from whom they derived their title.

Counsel for the plaintiff said that he only asked for nominal damages, as a question of title was involved which would have to be determined by the Full Court. A verdict was therefore entered by consent for the plaintiff, with damages 40s., leave being reserved to defendants to move the Full Court to have the verdict entered for them on points of law and facts admitted.

In Equity—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Owen, Chief Judge in Equity.)

LLOYD V. MORRIS.

On the motion of Mr. Simpson, who appeared for the plaintiff, an official assignee, an injunction was continued until the hearing of the suit, restraining the defendant from selling or dealing with certain conditional purchases.

JOHNSON V. JOACHEM.

On the motion of Mr. Simpson, who appeared for the plaintiff, an injunction was continued until the hearing, defendant having power to come in at any time to dissolve, restraining defendant from dealing with certain conditional purchases, over which plaintiff claimed an equitable mortgage. Mr. Walker consented on behalf of the defendant.

MARSHALL V. FERGUSSON.

On the motion of Mr. Cohen, for defendant, this suit was dismissed for want of prosecution. There was no appearance for the plaintiff.

PROCTOR V. MERCANTILE LAND, BUILDING, AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

Mr. A. Knox (with Mr. Wise), instructed by Mr. J. W. Mitchell, appeared for the plaintiff, William Consett Proctor; and Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Dr. G. J. Sly, for the defendant, the Mercantile Land, Building, and Investment Company.

The action was brought by the plaintiff in order that the defendant company might be restrained by order of the Court from prosecuting an action at law commenced by them against the plaintiff for the recovery of £900 alleged to be due to them in respect of transactions upon land at Kogarah. The defendant company purchased the land from plaintiff at £1 per foot, but agreed to an additional payment for any sum obtained by them upon resale over £1 15s. per foot up to an average of £1 19s. per foot. Plaintiff wished to have the accounts investigated by the Master in Equity, on the ground that they were complicated, that he was not credited with all the amounts he ought to be credited, and that intricate questions of interest and measurement arose. He also urged that the defendant company had been guilty of neglect in sales of the land, so that instead of obtaining an extra 4s. per foot on the land he received a much less sum. The defence was that the accounts were not complicated, that no intricate questions of interest or measurement arose, and that there was nothing in the case that could not be decided in a court of common law. The defendant company had chosen their remedy, and contended that they were entitled to it.

The injunction was granted on the terms of the plaintiff paying the costs of the common law action up to the granting of the interim injunction, and paying the defendant £327, admitted by him to be due to the defendant company.

D'APICE AND ANOTHER V. M'BRIDE (PART HEARD).

Mr. C. J. Manning and Mr. P. J. Healy, instructed by Messrs. Curtiss and Barry, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Dr. Donovan, instructed by Messrs. Billyard and Andrews, for the defendant.

This was a suit brought by Charles F. L. d'Apice (since deceased) and Joseph B. M. White (surviving plaintiff) against Bernard M'Bride, and the object was to obtain from the Court a decree compelling the defendant to specifically perform a contract with respect to certain property in Oxford-street, purchased by him from the plaintiffs. The defendant claimed that before he was called upon to complete the purchase the plaintiffs should cause a fence to be removed, and he should be put in peaceable possession of all the land he had purchased. The plaintiffs were not entitled, under the terms of the contract of sale, to require him to complete the sale until they were in a position to give up all the land so purchased. If the fence were removed by the plaintiffs, he was ready to complete the sale.

On the case being resumed,

Dr. Donovan, on part of the defendant, contended that if any risk attached to the removal of the fence, it should be undertaken by the plaintiffs. The fence was an act of possession on the part of a third party, and it would be inequitable to cast the burden of taking it away upon the defendant, who was entitled to absolute possession of the land before he completed the purchase.

Mr. C. J. Manning said that the parties who put up the fence had no claim whatever to the land.

His Honor said he presumed there would not be an Equity suit about who should pull down the fence, unless both parties were afraid of further law proceedings if they touched it. Judgment was reserved.

RE SAMUEL LYONS.

Mr. A. Knox (instructed by Mr. F. W. Walker) presented a petition by Samuel Lyons and Claude Lyons for leave to sell a piece of land in George-street and Charlotte-place, known as Lyons-buildings, at the minimum sum of £50,000, the property having been settled by the will of the late Samuel Lyons. His Honor made an order for sale out of Court, the terms to be approved of by the Judge.

PRICE V. THE MERCANTILE LAND, BUILDING, AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

Mr. Cohen applied for an injunction restraining the defendant company from dealing with or issuing a certificate of title on certain land claimed by the plaintiff. Counsel stated that in this case the defendant company had applied to the Registrar-General for a certificate of title of this land, but the plaintiff lodged a caveat against the title being issued, and more than three months after lodging the caveat obtained an order from a Judge of the Supreme Court restraining the defendant and the Registrar-General from issuing or obtaining a certificate of title. Under a recent decision of the Supreme Court, such restraining orders had been held to be bad if obtained after a lapse of three months from lodging the caveat. The plaintiff therefore applied to the Court in its equity jurisdiction for an order. His Honor granted the injunction.

In Chambers.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Foster.)

CANE V. SHEAD AND OTHERS.

Mr. Rich appeared for the defendants, and applied for an order for change of venue from Sydney to Silverton. Mr. C. B Stephen appeared to oppose the application. The action was one brought by the plaintiff, a resident of Broken Hill, against defendants, who are proprietors of a skating rink at the same place, to recover £500 damages for alleged false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, arising out of a charge brought against plaintiff of stealing a pair of skates, the property of defendants. The case was dismissed. An affidavit by defendant Shead was read, which set out that although a commission had been granted on behalf of plaintiff to examine a witness named Ford, the witness was a resident of Broken Hill, and carried on business there, and if the venue were changed there would be no necessity for the commission. The affidavit also set out that if the action were tried in Sydney it would entail great expense upon defendants. The affidavit on the other side stated that if a change of venue were granted a considerable time would elapse before the case was heard. Even if the venue were changed the commission might be necessary, as there was some danger of Ford's evidence being lost.

The order for change of venue to Silverton was made, upon the condition that the commission should be allowed to proceed, and the time to be extended to the 1st March. Costs to be costs in the cause.

In Divorce.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer.)

M'CARTHY V. M'CARTHY.

The decree nisi granted on the 15th May last, on the petition of Mabella Winton M'Carthy, for dissolution of her marriage with Herbert Tiffin Stephen M'Carthy was made absolute.

In Bankruptcy.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Deffell.)

The bankrupts were declared to have passed their public examinations, but were ordered to supply the official assignee with a trading account within 14 days.

Re Arthur Carr. Bankrupt attended, and was declared to have passed his public examination.

MOTION FOR APPROVAL.

Re Emanuel Cantor. This was an application for the approval of a composition of 5s. in the £, and the assessment of the remuneration to the official assignee. Mr. Levy appeared in support of the application, and Mr. H. Davies, instructed by Mr. Bowden, appeared to oppose the composition. Mr. Levy was proceeding to refer to two affidavits which had been filed, when his Honor said that no notice of the filing of the affidavits had been given, and they could not be read. Mr. Davies said that the grounds of objection to granting the application were that the debtor had not kept proper books of account, that he had lived in an extravagant manner, and that under section 19, sub-section 14, of the Act a composition of 5s. in the £ could not be accepted in the present case. He further argued that according to the report of the official assignee the debtor had not been guiltless. He therefore asked that the application should be dismissed with costs. Mr. Levy said that the bankrupt had not been guilty of misconduct as alleged; he had kept books, and could not be accused of extravagant living, because in consequence of not taking stock he did not know the actual state of his affairs when the business began to decline. His Honor said that the course of procedure had been laid down in Lord Esher's judgment, which was clear and definite, and he must dismiss the application, with costs to come out of the estate.

Charles Edward King, 17, no occupation, was charged by warrant with being the bailee of two gold watches and gold albert, valued at about £30, the property of Jacob Behrens, and fraudulently converting the same to his own use. No evidence was taken, and the case was remanded for a week, bail being allowed. The same prisoner was also charged by warrant with obtaining a suit of clothes, valued at £4 7s. 6d., by false pretence, from Robert Crockett. The prisoner was remanded for a week, bail being allowed. Eliza Palmer was charged on remand with stealing three forks and other articles, valued at £5, the property of H. J. Millett. The prisoner was remanded for a week. Margaret Carroll, 24, no occupation, for riotous behaviour in Wexford-street, was fined 20s. levy and and distress, or seven days' imprisonment; and for using indecent language in the parlour of the Australian Hotel, Elizabeth-street, whilst open to the public, was fined £3, or two months' imprisonment. Mr. Dolohery, D.S.M., presided on the Summons side. A young man named Frederick Maxwell was summoned to answer to a charge of using indecent language, and also of throwing stones in Howard-street. For using obscene language, the magistrate imposed a fine of £3, and costs, or in default thereof, one month's imprisonment; and for throwing stones the defendant was fined £2, and costs, levy and distress, or 21 days' imprisonment.

Bail was allowed. John Brennan, 15, charged with having committed a breach of the Industrial Schools Act, was ordered to be sent on board the Vernon. James Dever, 22, labourer, and James M'Guire, 21, were charged with having assaulted Michael Finnian by striking him on the head with a piece of wood. His Worship considered that a grievous assault had been committed, for which he was unable to award an adequate punishment. He, therefore, committed both prisoners to take their trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., dealt with the business in the Summons Court.

Mr. Marsh, S.M., disposed of the business of the Balmain Police Court. Thomas Belbin, for assaulting T. Davidson, was fined £1 and £1 13s. costs, with the option of two months' imprisonment. MAGISTERIAL INQUIRY.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

A magisterial inquiry was held by Mr. J. T. Wilkinson, J.P., at the Coroner's Court, yesterday morning, concerning the death of an apprentice named George Tucker, aged 17, who died at the hospital on the previous day, having been admitted to that institution on April 25, suffering from injuries to his head, caused by a brick falling upon it. Mr. Thorn appeared on behalf of the father of the deceased, and Mr. Rofe represented the contractor. It was shown that on April 11th deceased was going to his work, and while passing a building in Regent-street, Redfern, a brick fell upon his head. He was taken to Prince Alfred Hospital, where his wound was dressed, after which he returned to his home. He was subsequently taken to the Sydney Hospital, where the operation of trephining was performed. On the 6th October he became an out-patient, and on the 31st of the same month he was re-admitted. Dr. T. C. Fisher made a post-mortem examination, and stated that there had been a fracture of the skull. Four abscesses were found in the substance of the brain. The cause of death was abscess on the brain, probably due to the injury to the skull. The brick had been set, and there was nothing to show how it became dislodged. The usual precautions for the protection of foot passengers had been taken. Mr. Wilkinson found that the deceased died of abscess on the brain, which was the result of injuries accidentally received by the fall of a brick.

MEETINGS.

Suttor, J. Watson, Ms.L.C., and Messrs. D. O'Connor, J. R. Street, T. M. Slattery, J. Garrard, A. Kethel, S. Smith, H. Copeland, and J. P. Abbott, Ms.L.A.

THE ADMIRALTY WHARF.

A letter was received from Admiral Fairfax, assenting to the alteration of the site for the proposed Admiralty Wharf, at Woolloomooloo Bay, providing the same facilities would be obtained as accompanied the original site.

THE MIDDLE HARBOUR BRIDGE.

The Hon. H. C. Dangar wrote intimating his desire to give evidence against the bridge over Middle Harbour under the system.

WHARFAGE ACCOMMODATION AT WOOLLOOMOOLOO BAY.

Further evidence was taken in connection with the proposal to build a pier 700ft. long at Woolloomooloo Bay.

Captain W. Robertson said it was desirable in his opinion to have the pier constructed; the present wharfage accommodation was not enough for the trade; the idea struck him as a good one; there was not sufficient accommodation at Circular Quay for all the vessels that would be best suited by berths there; if the proposed wharfage accommodation was made at Cowper Wharf it would improve considerably, and be the means of causing a great many vessels to berth there; the cartage question was an important one, and to the carters trade from Woolloomooloo Bay will be very advantageous.

John Jackson, manager of Government wharfs, was strongly in favour of the proposal, and he did not think it would interfere in any way with the traffic in Woolloomooloo Bay. The witness produced a statement showing the revenue and the number of vessels berthed at Cowper Wharf from 1866 to date:—in 1866 the revenue was £128 15s. 9d., then it fell off to £21 15s. 9d. in the following year, and then increased gradually till 1872, when it reached £308 5s. 2d; this was somewhere about the average, until 1880, when it ran up to £514; in 1881 it was £1433 and £1904 in 1882; in 1884 it went up to £2449 and to £5151 in 1885, but has since fallen off, and the return for the present year up to October gives it at £2807; the largest number of vessels berthed, inclusive coasters, was 666 in 1885.

William Benson, manager of the Wharf Association, opposed the idea, supplying as his reasons the fact that the wharfs are never filled with ships, not even in the busiest part of the year. The accommodation was in excess of the requirements, and therefore there could be no object in constructing this large pier.

Alfred Lamb, wharf-owner, said he was not in favour of the work, because it would increase the accommodation to an extent not required. The present accommodation was ahead of requirements; and in connection with the pier he believed it would interfere materially with the general traffic in Woolloomooloo Bay. A new wharf was being constructed at Pyrmont by private enterprise, and the Government was erecting one at either side of the Pyrmont bridge. Private enterprise was prepared to extend their wharfs as occasion demanded it. It was only during a period of about two months in the year that ships were delayed from getting particular berths. The proposed jetty would block up the Harbour, and he condemned it entirely. The committee then adjourned till next Thursday.

SYDNEY MINISTERS' UNION.

The Christian conference in connection with the Sydney Ministers' Union concluded its sittings yesterday. In the afternoon the question of "The Reasonableness of Prayer" was considered, and papers on the subject were read, by the Rev. Dill Macky on "Prayer in Harmony with the Being of God," by the Rev. Principal Fletcher on "Prayer in Harmony with the Conditions of Man," and by the Rev. T. B. Trees on "The Chief End of Prayer." The evening was devoted to devotion. Mr. J. Kent presided at the afternoon and the Rev. T. B. Trees at the evening sitting.

THE LAND NATIONALISATION LEAGUE.

A meeting of the Sydney branch of the Land Nationalisation League was held on Thursday evening, Mr. E. W. Foxall, vice-president, in the chair. Five new members were elected on the committee. The chairman reported that the sub-committee, appointed at the last meeting to make arrangements for securing permanent head-quarters for the league, had been offered an office—suitable, central, and reasonable on the ground floor in the Clergy House, Phillip-street, and they recommended that the offer should be accepted, and the head-quarters of the league established there. A motion to that effect was carried unanimously. The secretary (Mr. Percy Meggy) reported that he had received for free distribution from Mr. James Ryan, hon. secretary of the campaign fund at Lithgow, a thousand copies of "Land and Taxation," a reprint from the North American Review of a conversation, like a Socratic dialogue modernised, between David Dudley Field and Henry George, together with the address of the Anti-Poverty Society of Toronto, Canada, on the principle of the single tax, re-printed from the Toronto Globe. The committee promised to assist the secretary in the distribution of the leaflet, and a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Ryan for his timely present. The secretary was instructed to write to the newly-formed leagues at Goulburn and Gundaroo, the outcome of Mr. Frank Collins' lecturing tour, and wish them every success.

ARTICLED CLERKS' ASSOCIATION.

The thirtieth general meeting of the Articled Clerks' Association was held on Thursday evening last, in the rooms, Equitable-chambers, Pitt and Park streets. There was a numerous attendance of members and visitors, and the chair was taken by Mr. A. E. Hemsley, solicitor, one of the vice-presidents. The hon. secretary announced that he had received information that, responding to the petition by the association, the Judges had passed a rule to allow of articled clerks presenting themselves for final examination at any time in the last year of their articles. In pursuance of notice given, Mr. J. W. Abigail moved, "That it is desirable to establish an articled clerks' journal," and on the motion being carried the matter was referred to the committee for consideration and report. Upon Mr. Ash's motion also, a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Steel, Howarth (hon. sec.), Abigail, Norris, Rand, H. Brown, and the mover, was appointed to arrange a "mock trial." Mr. Howarth gave notice of motion to reduce the annual subscription for country clerks to 5s. The principal business of the evening was the reading of short papers. Mr. A. B. Paterson, solicitor, read on "The Profession in its relation to the public," submitting certain courses of action which, in his opinion, were necessary to avoid the disfavour and dissatisfaction with which the profession is often regarded. Mr. G. C. Halliday, B.A., solicitor, read on "Married Women's Property Law," in the course of which he strongly advocated radical amendments of the law as to the widow's rights in her husband's property on his death intestate. Mr. E. G. Martyn had a paper on "Lawyers—their use and abuse," dealing candidly with the present position of affairs in professional life. Mr. P. B. Colquhoun read on "The Sources of Law," carefully tracing its origin and describing its development; and Mr. F. R. Cowper, for Mr. H. Peden Steel, read on "Twelfth Night," which lightly and brightly touched on the various beauties of the comedy. Mr. C. C. S. Garling read a paper entitled "Streets and Lanes of Sydney," in which he vigorously treated the great social evil of "larrikinism," suggesting remedial measures, and urging all to lend their interest and assistance to such a serious question. This completed the readings, and after a discussion had taken place, Mr. Hemsley shortly addressed the meeting upon the various subjects, referring particularly to the last.

A meeting of the St. Andrew's Cathedral Young Men's Institute was held on Thursday, 22nd instant, at the Pitt-street schools. In the absence of the president, the Rev. E. C. Beck, Mr. Stokes was voted to the chair. In arranging the programme the committee had set down speeches for this evening. The subjects were therefore drawn by the members at last week's meeting, and included "Thomas Carlyle." "William Beach," "Land Nationalisation," "Is Marriage a Failure?" "Is Queensland justified in her course of action towards Sir H. Blake?" "Should Latin be taught in Public schools?" "Optics," and others. The members spoke in the order their names were drawn by the chairman, 10 minutes being allowed to each. At the conclusion of each speech other members were allowed two minutes each to criticise it. There was a good attendance of members, and a pleasant evening was spent. The next week's meeting will be opened to the friends of St. Andrew's, when Canon Kemmis has kindly undertaken to lecture on the "Life, work, humour, and pathos of Charles Dickens, the apostle of the people."

The weekly meeting of the committee of the City Railway Extension League was held yesterday afternoon. Present—Messrs. R. Teece, in the chair; W. H. Armstrong, R. Miller, W. S. Buzacott, J. Armstrong, J. Mullens, O. C. Beale, and W. Neilley (secretary). It was reported that the petition will be ready for presentation on Wednesday next, with 63,130 signatures, and it was arranged that as many members of the league as can attend shall be present at the Assembly on the occasion of the presentation. It was resolved to forward a circular to each member of the Assembly, giving the analysis of the petition, and informing them of the date of presentation.

The Redfern Literary and Debating Society held a meeting on Wednesday evening in the local town hall, Mr. T. M. Williamson in the chair. There was a good attendance, and after the routine business had been disposed of the debate on the question "Has the stage an elevating tendency?" was opened in the affirmative by Mr. J. Beveridge. After an animated discussion, in which the balance of opinion, was decidedly in the affirmative, a division was taken, and the motion was decided by a large majority in the affirmative.

AURORA AUSTRALIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your telegraphic news of Tuesday it is reported that the above phenomenon was observed the previous evening at Dubbo, and, as in former years, the aurora Australis has been observed to be the precursor of great electrical disturbances in the atmosphere, followed by wet and stormy weather in about three to four weeks after its appearance, I think we may look upon the above aurora as a stormy petrel, giving almost certain warning of the approach of bad weather from the south and therefore opportune in the present drought-stricken state of the country.

In the case of Toy v. Musgrove, in which Mr. Justice Kerferd yesterday refused to grant an application to stay proceedings pending the application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, his Honor stated to-day that his attention had been called to the case M'Swain v. M'Millar, in the Victoria Law Reports, where the Full Court had on certain conditions granted an application to stay proceedings. If he had seen that case before giving his decision on the previous day he would have felt himself constrained not to act against the decision of the Full Court. As the order dismissing the summons to stay execution had not been signed he would refer the case to the Full Court, and he had arranged with the Chief Justice that the arguments be heard before the Full Court some day next week.

The highest price paid was 9¾d. for first-class wool. Competition was spirited, and prices were a penny per lb. better than last year's opening sales.

THE WEATHER.

Summer is apparently coming apace. The change from strong southerly winds to the light north-east airs by day and to westerly breezes at night has been so sudden as to cause the heat to be more oppressive than it otherwise would have been. Certainly yesterday was the warmest day we have had this season. In the very early morning, before dawn, a heavy fog enveloped the harbour, and it was well on in the day before the sun dispersed it. The afternoon was, as stated, very warm indeed, but the evening closed pleasantly cool.

BUSH FIRES IN THE COUNTRY.

ALBION PARK, FRIDAY.

The weather is hot and dry. Dense smoke is overhanging from the extensive fires. The cattle are being fed on bran and chaff, and many are being removed to the mountains. All the herbage is dried up, and there will be no crop. It is a direful outlook. Chaff is £10 per ton, and corn 6s. per bushel. Potatoes are 15s. per cwt. Everything is up to famine prices.

BEGA, FRIDAY.

Bush fires have been burning during the week in many parts of the district. Thousands of acres of grass have been burnt. The town this morning was enveloped in smoke. Altogether it has been the worst day ever experienced. The steamer Bega missed Montague Island yesterday, and just managed to make Tathra. The Oonah had to lay off Eden for some hours on account of the dense smoke, which is all along the coast.

The weather is excessively warm. The water supply is very short. Bush fires are still prevalent.

HAY, FRIDAY.

The weather is fearfully hot, the thermometer registering 135 in the sun and 104 in the shade. There is not the least sign of a change. No less than six deaths have occurred during the last two days. Bush fires have destroyed a good deal of the dry grass on some stations.

PROPOSED SEPARATION OF THE BARRIER DISTRICT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BROKEN HILL, FRIDAY.

This afternoon an informal meeting was held in the Mechanics' Institute, to consider the desirability of separating the district from New South Wales. There were present—Messrs. C. Chapple (in the chair), F. Chapple, John Harde, Lee, H. E. Jones, J. J. Williams, W. J. Cummins, Barrett, P. P. King, Henning, Rakow, Prior, Abbott, and Matters. The meeting had been called by Mr. A. H. Lee. He moved,—"That it is desirable that the whole of the Australian colonies should be united under a federal Government." This was seconded by Mr. Williams, and carried. It was moved and carried, "That the west portion of New South Wales, as seen on the map annexed, be formed into an autonomous division. Mr. Lee was of opinion that it would be better for the Barrier district to have no members in Parliament. Those they had now had never done anything for the district. If they elected others, it should only be those able and willing to advocate and urge the separation movement. The district gave a large revenue, and they got nothing in return. Queensland had separated from the parent colony at a time when her revenue was not nearly so large as that of the Barrier district. It was suggested that the boundary of the new State should be from the 144th meridian along the Lachlan River down to the Murray, and then along to the South Australian boundary. It was finally resolved that the meeting form itself into a committee to carry out the resolutions passed at the meeting, and to form a league, to be called the West Riverina League, to assist in obtaining separation from New South Wales. A number of gentlemen spoke strongly in favour of the league. Another meeting will be held next Friday.

VANMEN AT THE RAILWAY STATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you please allow me also a little space in your paper to call attention to the nuisance caused by the animals attached to these same vans and cabs? The state of the stands is simply filthy. The sickening and horrible stench (to which the combined odours of Centennial Park is a nosegay) is a serious sanitary evil, and in fact the whole approach to the station from George-street, and the space between platforms Nos. 7 and 8, a thorough disgrace to a city like Sydney. It seems strange that no one should have taken the matter up before, considering the immense number of travellers by train; but I suppose the subject itself is too nauseating. I hope that this letter is not like the Redfern station and

GOULBURN, FRIDAY.

The amount promised in this district for the Wesleyan Centennial Fund is £399, a large proportion of which is for the reduction of the debt of the Goldsmith-street Church. The latter sustained some slight injuries, whilst Dr. Sellors was even more fortunate, receiving no hurt worth mentioning.

THE NEWCASTLE COLLIERIES.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

All the collieries were at work this morning except the New Lambton C pit and South Waratah. The former will cavil for places to-day, and go to work on Monday. With regard to the latter, an interview has already taken place between Mr. Clarke, secretary of the Waratah Company, and a deputation of miners, the manager being present. After three hours' discussion, the deputation were informed that the men would start on the prices provided for in the agreement between the associated proprietors and their miners; by this agreement the miners will receive 4s. 7½d. per ton. The deputation was also informed that the directors of the Waratah Company were prepared to allow a board of arbitration as provided for in the agreement to adjudicate and decide what miners shall receive for sticky tops and extra sections of dirt in the seam, the award to take effect from the date of resuming work. The deputation reported the above to the lodge, and it was unanimously resolved that the offer be accepted, subject to the approval of the district. It is fully believed that South Waratah will go to work on Monday, pending the result of arbitration.

The delegate board to-day resolved that the South Waratah miners resume work upon the terms and conditions submitted in the manager's letter. It was resolved that the district officers and delegate interview Messrs. Brooks and Brown, with the view of arriving at a settlement at West Wallsend by conciliation or arbitration. With reference to the motion from the Glebe Lodge re coal trimming, and refusing to cut coal unless trimmed by union men, it was resolved that the motion be sent back to the lodge until such time as the trimmers are affiliated with the Maritime Council. It was resolved that 4500 copies of the new agreement be printed and distributed amongst the lodges. It was also decided that a representative of this association be sent to the Tasmanian Labour Congress, to be held in February. The Great Northern Colliery have contributed £1891 to the strike.

VISIT OF THE PREMIER TO NOWRA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

NOWRA, FRIDAY.

The Premier, Sir Henry Parkes, the Postmaster-General, the Hon. C. J. Roberts, and the Minister for Mines, the Hon. F. Abigail, having accepted the invitation of the people of Shoalhaven to visit their district, set out from Sydney by a train that left Redfern Station at 7.50 a.m. to-day. Mr. Fraser Martin, the member for Shoalhaven, received the Ministers at Redfern, and also welcomed Mr. Shepherd, M.L.C., and Messrs. Stevenson and Hawken, Ms.L.A., who joined the party. At Kiama, the terminus of the Illawarra line, the Ministers and their friends were met by the Mayor of Kiama (Mr. H. F. Noble) and several of the principal inhabitants, and also by Mr. P. H. Morton (hon. secretary of the Nowra banquet committee), and were driven in drags to the Royal Hotel, Kiama, where lunch was waiting. A large deputation, representing the local municipal council, and the inhabitants generally made several requests, the principal of which was that the railway, which now terminates at a distance of more than a mile from the town, be extended to the town. They also desired that a branch line should be constructed connecting Jamberoo with Kiama; that a new and more central site should be granted for the School of Arts, and that the Government should place a sum on the estimates to assist the people in making public baths at Kiama.

SIR HENRY PARKES briefly replied, and promised that the matters should have consideration, though, as will be seen below, he made further reference to the extension of the railway.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, at which the Mayor presided, the toast of the Queen was given with the singing of the National Anthem.

In replying to the toast of the Ministers, SIR HENRY PARKES referred to his having represented the district of which Kiama formed part, many years ago in Parliament, and assured them that, although representing another constituency now, they might consider him one of their members. In regard to the extension of the railway to Kiama which now stopped at a graveyard, for what reason he did not know, it was to him a puzzle that it had not been brought into the town. As far as he could influence the Government the railway would as speedily as possible be brought to the town, or the Government would know the reason why. It seemed to him barbarous that the railway should be brought within a mile or two of the town and stop there. (Cheers.)

Messrs. Roberts and Abigail also replied.

The toast of the Mayor and the prosperity of the district, coupled with the name of Mr. Fraser Martin, who was thanked for the good services he had done to the district, was proposed by Sir Henry Parkes, and replied to by the Mayor and Mr. Martin.

The party were next driven to Gerringong over a very rough and dusty road, the dust being something extraordinary owing to the excessive dryness of the country, and here another banquet was in readiness in the School of Arts. Sir Henry Parkes and the other visitors were welcomed by Alderman Andrew Nelson, the Mayor, and the other councillors and prominent inhabitants. The Mayor presented to the Premier the following address:—"To the Hon. Sir Henry Parkes, G.C.M.G., &c. Sir,—We, the Mayor and aldermen of the Gerringong Municipal Council, on behalf of the residents of the municipality, desire to give you a very cordial welcome to Gerringong, and tender you the best hospitality that the short time available will admit of. We esteem it a favour and privilege to have this opportunity of showing our appreciation of one who, in our opinion, has done more to advance the best interests of this great colony than any other person who has occupied the honourable and responsible position which you now hold, and we trust that you may long be spared to direct the destinies of this country as leader of a wise and good Administration. Wishing you a pleasant trip through the Illawarra district, we remain your obedient servants. (Signed) ANDREW NELSON, Mayor." Sir Henry Parkes, in reply, said he received the address with very great pleasure, and felt very grateful for the kind reference they had made to himself and to his Administration. The toast of "The Ministry" at the banquet was given by Mr. A. Campbell, J.P., to which Sir Henry Parkes responded, thanking them cordially on behalf of himself and his colleagues for the manner in which their health was drunk. This Government had, from the first, studiously disregarded sentiment or special interests, and had tried to keep in view the general welfare of the country. (Cheers.) They had frequently displeased their friends by refusing to do what they required. (Cheers.) We lived in time fraught with great changes. There was a spirit abroad stirring society, and a change in the developments of our great national life would be brought about probably before many were aware of it. He felt that this colony was bound to take the lead in this interesting new world. (Hear, hear.) Without showing a want of appreciation of the neighbouring colonies, he had to say that New South Wales was bound to advance beyond her sisters. (Hear, hear.) He had the ambition, and if God permitted him, would take part in bringing about the consolidation of the colonies into one. (Hear, hear.) But he had a deeper and warmer ambition than that; namely, to advance the true interests of this, the parent colony. (Hear, hear.) He again thanked them very much. Other toasts were proposed and honoured.

The party continued their drive until arriving at Nowra Bridge, where an address was presented as follows:—

"To the Hon. Sir Henry Parkes, M.P., G.C.M.G., Premier and Colonial Secretary of New South Wales.—Honorable Sir,—On this, the occasion of your first visit to the district of Shoalhaven, we have great pleasure in extending to you the hand of cordial welcome and of personal regard. To you, as the statesman who placed on the Statute Book of the colony the Public Instruction Act, which is designed to secure, as an inviolable right, to the children of all classes of people, alike in lonely bush or crowded city, the blessings of a liberal education, we, as partakers of this boon—as evidenced by the numerous Public schools established in this large if yet but sparsely populated district—tender you our tribute of grateful acknowledgement. As the Minister who brought into operation the Municipalities Act, we owe to your admirable prescience, and to your regard for the intellectual enlightenment and social improvement of the masses, the several valuable free public libraries in the district; and to you also through the same measure the improved means of highway communication which link together the various centres of local population. Without attempting within the limits of an address of welcome to name the numerous measures which you have passed into law, designed to improve the material and social condition of the people, we would express our warm approval of your determination to protect individual rights and to preserve the weak from the violence of anarchists during the recent labour disturbances at Newcastle, reflecting as your decision in that painful juncture did, the same noble principle of regard for the conservation of individual liberty which has characterised the action of British statesmen in wielding the strong arm of the nation to guard thus one of her most sacred and honoured traditions, whether its preservation was represented in the liberation of a few captives in Magdala or a beleaguered city in India. We would, in conclusion, dear Sir Henry, express our ardent hope that you may long be preserved to guide, as you have hitherto done, the destinies of this section of the Anglo-Saxon race in the new home of their adoption; and to continue to present to them, in political action and in private conduct, the noble precedents and teachings of public life and personal duty which abound in the past and in the contemporary history of the British people. Signed on behalf of the Municipalities of Nowra, Numba, and Central Shoalhaven, and on behalf of the magistracy and the public."

SIR HENRY PARKES returned thanks, and commented in reference to his action in regard to the Newcastle riots. He said he was always opposed to any set of men who happened to have power seeking in an arbitrary spirit to impose their will on their fellow-men. That appeared to him the very essence of tyranny, and showed that the persons so exercising that power had not risen to a proper sense of the value of their liberties. If occasion demanded it he would never fail to take a similar course.

A procession, consisting of Oddfellows, the temperance society, and school children, dozens of buggies, and numerous ladies and gentlemen on horseback, escorted the Premier and party to Nowra township, which was gaily decorated with flags, and in the evening illuminated with Chinese lanterns. On the way to Nowra bridge a short stay was made at Berry, and refreshments were taken at the Great Southern Hotel.

The banquet in the evening at Nowra was on a very large scale, and was held at the Agricultural Hall, which was decorated and illuminated very prettily. The chair was taken by Mr. E. E. Seccombe (Mayor), and the vice-chairs by Messrs. James Fraser and James Monaghan, Js.P. There were also present the Hons. C. J. Roberts, F. Abigail, P. L. C. Shepherd, M.L.C., Messrs. Martin, Stevenson, Hawken, Ms.L.A.; Mr. James Warden, J.P., late member for the district; Mr. H. G. Morton, Dr. King, Messrs. C. Blackett, D. M'Lean, Z. G. Bice, S. Elyard, James Campbell, Js.P.; J. H. Nisbett, P.M.; D. Boag, Mayor of Milton; James Ryan, Mayor of Numba; and other gentlemen numbering about 200. A large number of ladies were present as spectators.

The usual loyal toasts having been honoured, Mr. JAMES MONAGHAN proposed "The Ministry." He considered that the Ministry had done a great deal of good, and he only hoped they would be successful in passing a local Government bill and a land bill before long. (Applause.)

SIR HENRY PARKES, who was received with prolonged cheering, said he was sure the members of the Government who were present with him would feel grateful for the unanimous and cordial manner in which they had drunk the toast. He thought that if any Government was ever constitutionally in office it was the present Government. Early last year the Governor asked him to undertake the task of forming an administration, and he told the Governor that he could only undertake the task of forming an administration by having in his hands the power to dissolve Parliament, and the Governor, with the lively sense of the obligations of constitutional Government for which he was characterised, at once placed the power in his hands. From the treatment he received from the then existing Parliament he found it was necessary for him to give the advice to his Excellency to dissolve the Parliament, and when an appeal to the constituencies was made he spoke in his address to the electors of St. Leonards as plainly as a man could speak in the English language. He told them that the first object of his Government would be to repeal the Custom duties which had just then been passed, and which, in the opinion of the Government, were calculated to embarrass the commerce of the country without any corresponding advantage to the people. (Applause.) He told them he would have the flag of free trade flying at every hustings in the country—(applause)—and the result was a majority of two to one in the new Parliament. (Loud applause.) That majority, with the exception of one or two backsliders, was now supporting the Government, and he ventured to think that the Government were entitled to that support. Their opponents frequently said the Government came into office to do two or three special things; to wipe out the deficit, for instance, created in a very quick time by their opponents. (Laughter). Wiping it out meant imposing severe taxation on the people, and it was a far wiser course to reduce it gradually without placing oppressive burdens on the country. (Applause). They were told that they came in specially to retrench, and to adjust the finances. They came into power because the people of this country had faith in his guidance, assisted by his colleagues, and they came in to rectify the past, to establish sound principles of Government, and to restore contentment and stability to the great interests of the country. It was true they had retrenched and very considerably reduced the public expenditure; it was true that they had repealed those obnoxious measures against which their hands were raised, and that they had carried into solidity of legislation several measures of the utmost importance to this country. Several measures had been mentioned by the proposer of the toast which the Government were very anxious of carrying through Parliament. He would allude to only one, and that was called the Local Government Bill. What was meant by this measure was a bill to provide for conferring on the people in large and compact districts the power of doing every Governmental act that could be done by the residents, such as the power of constructing bridges, making roads and river improvements, erecting necessary buildings for public purposes, and the power of doing any of those things which were necessary for the convenience and the progress of the districts, because local inhabitants knew best what was wanted, and could carry the work out more effectively and economically. This bill had been prepared, and was ready to be dealt with by Parliament. The reason such measures had not been dealt with in the Parliament was that some of their opponents seemed to think Parliament was intended for no other purpose than to allow them to hear their own disagreeable voices. (Laughter and applause.) It was only the previous day two gentlemen, who had already spoken on the financial debate, spoke again, and took up the time of the House from 5 o'clock till 9.30. (Cries of "Oh, oh.") This not only consumed the time of the House, but, by wearying members and driving them out, demoralised Parliament. If members addressed themselves to the question fairly and honestly, and without a desire to waste time, this very Local Government Bill might have been passed last session. (Hear, hear.) The Government at present had convened Parliament avowedly to bring the public finances within the limits of the Constitution, and to bring Parliament together early next year to pass as many measures as possible before the Parliament came to an end. Some of the principal members of the Opposition had intimated their desire to co-operate with the Government in doing this, but they had no control whatever over the present Opposition; and if the leaders assented to a sensible, course the other members of the Opposition would not obey their chosen leaders. They were threatened at present with wanton delay in the simple course pointed out, and which it was desirable for Parliament to take. It might be that they would have to try conclusions whether the majority representing the people of the country should rule, or whether an unintelligible minority should overpower that majority. (Applause.) They were confronted by a party that felt it part of their political creed to blacken the colony in the eyes of the world, and make us appear a miserable people, whereas we were amongst the happiest in the world. The Premier then entered on the subject of free trade and protection, comparing this colony with Victoria, with America, and other countries, and pointed out that under free trade New South Wales had gone steadily along until she was now ahead of all the colonies. His object was to make New South Wales a truly free and great country—(oh)—and he trusted that we might be long connected with the old country, but it was perfectly consistent with the maintenance of that connection to assert to the utmost limits our own freedom. We were entitled to manage our own affairs in our own way, and though mistakes had occasionally been made, we had managed them well, and responsible government had not been a failure in those colonies. (Hear, hear.) After alluding to the subject of enfranchising women, the Premier concluded by again thanking the ladies and gentlemen present for the reception they had given the toast of the Ministry. (Cheers.)

Mr. ABIGAIL responded, and said that the miners, numbering in all some 20,000 men, and representing, with their families, upwards of 100,000, deserved every encouragement in their industry. As far as he could, it would be his pleasure to introduce legislation which would have that effect. (Loud applause.)

Mr. ROBERTS also responded.

The other toasts were "The Parliament," proposed by Mr. James Fraser, J.P., and replied to by Mr. Shepherd, M.L.C., Mr. N. Hawken, and Mr. R. Stevenson, Ms.L.A.; "Our Member," proposed by the chairman and replied to by Mr. Fraser Martin, who received an ovation; "The agricultural, commercial, and mining interests of the district," proposed by Sir Henry Parkes and replied to by Messrs. J. Monaghan, W. Kennedy, and J. M'Lean. "The Press," proposed by Mr. P. H. Morton.

The arrangements of the demonstration were well carried out under the direction of the hon. secretary, Mr. H. H. Morton.

To-morrow the Premier will be banqueted at Berry, where he intends to make an important speech.

MAYORAL BANQUET AT NEWCASTLE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

The Mayor of Newcastle, Mr. H. Buchanan, gave a mayoral banquet this evening at the Lyceum Hall, Newcastle. There were 150 guests, and it was the largest municipal banquet ever given in this city. His Worship the Mayor presided, and on the right of the chairman were the Rev. Canon Selwyn, Vicar-General, and all the aldermen of Newcastle; on the left were Messrs. Alexander Brown, J.P., H. Stokes, J.P., and W. Logan, Collector of Customs. The vice-chairman was Mr. Clarence H. Hannell, the shipping master, supported by Messrs. Henson, J.P., and R. Cheek (Gibbs, Bright, and Co.). Amongst the guests were Messrs. T. Croudace, J.P., Colonel Airey, Lieutenants Morris and Kyngdon, P.A., Mr. J. Mair, P.M., Messrs. W. A. Orr, W. B. Sharp, J. Wood, J.P., T. Brooks, J.P., J. Higgs, M. Halligan, A. Watt, W. Sidney, J. Scholey (Mayor of Waratah), A. Sheddon (Mayor of Wickham), T. Croudace, J.P., &c. Before proposing the customary loyal toasts, the Mayor explained that the banquet was not only given for the purpose of meeting his fellow citizens and to spend a friendly evening, but also to commemorate the termination of one of the greatest struggles between capital and labour that ever was witnessed. After the loyal toasts and "The Governor," apologies were read from Messrs. James Fletcher, M.L.A., J. Creer, M.L.A., and R. B. Wallace, J.P. (all unavoidably engaged in Sydney). J. C. Ellis, M.L.A., James Curley, and others. Mr. Alex. Brown, J.P., then proposed "The Parliament of New South Wales" in an effective and yet pleasant speech. He deprecated the force of circumstances that had sent such a number of road and bridge members to Parliament. The question now always asked of members when seeking re-election was not "Have you carried on the useful legislation for the country?" but "How much money have you got for our electorate?" If he had not got much, he was sent about his business. The time had come when this road-and-bridge system should be done away with, and municipalities allowed to raise and spend money in their own boundaries. (Applause.) There were no members of Parliament present, and the toast was responded to by Messrs. Bromily, Creer, and John Norton. The next toast was "Peace and Prosperity to Newcastle and the District," given by Mr. H. Stokes, J.P., who congratulated the company upon the close of hostilities, and made an earnest appeal to all present to invoke mercy from the Government for the misguided men now in gaol. Alderman T. Cox, J.P., also spoke to the toast, which was responded to by Mr. R. Coundry the miners' chairman, who had a very warm reception; also by Mr. J. Miller, late chairman of the Eight-hour Demonstration. The remaining toasts were—"The Army and Navy," proposed by Dr. C. A. Morgan, and responded to by Colonel Airey, who made special reference to Newcastle, and the necessity for a proper system of defence works for the port, containing as it did such an amount of wealth. "Municipal Institutions" was proposed by Mr. Thos. Brooks, J.P., and responded to by Aldermen J. R. Rodgers and C. Christie. "The Land We Live in" was proposed by Mr. C. H. Hannell, J.P., and responded to by Mr. T. Croudace. "The Commercial Institutions of Newcastle," proposed by Mr. J. Wood, J.P., and responded to by Messrs. W. B. Sharp and M. A. Anderson. "The Ladies" and "The Press" concluded the proceedings, which were very enthusiastic, and did not terminate till a late hour. It was admitted to be the most successful gathering held here for many years.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

We have received Part 34 of the Picturesque Atlas of Australasia, continuing the descriptive story of New Zealand. This part is perhaps the finest in point of illustration that has yet appeared, the scenery of New Zealand offering special opportunities for striking pictorial effects. The frontispiece is a beautifully-presented view of Milford Sound, by Schelt, and all through the number are to be found splendid pictures of the water and mountain scenery with which the island colony is so favoured.

We have also received a re-publication of an exposition of the true doctrine of the Church of England on Baptismal Regeneration, written in 1868 by Charles James Perry, in reply to the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

FATAL FIRE AT BOURKE.

AN INFANT BURNED TO DEATH.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BOURKE, FRIDAY.

A fatal fire occurred this afternoon in a house occupied by Mrs. Brent and another woman and several children. It seems that the women were washing at the rear of the building at about 4 o'clock, when suddenly flames were observed issuing from the roof. There were three children inside, one five years old, another two years, and the third two weeks. The two former were rescued with difficulty, one being burned, but it was impossible to get near the infant in the cradle, and when later on the fire burnt itself out, the remains were found, only the trunk remaining. The Bourke Fire Brigade were promptly on the scene, but owing to some fault when the water was turned on the hose burst in two places, which delayed getting a stream of water on the fire till a new hose belonging to the council had been procured. As it happened, had everything gone well with the brigade their best efforts could not have stayed the fire, as the building was one mass of flames in a few minutes. The building is believed to have been insured. The public are freely criticising the fiasco caused by the mishaps to the hose, considerable discussion having recently taken place regarding the efficiency of the brigade. Orders are now in hand for greatly increasing the appliances of the brigade.

THE ALLEGED NUISANCE AT REDFERN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Referring to a letter which appeared in the columns of the S. M. Herald on 21st instant, signed "John Rowe," I will feel obliged if you will give space to the following facts, in justice to the aldermen of this borough, to whom Mr. Rowe erroneously attributes the blame in connection with the nuisance of which he complains; and as the subject is one which should interest the community generally during the progress of the sewerage scheme throughout the suburban districts, I trust you will not consider this too great a trespass. The facts of the case are: 1. That the branch sewerage is being carried out entirely by the Government Sewerage Department, this council merely having the privilege of suggesting any slight deviation from the plan which may be considered a means of saving unnecessary trouble and expense to the ratepayers, and be otherwise as effective as the original plan; and in justice to the department, I may here be permitted to state that any suggestions in this respect have invariably received due consideration. 2. This council, with a view of expediting the sewerage scheme within this borough, and abolishing the existing abominations, viz., cesspits, pans, &c., borrowed a sum of money on the London market (£50,000), £30,000 of which has been placed at the disposal of the Government to be entirely devoted to that object. The result is that branch sewers are already constructed in portions of the borough, and are being so rapidly and systematically carried on in other portions that within 12 months the whole of the borough will be reticulated with sewerage—a work which had the council not to a great extent assisted the Government would without doubt have not yet been commenced. 3. The nuisance complained of by Mr. Rowe emanates from a portion of the work which this council has not the power to deal or interfere with, but which has been the subject of repeated complaints made to the Government Department by this council, to bear out which statement I have appended the last of a series of letters on the subject, and reply thereto, which I ask you to be good enough to insert immediately following my letter. It will thereby be seen that this council has done everything in its power to overcome the nuisance of which Mr. Rowe complains, and that that gentleman would only have acted fairly towards this council had he acknowledged this, as I am credibly informed that the officer in charge of this work has been endeavouring to make arrangements with Mr. Rowe, with a view of dealing with this particular manhole in a manner suggested in my letter which follows, and Mr. Rowe is the last person who should complain of dilatoriness on the part of this council. Trusting that this will have the effect of removing whatever censure your readers may have felt inclined to attach to this council after perusing Mr. Rowe's letter, and that it will testify as to the anxiety (on the part of the aldermen as a body) manifested in endeavouring to improve the sanitary condition of this borough, which in other respects will bear favourable comparison with any other as far as the general state of its works are concerned,

I am, &c.,
R. W. GRIERSON, Council Clerk.

Town Hall, Redfern, November 23.

"Town Hall, Redfern, 5th November, 1888.

"Sir,—I have the honour, by direction, to again refer to the objectionable and dangerous method of permitting the gases which emanate from the sewage matter passing through the sewers laid in this borough to escape from gratings placed in various streets at the street level. Numerous complaints have been made by persons residing in the vicinity of these gratings, and this council has caused inquiries to be made, and the reports have fully borne out all that has been urged against this system. I am directed to suggest the advisability of devising means for conducting the gases to, and permitting them to escape from, a considerable altitude, as otherwise the sewerage scheme will be more dangerous to health, and a greater nuisance, than that which it is intended to abolish. Trusting this will receive your immediate attention, as during the summer months the odours would be almost intolerable,

"I have the honour, &c.,

"Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 5th instant with reference to the offence caused by the escape of sewage gas through the street gratings of the sewers, and suggesting the advisability of conducting the gases to and allowing them to escape at a considerable height, I have the honour to inform you that the matter has already received attention, and a clause has been inserted in the Amended Sewerage Act which provides a power, which the Government has not hitherto had, to effect this.

PRAYER FOR RAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—We have had many letters in your paper in reference to prayer for rain, but among them all, I think that of Mr. Thos. Miller, in yesterday's issue, strikes the true chord. He would have a day set apart by the Government to supplicate Almighty God to send us such rain as we need in this, our present distress. I would now suggest that our various churches petition the Government to this effect. I am sure the petitions would not lack signatures. Trusting to see some prominent gentlemen take this matter up,

I am, &c., F. JOHNSON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I see in this morning's paper that one of your correspondents suggests prayer to the Almighty in regard to the present drought. Mr. Moles says that if rain does not come early there will be neither cattle nor crops, and adds, "It seems extraordinary that in this Christian country steps have not been taken to have united prayer." He says, "Let sceptics scoff at the idea of prayer;" and cites the model prayer of the Great Teacher as an example of what we are instructed to do, and concludes by remarking that "asking the Great Lawmaker to put certain laws in force is not the same as asking him to act in opposition to those laws." Of course not; and to doubt the efficacy of prayer is altogether opposed to the plain teaching of the Master; but he said, also, "work," and during the history of our race we were instructed—commanded to do what was possible with our talents and opportunities, to do this with all our might, and then expect a blessing, as we could legitimately ask for one. A certain people were instructed to "stand still," and see what great thing He would do for them, but their fathers and forefathers had done His will, had believed Him and followed Him "all their days," and those people were assured that even if they offended, as they, like ourselves, often did, when they returned to their allegiance He would recompense with a blessing. Let us see how it stands with ourselves. We occupy some of the finest country in the world, and have or enjoy a climate almost as good as could be made "to order." In the average of years we have almost as much rain and water as we require; but there are peculiarities and irregularities as to climate and the mean rainfall, and we may suppose fixed laws which we may not alter. The result is, as it has doubtless ever been in Australia, that the rain falls in such large, and we may add unseasonable, quantities as to be far and away beyond our requirements often, and we allow it to run away uselessly—ruinously, while we know that we could keep a very great deal, perhaps 25 per cent. of it, for future use if we tried. We know also that by storing as much as possible we should prevent floods very largely, while we increase the probabilities of underground supplies. We do nothing of this. No sooner do we have rain than we dread floods. Then the dry seasons come, as they have probably come during all time, only now and then somewhat drier than usual, when we cry out like one of old "Save or we perish," while He practically replies "Serve you right; why don't you use the talent in the shape of the knowledge you have and the opportunities you possess? You can if you care to do it provide largely against droughts by saving and storing water for domestic purposes, for stock, for industries, and for watering certain portions or tracts of country. In the cold countries many of you or your fathers came from, and elsewhere, provision has to be made for long weary winter months. In Australia, on the contrary, you have practically no time during the year when you cannot grow or produce most things by the exercise of ordinary knowledge and the common sense you have been blessed with. Exercise these to the utmost, and when you have done this come to me, and if there is anything I have omitted in your behalf, I will see if it is desirable to do it for you." If we pray at all, let us pray not only for present relief, but that we may cast off our apathy, thoughtlessness, and selfishness, and get rid of all hindrances to our working with a will to prevent or mitigate effects of floods or droughts, and let the motto be "work." This is a good time to impress it.

I am, &c., COMMON SENSE.

Our London cable message shows that the Bank of England reserve amounted to £10,998,000, a decrease for the week of £702,000; but the proportion to liabilities was 40 per cent. as against 38½ per cent. last return. The advance in freights of 2s. 6d. per ton referred to in our yesterday's issue has been established, the details being furnished in our cable news.

The case of what is regarded as a defective bill of lading has been brought under the notice of the Chamber of Commerce by a formal letter to the secretary. The complainant states that he has been seriously prejudiced by the non-delivery of goods by a steam vessel from England on his presentation of what he regarded as a bill of lading, but what he has been advised by his solicitor is only a receipt acknowledging the delivery of goods for shipment by a steamer, with, however, a qualifying clause that they may be sent by some other vessel. The bill of lading question seems to be fruitful of trouble, though much of it would be avoided by more attention on the part of shippers to the character of the documents they receive on delivering their goods to the vessels. At the same time a more exact contract should, if possible, be obtained.

In the Import markets the general report is that business is extremely quiet, and until the drought is broken up no improvement can be looked for. Traders are buying nearly all lines of goods most sparingly, even in the case of such as are so far below cost that when they have to buy again they will almost certainly have to pay higher prices. There is a total absence of the confidence which would stimulate justifiable speculation. Merchants weeks ago bought iron in anticipation of the rise which higher cost and freights suggested; but the prices though slightly firmer have not responded to the rise. The situation is not improved by the change in affairs in Victoria. Until lately Melbourne was buying freely from our merchants. That source of relief for our overstocked market has been almost totally dried up, while the drought in Queensland has also prejudiced the customary demand for goods for that quarter. The much higher prices payable for grain and hay and some other descriptions of farm produce also tend to reduce the demand for imported merchandise. The advance in the bank rates of course aggravates the traders' position, which must be regarded as less satisfactory than it has been for some time past. The comparative smallness of the country trade is generally commented on, but in the present state of the crops, almost ruined by the drought, and the heavy losses of stock, country storekeepers, with the limited prospective demand, and the fact that they will have to carry a considerable weight of credit for the coming season, can hardly be expected to do otherwise than buy cautiously. Their own interests and the interests of our merchants necessitate a diminished trade, if it is to be sound. There was a further market advance in the price of flour: some holders have raised their quotations from £13 10s. to £14, and even £15 was quoted for two of the best brands of roller flour. There is a demand for both flour and wheat for the country districts, and up to 5s. 6d. has been paid for best samples of New Zealand wheat, Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, reporting the sale of 1461 bags at from 4s. 8d. to 5s. 6d. There was rather more inquiry for tea, and among transactions we note sales of about 200 half-chests at 38s. to 40s., and a smaller line at 50s. Coffee in limited request, the market being steady at 10½d. for No. 1 Ceylon Plantation. Barry's chicory, 2½d. Epps's cocoa, 1s. 5½d.; Taylor's, 1s. 3½d.; Van Houten's, 3s. 6d. For dried fruits there was a moderate inquiry. Currants, old fruit 4¾d., new 4¾d.; elemes, old 4¾d., new up to 5½d.; sultanas, 5½d. to 5¾d.; dates, 2½d.; figs, 7s., in 1lb. boxes. 50 cases Moor Park canned fruits placed at 11s. 6d. for apricots, and 12s. 6d. for peaches. Fresh shipments of rice have kept the market well supplied, and the demand is met at £11 10s. to £12 10s. for the lower grades, and from £13 10s. to £13 15s. for fine table. Sago and tapioca, 3¾d. to 3¾d. Pepper, white, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 2d.; black, 8½d. to 9d. Condensed milk, 6s. 4½d. for Dairymaid, 7s. to 7s. 3d. for Gold Medal. Rock salt, dearer, 90s. being quoted; coarse is worth from 77s. 6d. to 80s. In fish there is very litle doing, quotations being almost nominal. Tinned salmon is worth 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d., bulk 4½d. to 4¾d.; sardines, worth 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d., in quarters, and 6s. 3d. to 6s. 9d. in halves. Lobsters are scarce, and quoted at 8s. 3d. to 8s. 6d.; oysters, 5s. 3d. Fresh herrings are unobtainable, 5s. to 5s. 3d. is the range of quotations; kippered, best brands, 8s. 3d.; others, from 7s. to 7s. 3d.; kerosene oil from 11d. for low test to 13d. for high; raw and boiled oil, 2s. 10d. to 3s. in drum, according to brand; castor done at 2s. 10d. At Calcutta the market was higher, say 2s. 4½d., c.f.i. China still commanding fair prices, say 3s. 6d. to 3s. 8d.; the lower figure being asked for forward delivery. American turpentine is dearer, 2s. 9d. being quoted. In jute goods woolpacks are moving off at 1s. 10½d. to 1s. 11d. A parcel of Dundees quitted at 3s. 3d., the market being a trifle easier on the week. Cornsacks are also lower, sales being made at 6s. Bran bags, 4s. 9d. Messrs. Ernsthausen and Co. write from Calcutta under date October 22, that the market for jute was rather quieter. There had been an inquiry for forward woolpacks, 2s. c.f.i., was the quotation: cornsacks, 6s. 3d., c.f.i. The metal trade is quiet. Galvanised iron is moving off in small lots at from £19 to £20. Sheet lead selling at from £18 10s. Fencing wire dull of sale at £9 10s. for No. 8, and £10 10s. for No. 10. I C Coke tinplates are quoted at 16s. 3d. to 16s. 6d., according to quality. Wire nails quoted at 12s., some lots having been forced off at a lower price. Muntz metal, 9½d. Messrs. John Keep and Son have been advised by cable by their Birmingham house that marked bar iron has advanced to £7 10s. at works, and freight has advanced 2s. 6d. per ton. The business done in liquids has been mostly in small lines. The prices asked for the first of the new brew ale now coming to hand, consequent on the great increase in freights, has checked business. Bottled ale in moderate request at from 8s. to 10s. 6d. in quarts, and 5s. to 7s. 3d. in pints. Pig and Foster's stout moving off at 9s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. Hennessy's case brand, single star, 35s.; three star, 48s. 3d. to 48s. 6d. A parcel of Sazerac brandy placed. Rum is scarcely so dear. Rather more inquiry noticed for wine, with fair sales of port. Drugs are dull of sale, and without change in value. A parcel of 2000 casks of Levitt's Castle cement placed to arrive, the market for this article remaining very firm.

There has been a very marked advance in grain and most descriptions of farm produce, and prices are now much higher than usual at this time of the year, with it is thought every likelihood of their being higher if rain does not fall very soon. Wheat has gone up 6d. per bushel within a fortnight, and is now quoted at 5s. 6d. to 5s. 8d. Since Monday bran has advanced from 16d. to 18d., pollard from 14d. to 15d., chaff from £7 to £10 per ton, oats from 3s. 2d. to 4s. per bushel, maize from 4s. to 5s. Lucerne has gone up 10s. per ton, being now quoted at £5 10s. to £6. Oaten hay has advanced still more, and is now quoted as high as £10 10s. per ton.

At the wool sales to-day business was brisk, and the sale of about 5500 bales is mentioned in the following reports which have been supplied:—

Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Limited, Sydney, at their 15th sale of the season to-day, brought forward a catalogue of 5300 bales, and report having sold at auction and privately 4000 bales. The attendance of buyers was large and representative, and competition good for all lots above medium quality. Prices generally were on a par with late rates, buyers having latterly discounted any advance expected at the November London sales, fixed to commence on the 27th instant. Lambswool, with the exception of good free lots, was difficult of sale, and in little favour. Scoured wools, of which a considerable quantity was offered, sold well, and for the small proportion of washed fleece submitted, good competition also ruled. No superior wools were offered in any section, but good average greasy sold to 9¼d., good scoured to 17d., and medium washed fleece to 12d. per lb. The principal sales effected were in greasy:—H | Cucumgilliga, 31 bales at 9¼d.; ZRZ, 55 at 9¼d.; EHL in block, 51 at 9d.; Pinedeane over DP, 21 at 9d.; Springvale, 23 at 8¾d.; WS | Y, 20 at 8½d.; GM | Baldhill, 111 at 8¾d.; PXP, 22 at 8¾d.; 88 | G&HS | Bathurst, 15 at 9d. In scoured, 88 | G&HS | Curranyalpa, 80 bales 1st at 17d., 13 E. at 16½d., 44 1st pieces at 14¾d.; UP3, 9 combing E. at 16½d., 14 2nd clothing at 14½d., 16 1st pieces at 14d.; TMY, 21 1st pieces at 14½d.; Burrenbilla, 9 combing at 15½d., 12 clothing at 14¾d., 35 1st pieces at 13¾d., 14 bellies at 10½d., 11 2nd pieces 11½d.; washed fleece, TN | K, 11 at 12d; other lots selling proportionately well.

Messrs. J. H. Geddes and Co. report:—At our sale to-day we submitted a catalogue of 2550 bales greasy and scoured wools, but owing to the large quantities coming forward we decided, in the interests of our constituents, and at the special request of the purchasers, to only offer the greasy wool for competition, withholding the scoured until to-morrow. Our selection of greasy wools, although including no superior or high-quality samples, comprised some important and attractive medium parcels from the north and south-western districts, the principal being the latter portion of the fine Gasawilla clip from Gunnedah, and some fair-conditioned samples from the Yass and Young districts; the bright, light appearance, however, usually associated with high-class Southern wools being wanting in the latter samples. Competition was keen, more especially for the better class, and suggests favourable news of the opening on Tuesday of the November sales in London. We sold 1530 bales, our principal lots being:—Gasawilla, 151 bales first combing at 8¾d., 45 first clothing at 8d., 25 second combing at 8½d., 15 second lambs at 5¾d., 6 B. lambs at 4d.; Rosevale, 60 of greasy at 8¾d., 23 at 7¾d., 8 at 7¾d.; Rocky Glen, 14 greasy at 8¾d.; WJC, 15 at 8d.; BMT over Marengo, 7 at 8¾d.; JHK, 16 at 8d.; B over Tre, 39 at 8¾d.; Angle over W, 32 at 7¾d.; W. PRODUCE SALES.

John Bridge submitted very heavy catalogues of hides, tallow, and wattle bark to-day. Tallow showed further improvement, especially on middling qualities. The export inquiry ruled firm at £27 10s to £28 10s for good to prime; fair qualities, £26 10s to £27; medium, £25 10s to £26; low quality, £21 to £24 10s. 106 casks were sold under excellent competition at these rates. Hides: The supply of heavies was altogether short of requirements, and values firmed accordingly, 3½d to 3¾d being readily obtained for all offered, extra heavy in some instances reaching 4½d, one line 4¼d; medium weights were rapidly taken, at 3d to 3¼d; lights ruled rather dull at 2¾d to 2¾d; extreme lights were dull at same money; dry hides neglected at 2½d to 3d; damaged hides next to unsaleable at 2d to 2½d, with no prospect of improving; 1517 were placed satisfactorily. Calfskins, &c., a shade firmer, to 3s 2d; yearlings, to 6s 3d; horsehides to 5s 11d. Wattle bark ruled extremely high, a very large demand existing. He cleared his catalogue, 1311 bags. Prime, £9 10s to £10; good, £9; fair, £8 10s; medium, £8; light, £7 to £7 10s; low quality, £6 15s to £8 10s.—[Advt.]

for Biliousness, Constipation, and Inaction of the Liver.

Dr. Morgan, in his work on the Derangements of the Stomach and Liver, in speaking of this remedy, says:—"I know of no medicine within the wide range of either the Allopathic or Homœopathic Materia Medica, that exercises so direct and beneficial an influence over a torpid condition of the liver as this drug. It has in my hands proved to be the veritable blue pill of the vegetable world, effecting in a few days what it would take weeks to accomplish with the Allopathic drugging system, and that without subjecting the patient to the injurious effects of the latter."

DIRECTIONS:
For Biliousness, Heartburn, and Acid Rising: Take 3 to 5 drops in a tablespoonful of water every three hours until relief is obtained, then less frequently.
For Constipation: Take five drops in a wine-glassful of water night and morning.
For Inaction of the Liver, and as a Preventive against Bilious attacks: Five drops should be taken in a wine-glassful of water once or twice a week, just before going to bed.

In Bottles, 1s, 1s 6d. and 2s 6d each.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—
I am directed to intimate that at the approaching half-yearly General Meeting resolutions will be proposed for your acceptance as follows:—
1. To transfer £1 per share on the existing 62,500 shares from the Reserve Fund to the Capital Account, thus making the shares paid up to £9 each.
2. To create 37,500 new shares of £10 each—making 100,000 shares—thereby increasing the shares to the full extent authorised.

According to the Deed of Settlement, half of the paid-up capital of the Bank must be represented at the meeting, either in person or by proxy, and proxies will be prepared and forwarded to you all at an early date.
I am, Ladies and Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
FRANCIS ADAMS,

"A sample of this juice submitted to analysis furnished the following results, the specific gravity being 10·24:—1000 parts contained anhydrous citric, 42·24; grape sugar, 1·81, ash, 2·4. This gave an amount of potash equal to 43·47 per cent., and 0·23 per cent. of phosphoric acid. NO CANE SUGAR, TARTARIC, OR OTHER MINERAL ACID WAS PRESENT. We conclude, therefore, from these data that the juice is genuine, while its state of preservation is highly satisfactory."

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1888.

It is stated that Russia is excited at the attitude of Germany, and is seriously inclined to conclude an understanding with France to repel aggression.

The Times says that Sir Henry Blake has placed himself entirely in the hands of Lord Knutsford in regard to his appointment to the Governorship of Queensland.

The Rugby Union have decided to compel the football team which recently visited Australia to make an affidavit that they received no remuneration beyond mere hotel and travelling expenses.

The prospectus of the New Zealand Copper-mining Company, of Nelson, with a capital of £150,000, has been issued.

Vessels of the Archer type and the torpedo catchers have been condemned by the admirals who watched the recent naval manœuvres. They recommend the building of larger cruisers, with better arrangements for coaling.

The Irish Holdings Act has been read a second time by a majority of 75. Mr. Parnell, who opposed the bill, has given notice to move that the Land Commission should have power to remit the arrears of rent.

The Asservatore declares that the Pope will leave Rome if the Italian Government further contracts the iron circle within which he is confined.

The Rev. Dr. Gloof, of Galashiels, and the Rev. J. Laird, of Coupar, have been appointed Moderators of the Established Church and Free Church of Scotland respectively.

Emperor William of Germany in his opening speech to the Reichstag referred to the friendly attitude of England towards Germany in connection with Zanzibar.

The Maori footballers defeated a Hawick team by one goal to one try.

The arrest made in connection with the latest Whitechapel murder has turned out to be a false one.

Mr. Edward Harrington, M.P., and proprietor of the Kerry Sentinel, has declined to pay the fine of £500 imposed on him by the Times-Parnell Commission for contempt of court.

Lady Montmorres, who fainted while under cross-examination by Sir Charles Russell regarding the murder of her husband in Ireland, has received a letter of sympathy from the Queen.

Lord Winchilsea, at the proposed Pacific cable meeting, maintained that the present cables between England and Australia were neither efficient, continuous, nor cheap, and that they would be exposed to danger in the event of war.

The meeting of the promoters and supporters of the proposed Pacific cable have strongly approved of the laying of a new cable, and trusts that the Imperial Government will facilitate the survey.

Sir Saul Samuel has applied for 20,000 feet of space at the forthcoming Paris Exhibition.

The Emperor William in his speech to the Reichstag stated that social and political legislation will be proceeded with, and that unceasing efforts will be made to preserve the peace of Europe. Victorious war without necessity was incompatible with the Christian faith and with the duties of an Emperor.

Sir H. A. Blake had an interview with the Secretary of State for the Colonies on Thursday.

Lord Knutsford has been impressed with the arguments of the Agents-General of Australia on the Australian mail service, and has agreed to consult his colleagues on the subject. He will probably arrange for an interview between the Agent-General and the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

One hundred and twenty Lascar seamen belonging to the R.M.S. Carthage have refused to serve on the vessel on the outward voyage. A London police magistrate advised them to rejoin the ship.

Mr. J. R. Gill, of Emu Creek station, near Walcha, reports that 70 men, supposed to be union shearers, having their faces disguised with white calico, attacked the station on Thursday night. Constable Kane fired upon the attacking party and wounded one man. Another attack is feared.

Shearing operations in the Walcha district are almost at a standstill owing to the presence of unionist shearers. A body of these men rescued a number of non-unionists from a coach, which was conveying them from the railway to Walcha.

Abnormal heat is reported from all parts of the country. Bush fires are generally prevalent, and a concensus of opinion pronounces the present drought to be the most disastrous on record.

At Hay the thermometer yesterday registered 135° in the sun and 104° in the shade. No fewer than six deaths have occurred during the past two days.

With most unsatisfactory surroundings the International Regatta Carnival began in Victorian waters yesterday. The chief event for keel or centre-plate yachts of 20 tons or upwards was won by Mr. J. A. Gurner's Iduna, with Mr. A. G. Milson's Era second, and Mr. W. P. Smairl's Volunteer third.

The thermometer at the Melbourne Observatory yesterday registered 101° in the shade and 145° in the sun before noon—the hottest day of the season. Intense heat is reported from the country. Two deaths from sunstroke occurred at Horsham.

In the cricket match commenced at Adelaide, between the Australian Eleven and South Australia, the Eleven were disposed of for 134 runs. On behalf of South Australia, Reedman scored 41 and Wigney 37, neither out. Sixty of the 77 runs were made in 45 minutes' play.

The Premier, the Postmaster-General, and the Minister for Mines, are now on a visit to the Shoalhaven district. The Ministerial party were well received, and also entertained at Kiama. The members of the New South Wales Institute of Architects now visiting Melbourne have been entertained at a banquet by the members of the Victorian Institute. The object of the meeting in Melbourne is to establish a Federated Council of Australasian Architects.

The debate on the subject of the appointment of colonial Governors may be taken as affording some index to the state of opinion in the Legislative Assembly on such matters as the development of a national feeling in these colonies, their separation from the mother country, and their independence. The Assembly consists of 124 members, and 15 spoke on the occasion. Of the remainder, some were absent and others were content to let the resolutions submitted to the Government pass without remark and without a division. The resolutions, therefore, must be accepted as expressing the will of the Assembly. The Assembly de jure represents the country, and although the question discussed on Wednesday night has not been an issue at a general election, the probability is that, broadly speaking, the Assembly in passing the resolutions represented the country de facto. But whilst the resolutions were passed by what was practically a unanimous vote, the speeches that were made disclosed considerable variations of opinion. In like manner, whilst it may be taken for granted that a still greater variety of opinion would be apparent if the question were discussed throughout the country, a general vote of the people would probably carry at any rate the leading principle for which the Premier contended, viz., the establishment of some form of communication between the Imperial and Colonial Governments prior to the final appointment of colonial Governors. The reason why opinions differed in the House, although the resolutions were carried, and why probably at this moment many different opinions on this subject are entertained by the people of the colony, although the action of the Assembly will generally be accepted with approval, is that the immediate effects and the future consequences of the step which the Imperial authorities are asked to take are regarded by different men in different lights.

As far as the Premier is concerned, the question of separation has no necessary connection with the resolutions, or the change of system which they are intended to bring about. "So far from separation, he said at once, although he moved these resolutions, he wanted no, separation." His desires for the future were somewhat vaguely expressed, but what he pointed to was something more than a mere alliance or co-operation—some sort of practical connection between the Australian States, the United States of America, and the mother-country—some sort of union which would make the concurrent influence of the English-speaking peoples felt throughout the world. "We could not," he said, "replace such a fabric as that by any petty system we could set up for ourselves." It is clear that in introducing these resolutions his object was not to weaken the relations between the mother-country and the colonies, but to provide against contingencies, which as the colonies increase in population, in importance and in consciousness of strength, might subject those relations to a strain that might possibly end in rupture. It is probable that amongst the silent members of the Assembly, and amongst the people of the country who will tacitly assent to what has been done, there are many who sympathise with the Premier in his wishes for the future.

Amongst the members who spoke, however, it may be said that different views generally prevailed. The general tendency was to look upon separation as inevitable. "At no distant date," said Mr. Dibbs, "they might look for federation on the one hand, and ultimate separation on the other," and, the colonies being united, "it would be better for the English people in the colonies to stand alone" (the presumption being that he meant stand apart). But of those who looked forward to separation as inevitable, there were some who appeared to regard it as the natural result of colonial development—that is to say, as the effect of natural causes, the working of which could not be stayed; whilst there were others who evidently considered it not as a thing to be contemplated from afar with philosophic indifference, but as an end the attainment of which should be kept steadily in view, and exercise a guiding influence upon the policy of the colony. Thus Mr. Wise "supported the resolutions, because he believed they were necessary steps towards the absolute political independence of this country . . . . towards that friendly separation which was not only inevitable but desirable, if only it came peaceably and gradually." It is obvious that there is a very wide gulf between the views of the Premier and those of Mr. Wise, although they both agreed as to the passing of the resolutions. There were two members—the mover and supporter of an amendment—who went further than Mr. Wise in contending that the political connection of the colony with England tends to obstruct and injure the free and independent government of the country, and that therefore it should no longer exist. But the division upon the amendment, which separated these two members from the rest of the House, gave practical proof that so far as the present Assembly is representative of the country the party that would advocate immediate separation is too small to count.

It will be well if statesmen in England study not only the resolutions which were passed on Wednesday night, but also the expression of opinion which preceded the vote, and other signs of the times that may come within their observation. It is undoubtedly true that within the last few years the colonies of Australia have not only been increasing in wealth and political importance, but have been developing, naturally enough, a national sentiment. The talk of possible separation is not a new thing. The word was heard in Parliament very soon after the introduction of responsible government. Some years ago leading politicians in England encouraged the colonies to use it. Lord Lisgar, when Governor of Canada, personally familiarised the colonists there with the idea, and did so, as was understood at the time, under special instructions. In later days similar suggestions were offered in South Africa by a special missionary from the Colonial Office. Since then a revulsion of feeling has taken place. The growth of the colonies has forced itself upon the attention of English public men, and their value as emigration fields, and as markets for British manufactures, is better understood. At the same time, more frequent intercourse has brought with it more accurate information, and a clearer insight into the possibilities of the future. Thoughtful men in England have expressed the opinion that the Empire must be reorganised with a view to closer union, or that the distant sections of it will drift apart. Hence the endeavour to cultivate the feeling that closer union is possible with the view of neutralising centrifugal influences, although few indeed, look upon reorganisation as within the range of practical politics. The most definite idea entertained in England is that of co-operation for purposes of defence; and that idea has, to a certain extent, been carried into effect. It may, however, be worthy of notice that one of the chief reasons why the question of separation has been brought into greater prominence in Australia within the last few years is to be found in the fact that the Powers of Europe have been taking up positions in the Pacific. A certain antagonism has been developed between their interests and Australian interests, and the colonies have been made to feel that whilst they remain a part of the Empire they must accept the foreign policy of the Empire and its consequences—a policy which is necessarily affected by a multiplicity of considerations outside the range of merely Australian statesmanship. On the other hand, amidst all that has been said about separation, it has been pointed out with sufficient clearness that the presence of the European Powers in the Pacific would complicate the problems before an independent Australia, just at it does those which the British Government has to deal with. The point which English statesmen ought to observe is the freedom and frequency with which questions of this sort are now discussed in Australia.

There is a good deal of significance, as well as truth, in the remark that since the Melbourne Exhibition has been open, the permanent sources of interest to the thousands of visitors are the collection of pictures and the music. The enterprise itself, great as it is, must have palled on the public taste long since had it not been accompanied by something that appealed very strongly and masterfully to a dominant side of that taste, and gratified it. We have grown quite accustomed by this time to hear that an eye for art and an ear for music, however uncultivated or undeveloped, are almost the common property of our people. When the Exhibition authorities decided to bring out the best pictures obtainable, and to engage a competent musician with the nucleus of an efficient orchestra at an enormous figure, to add to the attractions of their undertaking, therefore, they did the best possible thing, not only to make the enterprise a success, but to make its benefits permanent. Every credit is due to them, inasmuch as that, having decided on the line they were so happily inspired to take, they did not hesitate at small considerations of expense to give the experiment a fair chance of proving itself all that it was expected to be. The galleries of Europe were levied upon for such of their best representative works as were available for exhibition at the antipodes, and Australian colonists were thus given an opportunity to gratify their artistic sense, in whatever stage of development it might be, by the contemplation of the efforts of masters in their art. On the side of music, too, the outlay has been princely. The best that could be procured has been placed at the service of the patrons of the Exhibition for their education and delight. From a practical point of view alone the offer of £5000 for six months to the musical director was a stroke of good policy, for it cannot be doubted that on the quality of the music provided the daily and nightly attendances have largely depended. But it is in the direction of the elevation of public taste in these colonies that the lasting effects of this attention to music and art will be really felt and seen.

This effect on public taste cannot be easily gauged for some time to come, but we have the experience of the past to indicate to us its character. From our own International Exhibition of 1879 may be said to date much of our own progress in taste and art. We were then for the first time as a people brought into touch with the taste and art of the old world, and shown in the most practical way, by modern examples, what is being done there. Our National Art Gallery may be said to date from the impetus given to public interest in this direction by the collection of pictures placed on view on that occasion; and in numberless ways that need not be particularised, the standard of taste was raised. The enterprise of the Melbourne Exhibition Commissioners will operate beneficially in the same way. The standard of taste in music and art will be raised still higher as people are shown, by examples brought to their very doors, in what good music and good pictures consist. The ears that have been accustomed to listen to the symphonies of Beethoven, the melody of Mozart, and the genius and fancy and thought of Wagner and Dvorak and Mendelssohn, will not be content to fall back without protest into the comparative indifference with which the efforts of musical enthusiasts may have been met before in these colonies. Although a musical taste has always existed here, it stood in need of cultivation. Nothing could possibly fill this want but the actual presentment of good music, capably performed, and to secure this that guarantee was necessary which the Commissioners took upon themselves to see was forthcoming. The result is that a great educational experiment has been essayed, and has resulted in a triumphant success. It has been proved that our people are not wanting in their appreciation of good music, and one of the best witnesses to this, after the attendance figures at the concerts, and oratorios themselves, is the musical director whose talented services the Commissioners secured at such public-spirited expense. In a letter published in a recent London newspaper, Mr. Cowen speaks with something like enthusiasm of the success of what may fairly enough be called his mission here. "The public," he says, "are most appreciative, and actually the things they like best are Beethoven, Wagner, Liszt's "Rhapsody," and such like. So you see we are not performing with barren results; and I candidly believe there will be a lasting benefit to art after the concerts are over." This confirmation of our claim to musical taste, coming from an authority with excellent opportunities for judging, has some value. But its chief interest for ourselves is in the hope it holds out that some tangible impression has been made on the culture of the people, and that the standard created will remain one of comparison in the popular mind, long after the concerts now going on are over. With regard to art, the same thing is to be said. The sight of good pictures cultivates the popular taste in the direction of artistic work, as the hearing of good music educates the popular ear. The tens of thousands of people who will have passed through the galleries and crowded the concert-hall of the Exhibition during the six months of its course will take away with them new views and higher tastes, and higher aspirations on the artistic side of their natures, as well as a more critical perception that will, as time goes on, become increasingly more impatient if not intolerant of bad and indifferent work.

The gain, therefore, resulting from the music and the pictures at the Melbourne Exhibition is not entirely a utilitarian one. As a practical people, the experimenters might have fairly looked for some financial return for the large outlay on their musical attractions, and this has certainly been forthcoming in full measure. But the public gain lies in the refinement and elevation of the public taste and artistic perception of our people. Refining influences and elevating agencies are not too common in Australian life. It is only of late years that the hard pioneer work of colonisation has really left us any time to cultivate the æsthetic side of the popular character, and our traditions so far have rather tended to inculcate lessons of energy and activity and practical effort than any desire to mollify existing social conditions. With increase of wealth and leisure, however, comes increase of social responsibility, and it is a duty we owe ourselves and the future of these colonies to neglect no means of refining the popular taste and elevating the public sentiment. Unless a wealthy Philistinism which has no resources outside the making of money and spending it on sport is to be the national characteristic of the future, it is time that we set ourselves to making the best use of our opportunities to develop an interest in something finer and higher. A public sentiment that pleases itself in the contemplation of good pictures, or in the rendition of good music, can never go far wrong. There is always hope for the people—as there is for the man or woman—which has a vein of natural sentiment in its character. It is the influence of music and art, properly cultivated and developed, that forms the best nursery for this kind of thing, and the best guarantee that the national character of the future will be neither a sordid nor a hard one.

It is not well in discussing questions of political principle to build up too broad theories upon the basis of a single fact. But it is well to be particular about the facts cited in support of principles. In recommending men of Parliamentary experience as a specially suitable class from which colonial Governors should be selected, the Premier pointed to the case of Sir John Young, who, he said, was one of the very best Governors we have had. "It was utterly impossible," he said, "for any person who had had the experience which Sir John Young had had to be other than a high, enlightened, and constitutional Governor." Something more may be said upon that point. Sir John Young's career supplied a warning as well as an example. There is little doubt that his case has been a warning to some, at least, of his successors. His Parliamentary experience did not save him from becoming, in one instance, a mere instrument in the hands of his Ministry when a truer sense of his responsibility should have led him to protect the Constitution, instead of suffering violence to be done to it. In May, 1861, a Land Bill was before Parliament. It had passed through the Assembly, and had been amended by the Council; it had been sent back by the Assembly, and the Council, whilst willing to forego some of its amendments, adhered to others. No conference had been arranged for the adjustment of these differences; but three or four days before the Council (which had been appointed for five years) was to expire by effluxion of time, twenty-one new members, gathered from the four winds of heaven, were nominated by the Ministry and appointed by the Governor to sit on the one remaining sitting day and swamp the Opposition upon these amendments. The scheme failed, because the House was counted out before they could enter the Chamber; but the disgrace of the transaction remained. The Council was constructed on the basis of nomination for the purpose of introducing the element of elasticity into its working, so that deadlocks might be avoided; but it would be absurd to contend that proceedings of this sort were contemplated by its framers, or justified by any constitutional interpretation of its spirit. The act was nothing less than a political outrage; and however broad a view may be taken of the doctrine of Ministerial responsibility, it is still to be maintained that the powers entrusted to the Governor, although in the main powers to be held in reserve, ought to be used for the prevention, not the perpetration, of political outrage. This transaction, to which Sir John Young gave his sanction, stands unparalleled in the history of responsible government in this colony.

Our Centennial celebrations are not quite over yet, for our medicos are bringing up the rear with a professional picnic of their own. The happy idea occurred to Dr. Chambers, who is President of the New South Wales branch of the British Medical Association, and to Dr. Knaggs, who is chairman of the medical section of the Royal Society of New South Wales, to have a gathering of the profession and enjoy a commemorative item. It is a rare thing for medical men to be able to gather in force, because it is impossible for them to be all off duty at the same time. Some of them must be upon their beat as much as policemen, and when they are wanted they are very often wanted urgently, and the more successful and useful a doctor is the less leisure he can command, and the more uncertain he is if he can snatch an hour, to say nothing of a day. Yet we have no class of men amongst us who better deserve, and who more need, recreation, for their work is anxious, requires great concentration of the mind on each particular case, and the power to apply at once practically the resources of reading and experience. No professional men ought to be less routinists, less hide-bound by theory, and more capable of that free play of the mind which shall leave them at liberty to deal with each case in the light of its individuality, as well as in the light of the class to which it belongs. Our colony has every reason to congratulate itself, not only on the ample number of its medical practitioners, but on their quality, and also on their zeal to keep themselves abreast of the progress of medical science. We are, of course, indebted to the European schools for our present staff, and there is hardly a European University, or a hospital, in the United Kingdom that has not sent us someone. We have, therefore, representatives of nearly every great known teacher, and we can hardly desire more variety of training. But in the details of practice they have all found some things to learn and, perhaps, some things to unlearn, for the action of climate on the constitution, on the cause of disease, and on the efficacy of medicine, is undoubtedly a fact that has to be taken into account, and every therapeutist, however well trained, has to keep his powers of observation always on the alert, to see how far old theories and even well-proved practice are subject to modifications under new conditions. We are beginning now to start a medical school on our own account, and with every prospect of success, but, while we shall thus save many of our youth the expense of a journey to the old world at a time when their means are straitened, nothing will ever save them the necessity of keeping abreast of old-world knowledge.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Some correspondence has taken place between Lord Carrington and the Comte de Seguier, the French Consul in Sydney, in reference to the appointment of a representative of New South Wales to the Universal Exhibition which is to be opened in Paris next year. In a letter to the French Consul, Lord Carrington expresses his sincere congratulations to the Count at the success which has crowned his efforts in the matter, as Sir Henry Parkes had informed him that it was the intention of the Government to send a representative of this colony to the Paris Exhibition. He was convinced that the exhibits from here would be worthy of the colony of which he had the honour to be the Governor, and also that the French Government would appreciate the zeal which the Count had shown in bringing about so good a result.

Sir Henry Parkes, we are informed, has accepted an invitation to visit the Braidwood district. He will leave Sydney on Saturday, December 8, for Goulburn, where he will remain over Sunday, leaving for Braidwood on Monday, December 10. A fitting reception will be given to the Premier at Braidwood, and a banquet will probably be held.

Our special correspondent in an article entitled "The Lull in Europe," which will be found on another page, discusses the present position and the different undertakings of the various European Powers as they concern the peace of Europe. Reference is made to the steady manner in which the armed forces of the different nations are being augmented, to the "Triple Alliance," to the significance of the travels of the German Emperor, and to the situation in France.

"English Gossip," from our special correspondent, which we publish this morning, deals with London and its Lord Mayor. The Stanley expedition, Sir Morell Mackenzie and his recent book, and the amusements that are being presented to the London public, are noticed by our correspondent.

In South Australia the following regulations are in force with regard to Bible reading in State schools:—"127. Teachers may read portions of the Holy Scriptures, in the authorised or Douay version, to such of the scholars as may be sent by their parents for not more than half an hour before 9.30 a.m. The attendance of children at such reading shall not be compulsory; and no sectarian or denominational religious teaching shall be allowed in any school—the teachers must strictly confine themselves to Bible reading. 128. Should the parents of not less than 10 children attending any school send to the Minister a written request that the Bible may be read in the schoolroom as above provided, the Minister may require the teacher of such school to comply with the request." It appears from a return recently laid before the Legislative Council of that colony, that during the year 1887 regulation 128 was not availed of in any one instance, nor was there any advantage taken of the clause in the Education Act which permits ministers of religion to read the Bible to children attending State schools. There were 19 schools during 1887 where regulation 127 was put in force, and the number of scholars who voluntarily attended was only 380, or an average of 20 children per school.

The Hon. George Fisher, Minister for Education of New Zealand, accompanied by Deputy Chief Inspector Bridges, paid a visit yesterday to the Training School in Fort-street, and the Superior Public Schools in Fort-street and Crown-street, as well as that at Blackfriars. Mr. Fisher expressed himself as very much pleased with what he saw at the schools he visited. We are informed that Mr. Fisher left by train for Melbourne last evening.

A deputation from the Canley Vale Progress Association waited upon the Minister for Lands yesterday to urge that two reserves—one at Canley Vale, consisting of 15 acres, and another at St. John's Park, consisting of 22 acres—should be dedicated as public parks. Mr. Brunker stated that he had no jurisdiction in that matter, as the lands referred to formed portion of the Church and School estate. The deputation then proceeded to the Department of Public Instruction, and, in the absence of the Minister, represented the object of their visit to Mr. G. Miller, acting Under-Secretary. Mr. Miller recommended the deputation to embody their views in a formal application, and send it to the Minister for Public Instruction. In reply to an inquiry by Mr. Farnell, M.L.A., who accompanied the deputation, Mr. Miller said that section 14 of the Church and School Lands Dedication Act was framed to meet cases of that kind. Mr. W. Donald, secretary of the Progress Association, said he would send to the Minister a formal application.

The Rev. Dr. Hannay and Mr. Henry Lee, the delegates from the Congregational Union of England and Wales, returned to Sydney yesterday morning, from their visit to the Congregational churches of Queensland. The delegates lay the memorial stones of the new church at Kogarah this afternoon. Dr. Hannay preaches at Croydon and Point Piper-road churches on Sunday, while Mr. Lee gives addresses at Rookwood, Redfern, and North Shore. On Monday they start to fulfil engagements in the Western districts.

The unveiling of the memorial over the remains of the late Mr. Thomas P. Banks, for so long a period organist of St. Mary's Cathedral, will take place tomorrow afternoon, at half-past 3, in the Waverley Cemetery. In order to invest the occasion with fitting solemnity the Cathedral choir will attend in a body and sing two or three selections from Cherubini's Requiem.

A meeting of the Cardinal Moran reception committee, under the presidency of Sir Patrick Jennings, was held yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's Presbytery. The hon. secretaries reported that all the arrangements for the demonstration of welcome were complete. The Orient Company's s.s. Cuzco, on which the Cardinal is a passenger, leaves Melbourne on Tuesday next, and is timed to enter Sydney Heads about 10 o'clock on Thursday morning. The Cuzco, according to an arrangement made with the company, will anchor near Watson's Bay and thus allow the reception committee to take Cardinal Moran off in one of their steamers. It is proposed to have a marine procession up the harbour to the Circular Quay, and it is expected that the flotilla will comprise something like 20 special steamers, most of which have been engaged by the various Roman Catholic societies. On landing the Cardinal will be escorted by a procession along Macquarie-street to St. Mary's, and after he has entered the Cathedral and taken his place at his archiepiscopal throne and the "Te Deum" has been sung, three addresses will be presented, the first from the clergy, the second from the laity, and the third from the Irish National League. After the addresses have been read the Cardinal will, it is understood, make a formal reply, and the singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus" will terminate the proceedings.

THE committee of the Carrington Centennial Hospital for Convalescents have been working steadily since the handing over of the Grasmere Estate, and have now so far progressed that the plans of the hospital have been prepared by the architect, Mr. Harry Kent, tenders called for, and the contract signed for the erection of a building to accommodate 89 patients. The contractor, Mr. Peter Graham, has undertaken to carry out the work at a cost of £12,137, exclusive of the cost of bricks, which will amount to some £1700 more. Excellent clay has been found on the estate for brickmaking, and that operation has been in progress for some weeks. Other preliminary work, such as making provision for the water supply and fencing in the hospital grounds, has also been carried out so that no unnecessary delay in beginning building operations should occur. We learn that the laying of the foundation-stone will be attended with a ceremony befitting the occasion; but of this the public will doubtless be informed in due time. The hospital has been designed with a strict eye to economy both in construction and working, but nevertheless the architect has been successful in producing a very handsome building, which will be an ornament to the splendid site selected for it. The contract time for the completion of the work is 15 months, and it is hoped that active work may be began immediately after the expiration of that time.

IN the Full Court yesterday, the appeals in the Crown cases, the Queen v. Robert Jury, John Topin and Israel West, who were convicted at the recent Criminal Sessions of a charge of riot, were argued, and the convictions were confirmed. In the appeal the Crown v. De Pass, the conviction of the prisoner was also upheld. In Finlayson versus Clarke a rule nisi for a new trial was granted. A number of formal matters were also disposed of. In the Jury Court, the action for libel, St. George v. Bennett and another, resulted in a verdict for plaintiff, with damages £250 over and above the £25 paid into court. In the action Penglase v. Broken Hill Junction North Silver-mining Company, plaintiff claimed compensation for trespass, and a verdict was given by consent for 40s., and the question as to which party has the better title to the land was referred to the Full Court. In the Equity Court, the action of D'Apice and another v. M'Bride was concluded, judgment being reserved; and a number of motions, petitions, and applications for injunctions were dealt with.

THE sittings of the Metropolitan Court of Quarter Sessions were continued yesterday, at the Darlinghurst Courthouse, before his Honor Mr. District Court Judge M'Farland. The jury who were locked up all night in connection with the trial of Gee Too, upon an alleged charge of false pretences, were unable to agree upon a verdict, and were discharged. At a later hour in the day the accused was discharged on the application of the Crown prosecutor, who stated that it was not the intention of the Crown to try the case again. A woman named Fanny Turnbull pleaded guilty to a charge of having abandoned a young child and received a sentence of one month's imprisonment. A coloured man, named Thomas Francis Lewis, was found guilty of having criminally assaulted a girl under the age of 14 years, and was sentenced to four years' penal servitude. Mary Ann Cash was acquitted upon an indictment charging her with stealing from the person. A Chinaman named Ah Gong was acquitted upon a charge of attempting to steal. The sittings of the Court will be continued on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

LONDON, Nov. 23.

The meeting in connection with the Pacific cable question was numerously attended. Lord Winchelsea, in presiding, maintained that the present cables were neither efficient, continuous, nor cheap, and that they would be exposed to danger in the event of war. The proposed cable would keep British trade within the Empire. The colonies were favourable to the movement, and even Victoria and New South Wales were harmonious on the subject. Sir Donald Smith moved,—"That in view of the unsatisfactory telegraph service between England and Australia, the meeting strongly approves of the laying of the Pacific cable, and trusts that the Imperial Government will facilitate the survey." Mr. Doxett, of the firm of Dalgety and Company, seconded the resolution, which was carried.

Sir Graham Berry, Agent-General for Victoria, traversed the interpretation of the mail contract made by the P. and O. He maintained that if the junction of the Indian and colonial mails was essential India ought to bear her share of the inconvenience. Sir Saul Samuel and Sir Arthur Bligh emphasised the necessity for a compliance with the colonial request.

Lord Knutsford appeared to be impressed with the arrangements which had been laid before him, and agreed to consult his colleagues on the subject. He will possibly arrange for an interview between the Agents-General and Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Mr. Bosisto explained the system under which the juries were appointed, and contended that it was in every respect fair. More than half the total number have been nominated by the executive commissioners of the various courts, and the remainder were nominated by the commissioners for Victoria. If it were shown to him that any juror was interested in any exhibits upon which he had to adjudicate his name would be at once removed from the list. MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The Intercolonial Temperance Convention to-day discussed papers on the moral, social, and economical aspects of the temperance question, and also on the attitude of the Australian Natives in regard to temperance. Resolutions were carried in favour of more perfectly consolidating the work of the temperance organisations of the colony, and also urging the management of the coffee palaces to set apart a room for the gratuitous use of the Australian Natives' Association, debating societies, and sporting clubs, and in favour of the formation of a National Temperance League. During the day a deputation asked the Chief Secretary that the successful local option poll taken in March should be given effect to. Mr. Deakin, in the course of a lengthy reply, stated that it was only now that it became possible to say what certain provisions of the Licensing Act really required. In the process of finding that out, such a time had elapsed that it was impossible now to act, but he informed the deputation that the Government would present a bill to Parliament next Tuesday, though he could not inform them what its provisions would be.

STRIKE OF COMPOSITORS AT ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

A dispute has arisen between the proprietors and compositors in the South Australian Register office, owing to the dismissal of a man on a fortnight's notice. The companionship object principally on the ground that they believe the man discharged was marked owing to his activity in the Typographical Society. This is emphatically denied by the management, who state that the man was discharged in connection with a reduction of the staff, because of his general conduct, which, while not necessitating instant dismissal at any time, or disentitling him to the ordinary certificate on leaving, justified his selection in the reduction of the staff at the close of the Parliamentary session. On Monday last the men made preparations to strike without notice, in consequence of which the proprietors insisted upon the signing of an agreement to give a fortnight's notice. Some of the men signed this on Wednesday, but the bulk objected, and on Thursday night the Typographical Society gave the proprietors an ultimatum, that unless the dismissed man was reinstated and the agreement was withdrawn the men would cease to work after completing that night's duties. The proprietors not acceding, the men were called out to-day, but arrangements have been made for continuing the work without their aid.

THE SHEARING DIFFICULTY.

ATTACK ON SHEARERS AT WALCHA.

ONE MAN WOUNDED.

THE RIOT ACT READ.

In consequence of the receipt by wire of a report to the effect that a disturbance of a serious nature had been caused near Walcha by a number of shearers, the Acting Inspector-General of Police yesterday made arrangements for a considerable body of police to proceed to the scene of disorder. The constables, 30 in number, left by train in the evening.

Mr. J. R. Gill telegraphed to us yesterday from Walcha as follows:—"My station, at Emu Creek, was attacked last night between 10 and 11 o'clock by about 70 men, with their faces disguised with white calico. Constable Kane and I slept in the shearers' hut with the men. A knock came to the door; we were in bed asleep. I asked, Who is that? is it Thomas M'Donald? A voice like his answered "Yes." M'Donald is a married man, on the station, who sought the shelter of the shearers' hut the previous night. I got up to open the door. Constable Kane was at the door first; directly it was unbolted it was pushed in his face; the front man rushed to grapple with the constable, who fired, and he fell back; three others behind him also fell. The mob returned, and were preparing for another rush, but I cautioned them that they were only throwing away their lives. I then read the Riot Act, and called upon them to disperse, which after some time they did. I take upon myself the responsibility of Constable Kane's act; his promptness and presence of mind has saved many lives; he acted under my orders; we were obliged to keep them covered the whole time by firearms. There ought to be least 100 policemen at Walcha to-night. When the Brookong affair occurred the whole shearing season was before them, now it is nearly over. I hear Europambela station was stuck up last night by 200 men; it is only three miles from Emu Creek. The man fired at is, I believe, slightly wounded. The rioters have threatened to return to-day, and take life. One man said he would do so if he were hanged for it."

A resident of the Walcha district writes:—"I think all persons who have any respect for the law will agree with me that though the Unionist shearers may have a right to strike for a higher wage and work only under their own rules (which, however, are contrary to the Masters' and Servants' Act), still that they have no right to try to coerce the employers to give in to their demands, or to influence men in the sheep-owners' employ to leave their work either by fair words, threats, or violence. I am a resident of the Walcha district, and think that it is high time the authorities should put an end to the present state of lawlessness here, either by sending a sufficiently large number of police to overawe the mob or a detachment of the military force, and that the Unionist camp should be dispersed. I see by your sub-leader in Tuesday's issue that you have already been informed of some of the raids made on the neighbouring stations, but a far more disgraceful outrage took place in the centre of the town on Monday afternoon. Mr. W. Fletcher was taking a number of non-Union men in a coach to his father's station, under police protection, when a large mob of the Unionists met them took the horses out, dragged the men by force from the coach, and took them to the Union Camp, with the exception of one man who refused to accompany them. He was forcibly seized and roughly treated till the police came to his assistance, and took him to the lockup for safety. Two delegates of the union were present. The police force is quite inadequate to the requirements of this state of affairs, and the mob seem to do just as they please. One man said to me a few days ago, What is one policeman to 50 men? I hear from good authority that the head delegate threatens that if the sheep-owners do not accede to his demands, that he will remove all men working on the stations. I warn the authorities that if precautions against further rioting are not made at once, that things may go from bad to worse, and that people, if not protected by the law, must protect themselves and their own interests."

URALLA, FRIDAY.

Shearing operations are almost at a standstill. There are about 300 union shearers camped at Walcha, standing out for the adoption of the union rules. The unionists took a number of non-union men from a coach which was conveying them from the railway to Walcha. All willingly submitted, and joined the union camp, except one person, who placed himself under the protection of the police, who were escorting them. Shearing operations being so much delayed through not being able to get a sufficient number of competent shearers, great inconvenience and loss will be caused to most of the large woolgrowers at Walcha.

INVERELL, FRIDAY.

Senior-sergeant Sharpe and Constable Taylor have proceeded to Walcha to assist in quelling the disturbances amongst the shearers.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS IN THE COUNTRY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

COWRA, FRIDAY.

The Railway Commissioners and the other officials arrived here by special train this morning from Young. They were met at the station by a deputation of the aldermen consisting of Messrs. Donnelly, Fitzgerald, Macpherson, Stibbard, and Smith, who placed before the commissioners several matters in connection with the local railway station. The most important of these were the classification of the station, the removal of the trucking yards to a more suitable site, the running of the trains, and the enlargement of the goods shed. Complaint was also made as to trucks not being available for travelling stock, from which cause the returns were not so large as they would otherwise have been. The commissioners inspected the trucking yards, engine sheds, &c. Mr. Eddy, on behalf of the commission, promised consideration of the proposals laid before them. Their stay here did not exceed half an hour, after which the party proceeded by special train towards Carcoar on their return journey to Sydney.

CARCOAR, FRIDAY.

The Railway Commissioners arrived this afternoon at 3 o'clock, by special train from Cowra, accompanied by the officials. They were met at the station by a deputation, consisting of the Mayor and aldermen, and also Messrs. M'Killop, J. Kenworthy, R. Sim, J. A. Moss, and many prominent townspeople. Champagne having been opened, the Mayor welcomed Mr. Eddy to the town of Carcoar, and presented him with an illuminated address in the name of the citizens. Mr. Eddy, on behalf of himself and his brother commissioners, thanked the deputation for the hearty reception given him. The commissioners afterwards visited the site of the proposed trucking yards. It was stated by one of the deputation that the interest on the outlay in the erection of the yards would be guaranteed by a local squatter if required. The commissioners promised to give the matter attention, and also promised consideration and alteration in the present time table to connect with the Western passenger train without unnecessary delay. After inspecting the station premises the party left en route for the Western line.

BLAYNEY, FRIDAY.

The Railway Commissioners passed here en route for Sydney at 4.35 p.m., having visited the Southern line to Harden and line from Goulburn to Cooma.

MURRUMBURRAH, FRIDAY.

A large and influential deputation waited on the railway Commissioners last evening, for the purpose of pointing out the necessity of rating our platform as a station. Statistics were read, showing that the revenue from Murrumburrah is far in excess of very many other places rated as stations, and is steadily increasing. A protest was also entered respecting the differential rates. Mr. Thomas Allsopp, who is building one of the largest and most perfect flour-mills in the colony, also interviewed the Commissioners, and was granted a siding direct to his mills.

YASS, FRIDAY.

Messrs. Eddy, Oliver, and Fehon, Railway Commissioners, arrived at the Yass station last evening at 5 minutes past 7, accompanied by Mr. Colls, M.L.A. The Mayor and aldermen, and other leading residents went out to meet them in the afternoon, but not having arrived by 6 the majority returned to town. Aldermen Coon and Nichols remained, and were introduced to the commissioners. They explained the absence of the Mayor. Mr. Eddy apologised for the delay. He examined the station buildings and premises, and promised to attend as far as possible to the requirements of the station and town. After a delay of 20 minutes the party proceeded on their journey.

The steamer Waihora, from Wellington, yesterday attracted an unusually large number of visitors to the New Zealand Wharf, the occasion being the arrival of a crew of fours for the boat race on Monday from Canterbury, N.Z. The names of the crew are Messrs. Styche, Smith, Bonnington, and Nicoll, with little Shaw as cox—names which have for years figured in the pulling annals of the pronounced English province of Canterbury. The waters of the Avon, the Heathcote, and the port of Lyttelton and of Akaroa, as well as in the less tranquil harbour of Port Nicholson, have yielded honours upon more than one occasion to the skill of these knights of the scull. They were welcomed with cheers at the wharf yesterday and feted, as appears in another column. Of the passage across of the Waihora Captain Fenn reports: She left Dunedin at 3.20 p.m. on 15th, called at the usual ports—Oamaru and Lyttelton—and made fast to Wellington wharf at 11 a.m. on 18th; left again at 3 p.m., and reached port as mentioned above. THE R.M.S.S. PARRAMATTA.

A delightful run round from Melbourne by this favourably known P. and O. mail steamer was enjoyed by a large number of passengers, and she brought up in Neutral Bay in good time to land them, namely, the first thing yesterday morning. The outward voyage from London has been an average one in every respect. She carried a large cargo, and her excellent saloons were occupied by an exceedingly pleasant company. The total number, exclusive of those for India, Albany, and Adelaide, was 173. Of these 74 were in the saloon and 99 in the second saloon, and there were several natives. Among the passengers were several returned colonists. The Right Rev. Dr. Barry, Bishop of Sydney, left the steamer at Albany. The Rev. Mr. Allnutt, of Monckton vicarage, Kent, was also a passenger by the Parramatta, and he so won the esteem of all on board that at the close of the voyage a purse of sovereigns was presented to him to purchase a souvenir of the friendly feeling with which he had been regarded on board the Parramatta. The name of the Parramatta has long passed as a synonym for a happy ship, and the experience of the passengers by her this trip as narrated by themselves but adds force to the justice of the comparison. Sociality is promoted in every way, and Captain Murray and the executive on board did what they could in this respect. The duties of the purser's and steward's departments were efficiently administered, and there was general satisfaction. The only drawback to this was the weather, which was not so pleasant as it might have been north of the line, and which was of a decidedly adverse character in the southern hemisphere. Some time was lost by the persistent head winds, but the engines were in admirable working order, and responded readily to the demand on their efficiency. There were two deaths during the voyage, both in the second saloon. The first was on the 16th ultimo, between Brindisi and Port Said, when Mrs. Goodyear died from consumption, and the second was on the 3rd instant, between Colombo and King George's Sound, when the infant son of Mrs. Keam died from diarrhœa. From the report courteously supplied by the purser, we take the following:—The Parramatta left London on the 4th ultimo with 101 first and 103 second saloon passengers, and called at Gibraltar, Malta, and Brindisi, which latter port she left at 6.4 a.m. on the 15th ultimo, with mails for India, China, and Australia. Strong head winds with high sea and cloudy weather were met with to Port Said, which was reached at 8 a.m. on the 18th ultimo. The Canal was entered at 10.15 a.m., but before proceeding far a very heavy sandstorm, which necessitated the ship being made fast to the banks, was encountered. This was not accomplished without great difficulty. At 4 p.m., the weather clearing, a small ship proceeded ahead of her, but was compelled to stop again and anchor in Bitter Lakes, on account of a steamer (the s.s. Sumatra) being on shore and blocking the Canal. This caused a detention of 34 hours, and Suez was not reached before 3 p.m. on the 20th ultimo. The Parramatta left at once, and encountered moderate wind and weather to Aden, where she arrived at 7.25 p.m. on the 24th ultimo, and after transferring Indian mails to company's s.s. Rome, she proceeded on her voyage. Strong head winds and high seas prevailed most of the way to Colombo, which was reached on the 31st ultimo at 5.10 p.m. After coaling and transferring China and Japan mails she left the following day at noon, and had moderate westerly winds and heavy rains to the Equator, which was crossed in long. 84·35 E. on the 3rd instant. The Parramatta then fell in with exceptionally strong S.E. trade winds, with a high sea and heavy rain, and she laboured heavily and shipped heavy seas occasionally, and strong head winds continued until Cape Leeuwin was sighted on the 12th instant at 3.30 p.m. Soon after passing this headland the steamer was enveloped in a dense fog, which retarded her progress considerably for several hours. On the fog lifting, Breaksea Island was sighted ahead, and the steamer proceeded, anchoring in Princess Royal Harbour, Albany, at 12.24 on the 13th instant. The mails for Western Australia, and also the Bishop of Sydney, who was a passenger from Brindisi, were landed. The Bishop broke his journey at this port, and will come on by the P. and O. Company's s.s. Victoria. The Parramatta left Albany at 3.30 p.m. same day, and had fine weather and a smooth sea to Adelaide, which was reached on the 16th instant at 9.30 p.m. The voyage was resumed at 4.10 a.m. on the 17th. Light winds and fine weather were experienced to Cape Banks, and moderate southerly wind to Cape Otway, which was passed at 9.10 a.m. on the 19th. Port Phillip Heads were entered at 2.20 p.m. She left Melbourne on Wednesday evening, and had a pleasant run round. Mr. C. L. Field is chief officer with Captain Murray, and Mr. Graham has still control of the engine-room. Dr. J. L. H. Kitching is medical officer, and Mr. Sidney Cope, from the R.M.S.S. Pekin, is purser. Mr. Franks, who was here in the Assam, is chief steward. After the departure of the Ballaarat to-day she is to come in to a berth at the company's wharf, Circular Quay.

THE S.S. NAMOI.

The H. R. N. S. N. Co.'s steamship Namoi has returned to commission after the conclusion of the half-yearly overhaul at Mort's Dock and Engineering Co.'s Works, where she was slipped and painted, and the many little requirements of a first-class passenger ship attended to. The engines, as usual, were examined in the principal working parts and thoroughly adjusted. Her passenger accommodation received special attention to ensure comfort and cleanliness, and her boats and life-saving apparatus were put in first-class order. On deck and aloft she was painted, her hull below water being put in specially good order. Her compasses having been adjusted by Captain Hall, she went for a steam trial down the harbour. One trip gave 4 minutes 9 seconds, or a speed of 14½ knots, which, everything considered, was an excellent performance. Mr. A. E. Dickinson, the company's superintending engineer, attended as usual to the necessary repairs and renovations. She left last night under the command of Captain W. A. Knowles with a very large general cargo and a full complement of passengers.

THE S.S. ALBION.

Work appears to have commenced once more on board the old steamer Albion, whose name is certainly a household word in the ports of these colonies. The Albion was built at Greenock in 1863, so that she is not after all such a very old ship, for 25 years cannot be called a long life for a first-class iron-built steamer or ship, and it must not be forgotten that shipbuilding in 1863, so far as the construction and material and the view to strength and durability were concerned, was carried out in no slip-shod sort of fashion. It is currently reported of the Albion that she will ere long be the proud possessor of powerful triple expansion engines, with which she will once more plough these seas in the interest of commerce, and let it be hoped also with an equal manner of success she achieved in the good old days she has seen. The direction of her future trade is said to be intercolonial with New Zealand, and possibly as the pioneer boat of something more pretentious in the steam line to follow.

UNKNOWN WRECKAGE.

Word was received yesterday by the steamer Pukaki, from Fiji, that a quantity of wreckage had been washed ashore at Loma Loma. From all that could be gathered on board, it seems clear that a serious wreck has occurred in that locality. A companion ladder of a large vessel is mentioned as amongst the wreckage, and portions of decking bearing distinct marks of what were probably produced by the harness-casks standing thereon. Added to those also were portions of a ship's rail with the stanchions attached, and which had been sawn into lengths, and it is considered highly probable, by their appearance, had been utilised in the form of a raft. The evidence to hand also is that the casualty has been of very recent date, none of the wreckage bearing the faintest marks of the worm, an undeniable feature in estimating the period of immersion in those latitudes. Further news will be awaited with a sense of anxiety, but assuming there has been the total destruction of a large ship, the chances of reaching an island, where islands exist in almost myriads, as they do in that part of the world, are greatly in favour of the supposition that the loss of the ship would not involve a loss of life, and that the crew are safe, and amongst the coconut palms and the breadfruit tree groves. Loma Loma is one of the Fiji group.

FREIGHTS.

The freight market shows symptoms of hardening for the majority of ports, and there is a promise of it being firmer than for a considerable period prior to the late strike. Inquiries are numerous for tonnage for Java, Philippines, India, and East Indies, for which ports rates are quoted at from 17s to 18s per ton. The American coal market having been moderately supplied during the strike at Newcastle with local coal, now rules at about 22s to 23s for West Coast ports. This, while not so high as it was some time back, may still be considered a fair rate where the dispatch is quick. The rate for wool to London may shortly take an upward movement in proportion as the surplus tonnage is absorbed in other directions, as it may reasonably be expected will be the case now that the collieries are at work. Nearly all the intercolonial markets are well supplied with coal, and inquiries for vessels of handy size are as yet few, except for timber requirements, which are hard to fill at present rates.

MR. EDDY AND OUR RAILWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It gave me great pleasure to read a few days ago the reported opinions of Mr. Eddy in reference to the Blue Mountain scenery and the possibility of running cheap excursion trains to that neighbourhood. At present, although within such a comparatively short distance of Sydney, none but the well-to-do population can afford the luxury of a peep at the grand scenery there found, and to be refreshed by the invigorating mountain air. Excursion traffic as carried out in England is as yet unknown to colonial railway management, but we may justly hope that, with Mr. Eddy and his great ability and experience at the head of affairs, we may soon be able to realise to their full extent the benefits of our railways; that on holidays our working population may be able at a reasonable cost to take their wives and families into the country for the day. And let our citizens think for a moment how much better this will be, especially for the juvenile portion, than spending the day most probably in idleness, and the evening in theatre, music-hall, or dancing-saloon—probably the only source of amusement within reach of many.

In creating a traffic of this kind the Department will not only be opening up a new source of profit too long neglected, but aid the prosperity of the many health resorts in the mountains, giving them a better chance all round, and confer boons on our working population which will earn for the Commissioners the gratitude of thousands. Hoping in the near future to see some of Mr. Eddy's opinions as to the bringing of the mountain scenery within reach of all carried into successful operation,

I am, &c.,
EXCURSIONIST.

THE VICTORIAN REGATTA CARNIVAL.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

FIRST DAY.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The uncertainty of yachting was properly exemplified at the first day of the regatta. It was a most unsatisfactory day, the wind being flukey, with no sea. There was a series of calms till near the finish, when a buster sprang up. The day afforded no criterion as to the relative merits of the yachts. The course fixed for the big event was 48 miles, three times round, following from the flagship round boats five miles south, and by west round a boat off Brighton and Sandridge, and back to the flagship. Owing to the lateness of the first round the committee decided that the yachts should go 32 miles, being twice round. First Round: After passing the Gellibrand Lightship the Era went in for a luffing match with the Iduna, which did both much harm. Off Brighton the Volunteer was leading, and got away to the leeward in a calm, and was left in the lurch. Second Round: On the beat to the first mark boat and the Brighton mark the rear boats were able to fetch right up, so that the Era and Janet were not so fortunate. They lost some ground, the Iduna and Volunteer coming up on the Janet. A fresh breeze at the finish was felt by the rear boats. The first brought them all together, spoiling the Era's chances. The ship Aristides was the flagship. There were not many spectators, and the arrangements seemed thoroughly confused, the management being very bad. Only one boat, a private steamer, hired by a number of Sydney gentlemen, followed the race. The others had little chance of seeing it. The New Zealand yacht Akarana, 7 tons rating, sailed well in a light breeze, and made good weather when the buster came up. The Sydney yachtsmen complain much about the little courtesy extended to them by the Regatta Committee. The following is a resumé of the race:—

All the yachts entered, except the Miranda, which had not arrived, put in an appearance, the Sydney yachts, the Era and Volunteer, being much admired. The signal to go was given at 10.12 a.m. The wind was very light, N.E. with slack water. The Taniwha carried a square-header, and the others Jack-yarders. The Volunteer was first across the line, 96 seconds after the signal was given, the Taniwha 2 minutes, Janet 2¼ minutes, the Wanderer and Era 3 minutes 20 seconds, and the Iduna last, 4 minutes later. All hoisted spinnakers crossing the line, and presented a pretty picture. The Volunteer drew away, and soon established a good lead, the others all well up in a bunch. The wind shortly after fell light, and it became almost a drifting match to the lightship. The wind now came light from the eastward. The order of passing the latter place was—Janet, Volunteer, Era, Wanderer, Iduna, and Taniwha. Era and Iduna had a luffing match, and got becalmed over on the western shore, allowing the other boats to get away from them. Volunteer making good pace assumed command of the fleet. The N.E. breeze was very light. It was some time before the Era and Iduna got the breeze. The former was the first to feel it, passing Janet, and ran into third place. The time rounding the first mark boat was—Volunteer, 11h. 35m. 34s.; Wanderer, 11h. 38m. 57s.; Era, 11h. 39m. 43s.; Janet, 11h. 43m. 41s.; Iduna, 11h. 49m.; Taniwha, 11h. 57m. 30s. After rounding the boats all becalmed. Volunteer drifted away to the leeward of the others. This was the state of things till 1.25 p.m., when Era got the breeze right aft from S.W. and set a spinnaker, but it did not last more than a couple of minutes, and for another 40 minutes they were becalmed. Then the breeze came from the S.E., Era getting the first of it, made good headway. Volunteer was the last to feel it. Janet cut Era out at the flagboat off Brighton, which was rounded—Janet, 2h. 12m. 10s.; Era, 2h. 12m. 30s.; Taniwha, 2h. 22m.; Iduna, 2h. 23m.; Wanderer, 2h. 24m. 30s.; Volunteer, 2h. 31m. Spinnakers were kept on for the run to the Sandridge buoy. The two leading yachts had several luffing matches, and kept together till off Picnic Point, when Era went away with the lead, and rounded the buoy—Era, 3h. 29m. 42s.; Janet, 3h. 30m. 17s.; Iduna, 3h. 39m. 20s.; Wanderer, 3h. 39m. 53s.; Taniwha, 3h. 40m. 46s.; Volunteer, 3h. 44m. 25s. Coming on the wind, Era increased her lead down to No. 1 mark boat, which was rounded—Era, 4h. 23m. 18s.; Janet, 4h. 29m. 43s.; Iduna, 4h. 35m. 45s.; Wanderer, 4h. 36m. 17s.; Volunteer, 4h. 38m. 44s.; Taniwha, 4h. 41m. 54s. Era made one board to clear Brighton buoy. The breeze was now getting stronger. The time of rounding the Brighton buoy was—Era, 5h. 6m. 43s.; Janet, 5h. 14m. 12s.; Iduna, 5h. 15m. 3s.; Volunteer, 5h. 15m. 45s.; Wanderer, 5h. 16m. 47s. Spinnakers were hoisted for the run. Volunteer getting to weather, the Iduna passed her. The wind got very light, and at 6 o'clock a "buster" from the north-west sprang up. Kites were quickly stowed, and the breeze strengthening, topsails were taken in. The Sandridge buoy was rounded—Era, 6h. 9m. 43s.; Janet, 6h. 15m. 45s.; Volunteer, 6h. 16m. 37s.; Wanderer, 6h. 16m. 54s.; Iduna, 6h. 17m. 42s. One board brought them round the flagship, the finishing times being—Era, 6h. 20m. 14½s.; Janet, 6h. 25m. 32s.; Volunteer, 6h. 26m. 49½s.; Iduna, 6h. 27m. 21s.; Wanderer, 6h. 29m. 10½s.; Taniwha, 6h. 32m. 11s. The course was reduced to 32 miles. The handicaps would also be reduced. According to the rules from the times, Iduna takes first prize, Era second, and Volunteer third. There being some confusion as to the side of the flagship to finish on, the boats will not be officially placed till the regatta committee meeting to-night.

Matters connected with the regatta are in a great state of confusion, the difficulty arising through the position of the starting boat. The committee sat till midnight endeavouring to come to a decision in regard to the yacht race, and have decided that it should be re-sailed on Monday over the original course, starting at 10 o'clock. The Era will probably start under protest.

The race for yachts exceeding 5 and not exceeding 10 tons was won by the Akarana, the Cooeena being second, and the Madge third. The Akarana won irrespective of her handicap. The race for boats not exceeding 20ft. was won by the Katie (Vict.), Itonia, H. Carpenter, Sydney, being second. A protest was entered by the Itonia, owing to the winner not finishing according to the rules. The Mayflower, which is matched against the Aileen for Monday, won a race to-day for fishermen's boats exceeding 25ft.

The Assegai has not yet arrived, and great disappointment is felt. The Konoowarra spoke her yesterday about 6 o'clock 37 miles off the Heads. The Assegai was short of water, and the Konoowarra supplied her. It appears she was caught in a southerly gale on Sunday, and the tank shifting, the bung came out. They had only two gallons of water till the steamer met her.

THE LAND BOARD AND SURVEY OFFICES AT TAMWORTH.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

TAMWORTH, FRIDAY.

A public meeting was held here last night for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken to represent to the Minister for Lands the claims of Tamworth and district for the retention of the land board and survey offices at Tamworth. The attendance was large and influential, and a very earnest and determined feeling prevailed. The chair was occupied by the Mayor (Mr. J. Piper). Mr. W. F. Tribe proposed the first resolution,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, owing to the action taken by the residents of Narrabri in urging upon the Minister for Lands the necessity of removing the land boards and survey offices from Tamworth and Moree to Narrabri, immediate action be taken to place before the Minister sufficient facts to show the injustice and undesirability of such a step." In the course of his speech, he urged as the reasons for the retention of the land offices here, that the rainfall of Tamworth was greater than that of Narrabri; that there were 246 selectors in Tamworth who had had their applications confirmed by the board, whereas in Narrabri there were only 67; that the number of selectors under the Act of 1884 in Tamworth alone exceeded the number in Narrabri, Gunnedah, and Coonabarabran together; that in the year 1887 there were 66 applicants for conditional leases in Tamworth, whereas in Narrabri there were only 36; that in the Tamworth district a selector was able to live on 40 acres of land, whereas in the Narrabri district selectors had been known to take up 640 acres, and had then been forced to abandon the selections in despair, being unable to make a living out of them. In this district it was only necessary to look all round at such places as Dungowan and Currabubula and other places that could be named, to see the thrifty hard-working farmers making an honest living, who, if they went to Narrabri would starve. Tamworth returned nearly the largest land revenue in the colony, whereas the revenue from Narrabri was comparatively small. The total revenue from Tamworth from the year 1883 to the 17th of this month was £123,527 16s. 5d. It was well known that the land taken up in the Narrabri district was for the purpose of land jobbing. People could not go there and settle down as farmers. They took up 640 acres there, and for what purpose? To go on with their improvements as far as they were able, and then sell out to the squatter. Here on any road that might be travelled there would be found bona-fide selectors. The resolution was seconded by Mr. Nathan Cohen, J.P., and carried unanimously. The second resolution was,—"That a deputation consisting of Messrs. J. Piper, W. F. Tribe, N. Cohen, W. J. K. Piddington, and the mover, with power to add to their number, be empowered to prepare a protest in accordance with the foregoing resolution, and that these gentlemen wait upon the Minister for Lands in reference to the matter." Several other gentlemen spoke strongly on the subject.

WATER STRUCK ON KERRIBREE RUN.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BOURKE, FRIDAY.

Further particulars in reference to Kerribree No. 1 bore show that at a depth of 1073ft., the drill entered a cavity 18ft. deep. A immense body of water shot up, the temperature being over 100deg. The supply is estimated at 250,000 gallons per diem, the water forming a stream already reaching some miles.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

What is certain to be an interesting meeting is to take place at Canterbury Park to-day. In addition to the regular trains, specials will be despatched from Redfern station at 12.15 and 12.45 for Ashfield, where vehicles will be in attendance to convey visitors to the course. The flag for the first race will go down at 1.30, and as the various events have filled well, and are exceptionally open, a large attendance may be predicted. Business will commence with the Flying Handicap, for which Victory stands at the top of the tree with the very respectable impost of 8st. 10lb., which is just about enough for him to manage in such speedy company. A very fast lot are to be found here, and at the weights it is difficult to split Pugilist, Hoppicker, Lady Lovel, and Clement, but as the former always runs well he may be the best investment. The Hypocrite, Herbina, and Steeltrap are likely to have the winner of the Park Stakes amongst them; and Creeper, Recruit, and Sentence may come home as named for the Disposal Stakes. The November Handicap closed with 17 nominations, and a pretty fair field will face Mr. Dawson. There cannot be a doubt but that Victory is the best horse engaged, and he has not been imposed upon when asked to carry 8st. 7lb., for the length of the trip will be just to his taste. Shooting Star seems to have been well taken care of at 8st. 3lb., and Here's Luck might also have been let off a little easier; but in the event of Pugilist not incurring a penalty by winning the first race, he should be particularly hard to beat. With so much foot at her disposal, Zephyr reads very well with 7st. 5lb., and she and Pugilist will probably fight it out. Glenvale is fairly thrown in with 6st. 9lb., and stands out in relief as the best of the light weights. Unless Sentence strips in her old form Clement and Creeper may settle the question of the Prince of Wales' Stakes between them; and Marinea, Searle (late Belvidere), and Charcoal will probably compose the first flight for the Stewards' Mile.

It is to be regretted that the Blacktown meeting will clash with the Canterbury Park to-day, otherwise the neat little gathering that has to be discussed would have attracted a fair share of the regulars from the metropolis. Half-a-dozen events are set for decision, and, although the fields will not be numerous, there is every likelihood of some good racing.

The Jewel has been scratched for the Carrington Stakes and Tattersall's Cup. Books have been opened upon the two races referred to, and prices for the double range from 1000 to 3 to 1000 to 5, according to selections. Notwithstanding that the committee of the Australian Jockey Club have ruled to the contrary, it is understood that the Rosehill Racing Club will hold its April meeting as advertised. The matter of dates is certain to become a vexed question in racing circles, and it becomes the duty of all interested to meet each other in a friendly spirit, with "fair play" and "give and take" as the motto in order to prevent open war.

Entries for the Sydney Driving Park meeting, which is to take place on Wednesday next, closed yesterday, when 22 found their way into the Time Handicap Trot, 13 into the Handicap Galloway Race, 12 into the Handicap Pony Race, six into the Three-minutes Class Trot, seven into the Galloway Selling Race, and seven into the Pony Selling Race. The handicaps will be declared on Monday next, and ponies and galloways will be measured at 4 p.m. on that day on the Agricultural Ground. The next monthly meeting will be held on the 15th December, and the programme will shortly be advertised. The supplementary meeting, fixed for the 12th of next month, has been cancelled.

MURRUMBIDGEE TURF CLUB.

SECOND DAY, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23.

WAGGA WAGGA, FRIDAY.

The Spring Meeting of the Murrumbidgee Turf Club was continued and concluded to-day, when the weather was intensely hot, and the attendance very much less than on the opening day. The various officials carried out their duties satisfactorily, and the sport passed off without accident or mishap. Racing commenced with the Flying Handicap, for which seven went to the post. Winnie was most in request, but the favourite never showed prominently at any stage of the game, and Quail, who held a good position throughout, left her horses at the distance and won comfortably by a couple of lengths. Five carried silk for the Second Foal Stakes, for which Defiance and Phœbe divided the honours in the betting market. Louis had a fair amount of support, while long prices could be got about any of the others. A straggling start sent Minuette away in advance, and she led to the turn for home, where Defiance and Phœbe put in their claims, and, despite his penalty, the former romped home an easy winner. For some unaccountable reason all the horses entered for the Disposal Stakes were scratched, and that event consequently fell through. Nine out of the 16 coloured on the card took part in the Town Plate, for which Ailsa was elected favourite, but he never got into the front division, and Minerva secured an easy victory. The Steeplechase brought about a splendid contest, and, despite the penalty incurred by his victory in the Hurdle Race, Pestal was accorded strong support. All the competitors fenced faultlessly, but Oddfellow and Bones were beaten off at an early stage of the game, and the favourite won a grand race amid great excitement. Desmond had the greatest number of friends for Ladies' Bracelet, for which nine faced the flag, but when they got fairly going Titus took charge of affairs, was never headed, and won comfortably by a couple of lengths from Drumstick and Desmond, who fought out a good battle for second place. A final flutter wound up the day's proceedings, that event having been substituted for the Disposal Stakes, and four out of half-dozen entries went to the post. Billgoe was elected favourite, and never leaving the issue in doubt from the start, won cleverly by a length.

The following is an account of the racing:—

FLYING HANDICAP of 75 sovs—6 furlongs.

Mr. W. Curran's br m Quail, by Horatio—Target, 5 yrs., 8st. 5lb. (Curran) ... 1
Mr. P. Heffernan's b g Drumstick, aged, 8st. 12lb. (Williams) ... 2
Mr. W. Hyland's b m Emeralda, 5 yrs., 7st. 12lb. (Moncrieff) 3
Mr. J. Cox's ch m Capaquin, 3 yrs., 6st. (Stone) ... 0
Mr. C. B. Bruce ns ch g Salford, 5 yrs., 6st. 6lb. (Smith) ... 0
Mr. H. Lamb's br m Rosebay, 5 yrs., 7st. 6lb. (O'Mealy) ... 0
Mr. H. Hoystead's b m Winnie, 5 yrs., 8st. (Hales) ... 0

Betting: 6 to 4 v. Winnie, 3 to 1 each v. Drumstick and Quail, 5 to 1 v. Capaquin, 10 to 1 v. any other.

The signal was given to a bad start, Emeralda getting well away, while Capaquin was last to leave the post. Following up her advantage Emeralda showed the way past the five-furlong post and to the half-mile post, where Salford took up the running, just clear of Emeralda and Drumstick, the latter of whom was the first to appear in the straight, but Quail came through at the distance, and, drawing away, won comfortably by a couple of lengths from Drumstick, who was three lengths in advance of Emeralda. Salford was fourth, Winnie fifth, Rosebay sixth, and Capaquin last. Time, 1 minute 17½ seconds.

SECOND FOAL STAKES, a sweepstakes of 10 sovs. each, added to the 100 sovs. given by the M. T. C. For then two-year-olds; colts, 8st. 10lb.; fillies, 8st. 7lb.; geldings allowed 5lb. Second horse to receive 20 sovs. out of the stake. 6 furlongs.

Mr. W. Wyatt's b c Defiance, by Glorious—Nea, 7lb. penalty (Hopkins) ... 1
Mr. J. Mitchell's b f Phœbe, by Glorious—Evangeline (Hales) 2
Mr. S. Miller's br or br f Lois, by Bras de Fer—Naita (Turner) ... 3
Mr. John Allsopp's br f Minuette, by Goldsbrough—Melody (Robinson) ... 0
Mr. M. H. Devlin's br f Sunny Locks, by Sunrise—Golden Locks (Williams) ... 0

Betting: 7 to 4 each v. Defiance and Phœbe, 4 to 1 v. Lois, 10 to 1 v. any other.

The word was given to a straggling start, of which Minuette had all the best, while Louis was the last to get away. Minuette piloted the field round the bend a length in advance of Defiance, Phœbe and Louis on terms, but the daughter of Goldsbrough melted out of it at the turn for home, where Defiance took command, and won easily by three lengths. Minuette was fourth, and Sunny Locks was the last to finish. Time, 1 minute 17 seconds.

TOWN PLATE, a handicap of 100 sovs., with a sweep of 2 sovs. each for starters; second horse to receive 20 sovs. out of the stakes; 1½ mile.

Betting: 2 to 1 v. Ailsa, 3 to 1 v. Minerva, 5 to 1 v. Night Owl, 6 to 1 v. Erin's Isle, 10 to 1 v. any other.

The flag was lowered to a bad start, Minerva getting well away, and Erin's Isle was the last to move, but when they were fairly going, Hopkins steadied Minerva, and Emeralda took command, followed by Glaucus, who was just clear of Night Owl and Khedive, with the favourite next. In that order they ran to the seven furlongs post, where Glaucus joined Emeralda, and the pair showed the way to the three-quarters mile-post, where Minerva began to draw upon the leaders, and took charge of affairs ere another furlong had been travelled, with W. E. Gladstone, Glaucus, and Ailsa in close attendance. Minerva was the first in the straight, and, leaving her horses at every stride, won easily by three lengths from Gladstone, who was about four lengths in advance of Glaucus; and then came Khedive, Ailsa, Erin's Isle, Night Owl, and Bestman, with Emeralda last. Time, 2 minutes 11 seconds.

STEEPLECHASE, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each for starters, with 100 sovs. added; second horse to receive 10 sovs. out of the stakes; about 3 miles, over 15 leaps, 3ft. 9in. to 4ft. high.

Mr. R. Batty ns b g Bones, 4 years, 9st. 5lb. (Barker) ... 0

Betting: 7 to 4 v. Pestal, 3 to 1 v. Hector and Bones, 6 to 1 v. Mahdi.

Pestal made play from the start, and piloted the field over the first fence and past the stand, followed by Bones, Hector, Mahdi, and Oddfellow in that order, and the positions were unchanged until they reached the back of the course, where the favourites and Bones were 20 lengths clear from Hector and Mahdi, Oddfellow being thus early in trouble. Rounding the bend the field closed up, and as they negotiated the treble in front of the stand, Mahdi was leading Hector by half a length, with Pestal and Bones a length off on terms, all jumping well. No material alteration took place as they raced along the back stretch and to the half-mile post, where Pestal, Mahdi, and Hector were together, with Bones beaten off. Pestal led over the last obstacle, just clear of Mahdi, who had Hector on his girths, and a splendid struggle took place in the run home, but at the end the favourite drew away, and won by a full length from Hector, who was half a dozen lengths clear from Mahdi, while Oddfellow and Bones cantered in. Time, 6 minutes 27 seconds.

Betting: 2 to 1 v. Desmond, 3 to 1 v. Marksman, 5 to 1 v. Drumstick, 10 to 1 each v. Mercury and Titus, 20 to 1 v. any other.

From a good start Bestman was the first to show, but when fairly going Titus took command, and, making every post a winning post, won easily by two lengths from Drumstick, who just beat Desmond by a neck for second place. Marksman was fourth, Bestman fifth, and the rest straggling were whipped in by Golden Ray. Time, 1 minute 44 seconds.

THE HALF FINAL FLUTTER, of 25 sovs.—7 furlongs.

Betting: 6 to 4 on Billygoe, 3 to 1 v. Humbug, 4 to 1 v. Night Owl, 5 to 1 v. Memento.

The favourite led all the way, and won by a length from Night Owl, who was three lengths clear of Memento, with Humbug half a length off last. Time, 1 minute 31 seconds.

MAITLAND AMATEUR PICNIC RACE CLUB.

WEST MAITLAND, FRIDAY.

A meeting of sportsmen was held in Mann's Excelsior Hotel last evening, for the purpose of winding up affairs in connection with the late amateur picnic race meeting and considering the advisability of forming an amateur club. The Mayor, Mr. John Gillies, was in the chair, and the meeting was well attended. Mr. Geo. L. Lee, treasurer, stated that a sum of £74 remained to the credit of the committee. On the motion of Mr. W. H. Mullen, seconded by Mr. James Main, it was resolved to form a new club, under the title of the Maitland Amateur Picnic Race Club. A large number were enrolled as members, and the election of officers resulted as follows:—President, J. Gillies; vice-presidents, W. H. Mullen, W. J. Birkenhead; treasurer, G. L. Lee; secretary, W. C. Quinton; committee, W. C. Markwell, J. Main, H. Prentice, S. Cohen, B. Bouffier, C. Prentice, C. Mitchell, R. Hyndes, P. Marshall, W. Smith. With a view to provide a substantial prize for the opening meeting, a Members' Handicap of £50, the Mayor and Messrs. Birkenhead, Mullen, Marshall, and Smith contributed £5 each. The committee will meet on Monday evening to appoint the date of the opening meeting.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN IN ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

The weather was terribly warm to-day, when the Australian Eleven began the first match of their Australian tour against a fairly strong South Australian team. Beautiful wickets had been prepared. Giffen won the toss from M'Donnell, and to the surprise of the spectators he put the Australians in first. Reedman and Geo. Giffen started the bowling. The scores opened with three byes. Each bowler sent down three maidens before Trott drove Reedman for 3, and hit Giffen for 2. Bannerman opened his account by lifting Reedman to square-leg. With the total at 14, Trott was caught at the wickets. Jones came in, but after a bye was run, Bannerman was well caught at mid-off. Lyons came in and put the first ball dangerously near point, but scored a brace and then skied Reedman and was missed by Turner, who was baulked by the glare of the sun. In the same over Jones called for a run, though slip fielded the ball, and Lyons was easily run out. 3 for 19. Jarvis filled the vacancy, and ran up 9 by streaky play, when Jones called a short run, and the South Australian was run out. M'Donnell began with a drive for 4 off Reedman. After lunch M'Donnell got 4 for a nice square leg hit, but off the next ball he was magnificently caught at mid-off from a hard low drive. Turner was the next man, but only made 5 when he played too late at Giffen, and was bowled. 6 for 62. Blackham followed, and was soon bowled by Reedman. Worrall got Reedman's first ball to square leg for 4, and drove him high for a similar number. Worrall continued to hit; when he made 17 he lifted Giffen to long field. Walter Giffen badly misjudged the ball, and three runs were scored, bringing 90 up. Worrall brought the century in sight by hitting Giffen to the boundary again. Worrall lifted Giffen, and again Walter Giffen dropped a catch, although he got the ball fair into his hands, Worrall cut Giffen to the chains. Reedman then gave way to Turner, another junior bowler. A separation came from Giffen, off whose bowling Worrall was well caught in the long field. Eight for 114. Edwards joined Jones, and the pair played carefully. Turner was not successful with the ball, and gave way to Delaney, who made his first appearance in a big match. Edwards hit the new bowler to leg for 4. When Jones had made 46 he was smartly caught at the wickets. He played a fine defensive innings without giving a chance. Ferris was the last man. Edwards was nearly caught at slip off Delaney, placing the ball between the brothers Giffen. Off the next ball Ferris was caught and bowled, and the innings terminated for 134. The fielding, with the exception of Walter Giffen, was good. Giffen bowled splendidly.

Wigley, a young player, and Reedman, a second season junior, opened the South Australian innings. Jarvis kept wickets. Wigley cut Turner's first ball nicely for 3. Ferris opened at the other end. Reedman placed one for 2 and drove the next to the boundary. Wigley obtained 4 for a forward cut off Turner. A snick to Wigley off Turner, and a late cut by Reedman off Ferris made the total 20 in 10 minutes. The score continued to mount rapidly. Wigley got Turner to the leg boundary, while Reedman drove Ferris for 4. At 30 Trott took the ball from Turner and Jones went on at the other end. Reedman cut Trott for 2 and hit Jones to the leg chains, while Wigley cut Trott sweetly to the boundary. With half the century posted, Lyons replaced Trott. Wigley drove him for 3. Reedman cut him uppishly for 2 and drove him for 3, bringing 60 up as the result of 45 minutes' play. Worrall tried his hand with the ball, vice Jones. Off Lyons' next over, Wigley drove the ball just over Turner's head to the boundary. The change did not reduce the scoring, and at 75 Blackham relieved Worrall with underhands, while Turner took the leather from Lyons. The stumps were drawn a few moments later. The following are the scores:—

THE BRISBANE AQUATIC CARNIVAL.

RECEPTION OF SEARLE AND MATTERSON IN BRISBANE.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

Searle and Matterson arrived this morning, and were met at the railway station by the Aquatic Carnival Committee, and driven in a four-in-hand to their quarters. A public welcome took place at noon, at the Metropolitan Hotel. There was a very large attendance. The Mayor proposed the health of the visitors in complimentary terms. Both Searle and Matterson briefly responded. The latter said he did not think there was a better river for rowing in the colonies than the Brisbane. The scullers will use the Breakfast Creek Rowing Club's shed, which has been placed at their disposal for training purposes. Both were out for a pull this afternoon. The champion is very favourably impressed with the course selected.

CRICKET.

NEW SOUTH WALES CRICKET ASSOCIATION.

An adjourned special meeting of the New South Cricket Association was held on Friday evening at the Oxford Hotel, to further consider the question of the programme of intercolonial matches for this season. Mr. P. B. Walker occupied the chair, there being also present Messrs. A. Docker, D. Gregory, Gibson, Clayton, Hallegan, Moss, C. R. Smith, R. C. Beveridge, Harris, Faithfull, and V. Cohen. The following telegram was read from Mr. E. D. Heather, secretary of the Victorian Cricketers' Association:—"My association met on Tuesday evening, and the following resolution was carried unanimously: 'That this association adhere to the resolution passed at last meeting, but will hold over further action until Monday next, 26th, to await final reply from you.'" A letter was also read to the same effect. Mr. D. Gregory moved,—"That this association agree to play Victoria on the 26th of January in Sydney, and will send a team to Adelaide to play in February or March next." In doing so he remarked that the income from the intercolonial matches in Melbourne had been steadily decreasing. In 1883 it was £1583 3s. 6d.; in 1884, £1053 3s. 6d.; in 1885, £884 3s. 6d.; in 1886, £579 15s.; and in 1887, £464 17s. 6d. This was put forward by the Victorians as a proof that the public interest in big matches was declining. Mr. Clayton pointed out that although the Victorians had stated that their desire was to lessen the number of big matches, they were not doing so, but were simply endeavouring to replace one match with New South Wales by another with South Australia. He moved as an amendment,—"That the previous resolution of the New Cricket Association stand, and that the same be intimated to the Victorian Cricketers' Association." The resolution is as follows:—"That each colony should arrange its intercolonial matches with other colonies without consulting any colony not interested in the particular matches. 2. That this association decide that upon further consideration this association cannot depart from their previous resolution, viz., that the two intercolonial matches between New South Wales and Victoria should be continued as hitherto this season." Mr. Gibson trusted that the delegates would not allow themselves to be dictated to by Adelaide. He would be sorry to see these intercolonial matches suspended, because he had always considered them by far the most important fixtures in the colonies. At the same time he considered that they should not give way because they were being boycotted by two other associations. The amendment was then put, and carried by 9 votes to 3. Mr. Harris moved,—"That a delegate be sent to confer with the Victorian Cricket Association in reference to the intercolonial matches." The motion was carried. A discussion ensued as to the powers to be given to the delegate, but no formal resolution was moved on the subject. Mr. Gibson was ultimately appointed delegate, and the meeting adjourned.

THE VICTORIAN REGATTA CARNIVAL.

The 6-ton cutter-yacht Assegai, which left here on the 11th instant, has up to the present not put in an appearance in Hobson's Bay, although she was spoken by the s.s. Barcoo inward bound at daylight on Thursday last, being then about 40 miles off the port. The wind for the following 24 hours appears to have been favourable, although light. At 3 p.m. yesterday the weather report states:—"Cape Schanck, N.W., moderate, thick smoky, sultry." This will retard her progress considerably, being right ahead. Queenscliff at same time reports wind N.N.E., foggy, fine. The Assegai may yet have an opportunity of showing her speed in the sister colony, she being also entered for the race which takes place to-day for yachts not exceeding 20 tons. Yachtsmen generally will be greatly disappointed at the little boat's non-arrival. There is no doubt that with Mr. Harry Stevens at the tiller she would have been well to the front at the finish. Particulars of the first day's racing at the regatta carnival will be found in another column from our special reporter.

AQUATICS.

THE INTERCOLONIAL EIGHT-OAR RACE.

The twelfth intercolonial eight-oar contest takes place on the Parramatta River this afternoon. Both crews practically ceased hard work on Thursday night, and yesterday they enjoyed a rest in order to be in the best possible condition for to-day's struggle. The Victorians are in really grand form, and seem fit for anything. They are a splendid crew, and may be trusted to give a good account of themselves from the start to the finish. Possessing a very fast boat, rowing well together, and working in perfect unison, it is to be expected that they will make the pace very hot from the start—in fact, with suitable conditions of wind and weather, we may probably see the race rowed in very fast time, as the tide will be a good ebb. The New South Wales crew did a splendid row on Thursday evening, their time for the mile, from The Brothers to Cabarita, being 4 minutes 44 seconds. Their rowing was splendid, and a surprise to all who witnessed the spin. J. M'Donell, who was rowing No. 6, has taken the position of stroke, and F. Belbridge has taken his place on the sixth thwart in the boat. A considerable improvement has been effected by the change, as M'Donell has more dash than the former stroke, who, however, was an earnest rower, and a very hard worker. Under the circumstances, it is scarcely necessary to state that the Victorians are the favourites for the race—indeed, some of the rowing men of this colony have been heard to say that the New South Wales men have "no show" against their veteran rivals. On the other hand, those who know the men, and have watched them at their work, opine that our representatives will make a better fight of it this afternoon than did the last intercolonial eight we sent to Melbourne. At any rate, they may be trusted to do their best. Barring accident, they will certainly row a good race, and if they prove equal to the form shown during their closing spins, they should push the Victorians very hard. So far as the boats in which the rival crews will row are concerned, it must be admitted that the Victorians have a great advantage over the light blues. The Melbourne craft is much faster than the eight which will be used by the New South Wales representatives. The race will start between 3.45 p.m. and 4 o'clock. The steamers Admiral and Birkenhead will follow the crews. Mr. Macdermott, the acting hon. secretary of the New South Wales Rowing Association, wishes it to be known that members must produce their tickets before being admitted to either of the steamers.

The following are the crews:—

ARRIVAL OF THE NEW ZEALAND FOUR-OARED CREW.

The crew chosen to represent New Zealand in the intercolonial four-oared champion race, to be rowed on the Parramatta River on Saturday, December 1, arrived by the steamer Waihora yesterday afternoon. A large number of friends assembled on the wharf to welcome the New Zealanders to the colony, amongst those present being Mr. Phil. H. Sullivan, hon. treasurer, and Mr. Macdermott, acting hon. secretary of the New South Wales Rowing Association; Mr. Baird, sen., and Mr. Keith Wilson, hon. treasurer (chairman of the New Zealand crew reception committee.) The customary greetings having been exchanged, three ringing cheers were given for the visitors, after which they entered a drag and drove to the Town Hall, where they were introduced to Alderman Chapman, who (in the absence of the Mayor, Mr. John Harris) received the New Zealanders. The reception-room was well filled, several rowing men being present, including Messrs. F. J. Smith, M.L.A., P. J. Clark, Phil. H. Sullivan, Macdermott, J. Blackman, and Zollner. Champagne having been opened,

Alderman CHAPMAN proposed "The health of the New Zealand four-oared crew." He regretted that the Mayor was not present to receive the representative oarsmen of New Zealand; but, acting on his behalf, he had much pleasure in extending a right hearty New South Wales welcome to the visitors. (Applause.)

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm.

Mr. A. L. SMITH (stroke of the New Zealand four) returned thanks on behalf of the crew for the cordial reception they had experienced. He hoped some day to have the pleasure of welcoming a New South Wales crew to New Zealand. (Applause.)

Other toasts followed, after which the visitors drove to the Empire Hotel, where they are staying prior to taking up their quarters on the river. The New Zealand representatives are a powerful crew, and they seem to be in very fair condition. The following are the names, weights, and positions of the men:—

	st.	lb.
E. M. Boulton	11	4
F. A. Styche	11	1
H. F. Nicoll	12	4
A. L. Smith (stroke)	10	7
F. H. Shaw (cox)	4	10

Styche is the new man in the boat; he belongs to the Napier Rowing Club. The other three members belong to the Canterbury Rowing Club. This is the first visit of the crew to New South Wales. Boulton, Nicoll, and Smith formed part of the crew that won the championship of New Zealand last year. They will row in a Swaddle and Winship boat, which has been in use for six years. A new craft was ordered from Clasper for the forthcoming race; but the crew did not receive her before leaving New Zealand. The men will train from Mortlake. The reception committee intend to give them a picnic on Middle Harbour.

THE TASMANIAN FOUR-OARED CREW.

The Tasmanian four-oared crew will probably arrive from Melbourne by to-day's express. They will be met at the Redfern station by a number of gentlemen representing the New South Wales Rowing Association, after which they will be taken to the Town Hall and formally welcomed to the colony.

A handicap race will take place this afternoon for the patron's (Mr. S. Burdekin, M.L.A.) trophy. The entries and handicaps are as follows:—Scylla, 24ft.; Idothea, 4ft.; Lavinia, 24ft.; Wilfred, 24ft.; Our Jack, 24ft., scratch; Iolanthe, 24ft., and Irene, 22ft., 1 minute; Rossmore, 22ft., 2 minutes; Myosoti, 22ft., 3 minutes; and Imogene, 22ft., 4 minutes. A steamer will leave Man-of-War Stairs, Fort Macquarie, at 2.30 p.m., to follow the race. The Balmain Sailing Club also have a race, which will start at 3 p.m., for dingies, 14ft. and under, the entries and handicaps being: Regina, 14ft., T. Colebrook; Thomas Punch, 14ft., J. The course to be sailed over will be from moorings off Whitehorse Point, round Goat Island, back round schooners moored near Iron Cove Bridge, thence round Goat and back to flag-boat off Whitehorse Point, the prizes being trophies for first and second boats. Messrs. W. H. Pasey and W. H. Golding will act as umpire and starter respectively.

NEW SOUTH WALES RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

Lady Carington having consented to distribute the prizes won at the 28th annual prize meeting of the New South Wales Rifle Association to the successful competitors, the ceremony will take place at the Elite Skating Rink, Elizabeth-street, on Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock. His Excellency the Governor, it is understood, has intimated his intention of being present, and the chair will be taken by the president (the Hon. Sir W. M. Manning, M.L.C.). The parade of the various divisions of the Defence Forces will be formed up within the building at a quarter-past 7.

FISHING.

The Nimrod Fishing Club held their second outing of the quarter on Thursday, and it proved to be the most successful outing held this season. The total number of fish caught was 380. The schnapper caught were very large, some weighing as heavy as 10lbs. and 12lbs. each. The first prize for best catch was won by Mr. G. Eastway, the second by Mr. Summers, and the third by Mr. Crimp.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Miss Carrie Swain finished her long and successful engagement at this theatre last night, when her benefit was announced. There was a fair house, and the eccentricities of Mab were received with the usual favour. To-night the well-known play "Struck Oil" will be produced. Mr. Williamson will take his old part of John Stofel, and Miss Maggie Moore will once more appear in the character of Lizzie Stofel. The principals will be well supported, and the scenic effects are sure to be of an elaborate character.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

During the week "The Rajah" has drawn very good houses, and as the piece is to be continued during next week it is likely to be as attractive as ever. Next Saturday the Majeroni's will appear at this theatre in one of their best selections, the particulars of which will be published shortly.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"The Butler" last night drew a crowded house, and there is no doubt that had the arrangements of the management admitted of the retention of the piece, it would have been similarly successful for some weeks to come. To-night Mr. Frank Thornton will appear in his clever impersonation of the Rev. Robt. Spalding, "The Private Secretary." He will be supported by Mr. Harwood, in his old part of Mr. Cattermole, and the rest of the cast will be filled by a most efficient company.

GAIETY THEATRE—MISS DETCHON.

Miss Detchon has drawn crowded houses during the week, and last night, which was her final performance in Sydney, there was a very large audience. The performance was much appreciated, and the only regret expressed was that Mr. Edward Owen, owing to his continued indisposition, was unable to appear. It is gratifying to know, however, that Mr. Owen, although his illness is rather severe, is recovering, and that he will shortly be able to appear in public again. We may mention that Miss Detchon has not completed arrangements to appear in any of the other colonies at present, but will take a rest in the Blue Mountain before leaving New South Wales.

TRAMWAY EMPLOYEES' REUNION.

A reunion of the tramway employees belonging to what is known as Foreman Haliday's shift, or No. 2 division, took place at the Bondi Aquarium last evening, and was a most successful affair. A special tram was provided for the convenience of the employees and their families, a very considerable number of whom availed themselves of the pleasure afforded by the evening journey to the coast. Advantage was taken of the occasion to present the prizes won at the recent tramway employees' picnic and sports, held at Clontarf. The duty of making the presentations devolved upon Mr. J. W. Tyrer, chief clerk in the department, who worthily filled the position for which he had been selected. A programme of vocal numbers was afterwards gone through, and subsequently dancing was indulged in, to music provided by Mills' string band. A large number of the visitors patronised the switchback railway, and several were to be seen enjoying a run on the skates at the open-air rink. The various parts of the establishment were visited, and all the pleasure-seekers were apparently well satisfied with the arrangements that had been made to ensure their comfort and enjoyment. The Bondi Aquarium Company kindly granted the use of the building and grounds free of charge, and during the evening the thanks of the visitors were accorded to the company for the kindness they had exhibited. The weather throughout was delightfully cool, and the refreshing breeze from the ocean lent a zest to the pleasant outing. A special tram conveyed the party back to town shortly before 11 o'clock.

OTHER AMUSEMENTS.

The excellent variety entertainment given at the Alhambra Music Hall, Haymarket, ensures sustained popularity for this place of amusement. The usual change of programme will take place on Monday night.

Mr. Harry Rickards, the popular comic vocalist, has during the week drawn crowded houses at the New Haymarket Music Hall. His original comic songs and other specialities always create the utmost merriment, and as he is supported by a thoroughly efficient company the entertainment provided is a successful one.

The aquariums and skating rinks have been well patronised during the week. No doubt these places of resort will to-day attract the large attendance of the public usual on Saturday.

A promenade concert will take place at the Crystal Palace Rink, York-street, to-night, when a very attractive programme will be presented. Among those who are announced to sing are Miss Frances Saville, Miss Colbourne Baber, Miss Dora Wiley, Miss Elsa Sherwin, Miss Acton Blair, Mr. F. J. Hallewell, Mr. T. Rainford, and Mr. Warwick Gainor, and amongst the instrumentalists we notice the names of Mr. Rivers Allpress, Mons. Poussard, and Mons. Kowalski.

A concert and dramatic entertainment will take place to-night at the New Masonic Hall for the benefit of the widow and orphans of the late William Barter, an old compositor. Among the artists engaged for the occasion are Mrs. F. J. Riley, Mons. Henri Kowalski, Mr. J. G. Hinchey, Mr. E. J. Massey, and others.

Mr. George Leitch opens at Brisbane in "Harbour Lights" and "Human Nature," for the carnival. It is probable he may produce a new play during his engagement.

A well patronised concert was held in the Town Hall, Redfern, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Loyal Eureka Lodge, M.U.I.A.O.O., in aid of Bro. J. W. M'Queen, who is in distressed circumstances through long sickness. He has a wife and family. A programme consisting of 23 items was gone through by a number of vocalists, who all carried out their respective parts. Mr. John Roberts acted as pianist. Mr. Ed. Schofield, C. S. of the order, presided, and he was supported by Provincial Grand Master J. Bell, and Mr. J. Laing, Deputy Provincial Grand Master. Mr. Fred Pike acted as hon. secretary, and Mr. John Guthrie as hon. treasurer. The Tramway Band performed efficiently during the evening.

A very pleasing and successful entertainment was given in the City Mission Hall, Chippendale, on Wednesday evening, by the Choral Union and Bible Improvement Class of that district. Mr. J. Abbott presided. The first part consisted of solos and choruses given by Mrs. Dobbie, Miss Webber, and the members of the Choral Union. The second part was a mock trial entitled "Emigrating to the Far West," the object being to show the benefits of total abstinence as against drink. Mr. J. Palmer, conductor of the Choral Union, acted as Lord Chief Justice, and performed his part very well, as did the others. The hall was crowded to excess.

CASUALTIES.

About 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon a man, who has since been identified as William Veney, was seen to fall on the footpath at the corner of Macquarie and Goulburn streets. He was taken to the hospital by Constable Hamilton in an insensible condition, and died in that institution at 5 a.m. yesterday morning. It is supposed that he died from epilepsy.

A fatal accident occured on the Saywell tramline shortly before 9 o'clock last night, when a man, name unkown, was run over and severely mangled. His left foot was cut off, and the lower portion of the body was crushed. The deceased was conveyed to Sydney by the 9.15 p.m. train from Hurstville, and Dr. Macdonald, who happened to be on the station, examined the body and pronounced life extinct. The body was removed to the South Sydney Morgue. The deceased bore the appearance of a labourer.

Shortly before noon yesterday a carpenter named William Litherd, residing at No. 67, Grove-street, Balmain, was sitting in a boatswain's chair at a building at the back of George-street, when the tackling gave way. The chair was at a height of 60ft. Litherd saved his life by sliding down a rope, but he received a fracture of one of the bones of the ankle and numerous abrasions on the hands and arms. He was admitted to the Hospital by Dr. T. C. Fisher.

About 5 p.m. yesterday a sailmaker named Charles Jennings, aged 63, residing in Redfern-street, Waterloo, was knocked down by a cab in Pitt-street. He was admitted to the Hospital by Dr. T. C. Fisher, suffering from injuries to the right leg.

At 8.20 p.m. yesterday a fire was discovered in a dwelling house occupied by A. Lonely, and owned by Mr. Chadier, situated at No. 42, Belmore-street. The outbreak was caused by the use of a candle, and the damage was confined to the window curtains, window sashes, and small toilet articles, which were slightly burned. The fire was extinguished by the inmates and the Standard Brewery Volunteer Company with buckets of water.

Early yesterday morning a serious accident happened to a boy named Ernest Abercrombie, 12 years of age, residing in Palace-street, Ashfield, and employed by Mr. J. Levey as driver of a milk-cart. It appears that as he was driving his cart one of the wheels came in contact with a kerbstone, and he was thrown from the vehicle to the roadway. The other wheel passed over his head, causing such severe injuries as to necessitate his removal to the Prince Alfred Hospital. He was admitted by Dr. Maclemmam, and placed in one of the wards for treatment.

About 7 p.m. on Thursday a man named William Postans, aged 26, residing with Mr. Durham, at Hurstville, was found drowned in a waterhole near his home, by a man named Henry Gardiner. Deceased had left his house about an hour previous to fill a water cask at the waterhole, and it is surmised that he slipped in while so doing. The cask was found partly full of water and a portion of the bank had given way. The matter was reported to Mr. H. J. Wilkinson, J.P.

About 12 o'clock last night an alarm of fire was raised in Clarence-street, smoke and a small flame having been seen issuing from the premises of the New South Wales Rope Works, occupied by Mr. Cranna. The police were quickly on the spot, as were also two engines under the Metropolitan Fire Brigade. On the front doors being burst open it was found that the fire was confined to the dust box in the front office, where it had evidently originated some time previously. A few buckets of water were applied, and serious consequences avoided.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

In mining to-day a good number of sales were recorded, notwithstanding that the day was a bank holiday, and several dealers were absent.

CHARTERS TOWERS, FRIDAY.

A crushing from the 500ft. level of No. 3 Day Dawn has been started. The result will test the quality of that part of the line. The St. George, Queen, and Victoria Grand Junction crushing is suspended owing to the water at the mill giving out. 12,557oz. of gold were sent away by train yesterday. The water supply to the town is becoming a serious question.

The Great Britain P. C., Charters Towers, crushed 128 tons, yielding 222oz. of retorted gold. The crushing was taken from the 4ft. reef.

BROKEN HILL, FRIDAY.

The exports of minerals are as follows:—Proprietary, 12,900 bars bullion, 469 tons 14cwt. 3qr., value £21,206; Junction, 571 bags ore, value £423, and 36 trucks ore, 215 tons 11cwt. 3qr., value £1213; South, 23 trucks ore, 113 tons 2qr., value £715; North, 11 trucks ore, 58 tons 6cwt. 3qr., value £108. On the Broken Hill Block the bore is down 988ft. During the last 15ft. the country has changed from quartzite to schist, which is much softer to work. Pumping machinery is now being erected to overcome the water in the shaft.

COBAR, FRIDAY.

Seventy-eight and a half acres have been applied for at the local mining warden's office during the week just ended. There is little change of note to report on the various claims in work.

FORBES, FRIDAY.

The mining manager of the Eldorado Gold-mining Company reports: The main shaft was sunk 7ft. for the week, the total depth being 181ft. Sinking continues hard, but there are signs of softer rock coming in. The 110ft. shaft has been cleared out from mullock, and is now ready for raising stone. A trial crushing of 15 tons will be taken out without delay. The contract for driving 40ft. west at 110ft. level is now completed, but, quartz veins being still in the face, the contractor has been instructed to go on a few feet further. Several strong veins have been cut, and from all appearances a reef must be in close proximity, adjoining the slate formation. Some quartz from this drive was crushed in a mortar, and showed fair colour of gold. The mining manager of the Britannia Gold-mining Company reports:—The shaft men have cut down the shaft 10ft. and put in timber. Owing to the non-arrival of the wind bore the men will be temporarily placed in the stopes. The mining manager of the Forbes Alluvial Gold-mining Company reports:—The north drive has been extended a distance of 130ft. from the east drive. The air drive is in a distance of 39ft. from the north drive; 15ft. more will connect it with the air shaft. The south drive is in a distance of 158ft. from the east drive. The crosscut going east to the old lead is in 46ft. from the south drive. Have sluiced off four machines of dirt (33 loads to the machine), yielding 17oz. 18dwt.; total for the fortnight, 53oz. 14dwt. of gold.

GUNNEDAH, FRIDAY.

One of the local coal mines has been leased. It is proposed to employ several men immediately to work the mine.

INVERELL, FRIDAY.

At the Warden's Court at Tingha yesterday several applications were made to Warden Fraser for the suspension of work on account of there being no water in the locality available for working purposes. The applications were granted.

MOUNT MACDONALD, FRIDAY.

The owners of the Caledonian mine have completed arrangements with a syndicate from Orange to erect crushing machinery close to their mine. The dam is to be commenced at once. The Caledonian Extended Company are about crushing 100 tons at Oliver and Company's battery. Their reef is over 12ft. wide. Tenders for the construction of a dam for the Mount Macdonald Gold-mining Syndicate will close on the 30th instant. This syndicate are about placing machinery on their property here, formerly known as Butcher's, which party crushed as high as 10oz. to the ton from this mine.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

The Giant's Den Tin-mining Company, Limited, November 17.—The dry weather still continues; no rain has fallen during the past week. I have discharged all hands but two, and we are engaged extending the tail-race down to lower dam to conduct tailings down to tin-saving apparatus that is to be erected. Power to work said machine can be spared from the boiler at the lower dam. The tailings, after passing through machine, can be disposed of with little flowing and the water retained.

Luck's All Gold Mine.—After passing through two small veins in the eastern shaft I struck the main reef on Friday night last at 37ft. from surface. This is larger and better looking than the reef in the old stope. Within the last week we have got 8ft. further in the new tunnel, and about 4 tons have been taken out estimated to go about 2oz. to the ton. Reef here continues to average 10in. thick. Western shaft: Started men stoping north and south at the 33ft. level; the north stope is [illegible], and has opened on a fine body of stone about [illegible] showing a few specs of free gold; about two tons have been taken from this. South stope is in 5ft., and the vein is about 4in. thick at the top, but cuts out thinner at the bottom; nearly a ton obtained from this.

No. 4 North Glanmire Gold-mining Company, Limited, November 15.—We have started stopes on the old eastern reef a little to the north, and below the big break. The reef was very small here, but as we broke into the footwall it increased in size to about 1ft. of quartz and several small leaders, which show a little gold. The country is conglomerate with patches of black rock. On No. 4 reef stopes are carried on north and south of the winze, and a little gold is to be seen. At the eastern shaft the cross-cut east at the 525ft. level has been driven 13ft.; total, 89ft. There is very hard boulder country in the roof of the drive, and a little water is making all over the face. The rise in the formation has been put up 8ft.; total, 35ft. There is a break in the top of the rise, and in breaking down the quartz under it we got good colours of gold. Over the break the country is conglomerate, with a good deal of calcspar quartz. The drive north from the rise has been driven 11ft.; total, 15ft. The country is black rock. During the three weeks, 72 tons 2cwt. of stone has been crushed, for a yield of 145oz. of malgam.

The Little Gem Amalgamated Gold-mining Company, Limited.—The contractor erecting machinery states that the boiler and all the main machinery are in their places and fixed as also the boiler for pumping plant. He is now sending over the pipes in connection with the pumping plant. On the 17th the north drive was in 48ft., country soft, reef 2ft. 7in., gold showing in the stone. Total ore at grass, 221½ tons.

Broken Hill South Silver-mining Company, Limited.—Main engine shaft: The crosscut was driven 2.7ft. east when the hanging wall of the lode was met. We have cut into the lode up to present about 18in.; it is composed of very fine granular galena, being comparatively free from zinc blende. The strength of the lode cannot yet be ascertained. A full complement of miners will be placed to work on this, so that we may early connect with the workings of No. 1 shaft. It will be necessary to obtain an automatic jig, and so treat ore direct as it is raised from the shaft. Water for the treatment of the ore can just now be obtained from the Central, but directly we cut through the lode drives will be opened on its course, and the sinking of a pump winze will be proceeded with, when we hope to get below the depths of the neighbouring mines. No. 1 shaft: The south drive is now in from crosscut 149ft. No change. The lode matter in the winze below the 200ft. north is producing good payable lead and silver ore, in addition to the rich stones or boulders of copper ore. No. 1 Trial shaft: This shaft has been sunk during the past week 29ft., through first-class carbonate ore, which has been forwarded to smelting works as raised. At 61ft. the lode is more massive, and of greater silver value than at any previous time. In about nine days time we expect to open out at the 200ft. level. The south drive is in from shaft 66ft., just as last reported. The winze is down from the brace 34ft., and yielding first class lead ore. The south air-shaft is down 67ft., and without change. The north air-shaft is down 54ft., 30ft. of which has been securely timbered. 110 tons of ore have been forwarded to works per rail during the past week.

Rising Sun South Silver Mine, November 13.—No. 3 underlay shaft has been sunk a further depth of 12ft., making a total of 40ft. from the surface. The lode is 5ft. in width, and is composed of brown micaceous schist, mixed with quartz and iron containing grey ore and carbonates of lead, and underlaying one in three. The course of the lode is south and north, and the western boundary line of your property is south south-west by north north-east. In this case the lode will be a considerable distance from the western boundary in the centre of the property. Attached I hand you an assay taken from the lode in underlay shaft at 32ft. from surface, viz., silver, 8oz. 3dwt. 8gr.; lead, 49 per cent. I am now working three shifts in underlay shaft. The lode is looking very well at present.

COMMERCIAL.

THE WOOL TRADE.

Notwithstanding the heavy catalogues which have been brought forward during the week under review (says the Sydney Mail) there has not been any disposition shown on the part of buyers to slacken their operations. The selection of wools catalogued has been very fair, though superior clips, carefully got up, have been somewhat rare. For the few choice parcels submitted there has been keen bidding amongst buyers for America, prices reaching up to 11¼d., which was obtained for a parcel of Mittagong hoggets in very light condition.

Some good useful wools have also been offered, which, through being too heavy in grease or spoilt in the classing or skirting, failed to meet the requirements of the American trade. Such, however, have had a great deal of attention paid them, chiefly by buyers purchasing on speculative account. Medium descriptions, of which the bulk of the offerings have consisted, have been taken by Continental buyers, who continue to absorb the largest proportion of the catalogues without showing any signs of repletion. Good to superior lambs wool is in favour; but, like the fleece wool, much of this description is reduced below its value otherwise, in consequence of indifferent and careless skirting and classing. Average sorts are in fair demand. Good pieces have been in improved request, and values are a fraction higher; as regards bellies the same may also be said, both being bought for Continental account. Locks are wanted by local scourers. A few parcels of washed fleece, poorly got up in respect of washing, have been catalogued, and judging from the prices bid this description promises to be wanted during the season. Scoureds have been in limited supply, the whole catalogue being readily taken for Yorkshire. The attendance of every section of the trade continues very large and great activity is shown all round. In spite of a further advance in steamer freights, by which mode of transit most of the wool now being sold will reach its destination, there has as yet been no corresponding giving way in the prices paid for the staple, but rather otherwise, a decidedly firmer tone being observable as regards all descriptions when compared with values current a week ago. Should rates of freight show any further advance, or even be maintained, however, the upward tendency must naturally receive a check.

The principal lines sold at high figures consist of—Mittagong, 50 bales hoggets at 11¼d., 118 bales ewes at 10d.; WG over ➝, 26 bales from Yass, of good staple and in light condition, at 11¼d.; Burrowa over FH, 28 bales bright clean wool at 11d.; and Frankfield over EH, 16 bales from Burrowa at 11d. No special parcels of washed fleece or scoured have been offered.

Receipts for the week by rail and sea amount to 26,637 bales.

Freight.—Steamers have raised their rates one-sixteenth of a penny, the current quotation being ⅝d. for greasy and 1d. for clean, at which they are likely to remain, if not advance, owing to the small amount of steam tonnage on the berth and to arrive. By sailing vessel as yet there is no change, but as soon as the Newcastle collieries get to work an advance is looked for. Present rates are very firm, at 7-16ths and 9-16ths for greasy and clean respectively.

Our correspondent cabled on 15th November that an agreement had been arrived at between the woolbrokers and merchants with regard to farthing bids at the wool sales. The terms of the agreement are that such shall be received up to 10d., after which no less advance than a halfpenny will be permitted. It is fortunate that an amicable arrangement has been come to before the fifth series of sales come on, fixed to open on 27th November.

Respecting the fourth series of sales, which closed a day or two before the last mail left, Messrs. Atkins and Co., the well-known London merchants, report:—"The fourth series of public sales, which opened 18th September, closed yesterday. The total net quantity available was 231,000 bales, and there have been 234,500 bales catalogued, the day to day withdrawals amounting in all to 16,200 bales; and it is estimated that 10,000 are held over for future sale. Of the quantity sold about 103,000 bales have been taken for export, and to America only a few choice parcels in the grease have gone, say about 1000 bales. Opening with a good attendance of buyers whose biddings then showed considerable animation; but, unfortunately, from some heavy failures in the province, the full expected advance did not manifest itself at the outset; but as the sales progressed they took a firmer tone [illegible], and prices may now be generally quoted as ½d. to 1d. per lb. higher; but to detail them more particularly. Merinos, in the grease, good combing qualities, especially those from New Zealand, were ½d. to 1d. per lb. higher, while medium and inferior showed ½d. per lb. advance. Clothing, where of fine grades, were ½d. to fully 1d. per lb. higher, being scarce. Scoureds of the better classes were fully 1d. per lb. up, but on short and inferior only ½d. per lb. can be quoted. Super lamb showed an advance of ½d. per lb.; other descriptions were barely supported at last sale's prices. Crossbreds: The fine qualities of greasy were scarce, and on them a full ½d. per lb. higher prices was paid. Scoureds were plentiful, and closed rather better than they opened at par for the finer sorts, but the lower qualities were ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower than the July currency. Looking at the statistical position, there have been sold in London in the four series this year 1,102,000 bales, and forwarded direct 239,500 bales in all 1,341,500 bales, against in 1887 sold in London 1,022,000 bales forwarded direct 182,500, in all 1,204,500; showing an increase this year of 137,000 bales dealt with to date. Altogether, a very satisfactory clearance has been made, and the sales close at the highest currency of the series. Accounts from the provinces and abroad all read hopefully. Mills generally are well employed, and everything points to a steady market during the remainder of the year. The fifth and concluding series will open on 27th November, and from the telegraphic advices to hand there will be an increase on last year of the new clip, that now advised being 99,000 bales. There will probably be a total of 160,000 bales to deal with in that series. At a meeting of the Colonial Wool Merchants' Association it was resolved "that it is advisable to accept bids of a farthing per lb. on wools offered at public auction in London, and that the brokers be requested to make such arrangements for the sales commencing on the 27th November as will give effect to the above." The buying section of the trade have taken great exception to this, being opposed to any alteration, and in view of this contention an arrangement will have to be arrived at in order that the sales may proceed regularly and without dissatisfaction."

PRODUCE MARKET—FRIDAY.

This morning a comparatively small supply of forage, numbering five trucks, and a fairly large quantity of wood were submitted at Darling Harbour terminus. The auctions, especially that for forage, were well attended by the trade. All lots of forage were quitted under spirited competition at firm values. The demand for wood continues weak. At the wharfs moderate arrivals were received, principally from Hunter River and Southern ports. Business was active both for local and export requirements. Butter and chaff were firmer. New river potatoes receded in values. The following figures were realised at Darling Harbour sales:—

Wood.—Supplies to hand still sufficient for requirements. Market dull. Billet, 7s to 9s per ton; bundle, 8s 3d to 11s 6d; foot, 8s to 11s 3d; baker's, 8s to 10s.

Hay.—Only one truck of oaten, in bundles, forward, which realised the high value of 10s 10d per cwt.

Straw.—Two trucks received. One derrick-pressed sold at 4s 5d per cwt.; rye, in bundles, 3s 10d.

Chaff.—Consignments were limited to two trucks of straw chaff and were quitted at 6s 6d and 6s 7d per cwt.

At the wharfs the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—The market for Northern rivers' productions was excited at 4s 9d per bushel, 5s being asked.

Oats.—641 bags this afternoon from New Zealand. Yesterday's value for feeding kinds was maintained—3s 11d to 4s 2d per bushel.

Bran.—Values ranged from 1s 5d to 1s 6d per bushel.

Pollard.—Unaltered, 1s 2d to 1s 3d per bushel.

Hay.—Further supplies were received this morning from the Hunter River. A good demand still prevails. Prime well-saved green lucerne quoted from £5 10s to £6 per ton; dry summer lots, £4 10s to £5 5s.

Chaff.—A fresh Victorian shipment to hand last night. There was a strong inquiry. Firm, £10 per ton; Adelaide parcels, £11.

Onions.—Balances of previous consignments replenished by 250 bags last night from Victoria. Steady, £9 10s to £10 per ton.

Potatoes.—Increased shipments from the Hunter and Clarence Rivers caused a reduction in prices for new sorts. Quoted: £5 5s to £5 10s per ton. Old potatoes are in very limited demand. A New Zealand supply this afternoon of 744 bags. Circular Head, £7; good Ballarats, £7 10s per ton.

Butter.—Scarcity of supplies created firmer values. Factory-made, from Illawarra districts, 2s per lb.; dairy kinds, 1s 9d; intercolonial packed, 1s 2d.

Cheese.—Colonial sorts are worth 9d to 10d per lb.; choice brands, 10½d; New Zealand, 9½d.

Lard.—Finely-rendered, in bladders, still quoted 6d per lb.; bulk, from 5½d.

Eggs.—Fairly good stocks. Quiet, 1s to 1s 1d per dozen.

Poultry.—Excepting for ducks, a fair demand prevailed. Fowls, 3s to 5s per pair; ducks, 3s 3d to 4s 6d; geese, 5s 6d to 7s 6d; turkeys, 7s to 13s 6d.

Meat.—Messrs. Joseph Leeds and Co. report having sold during the week at the Government Meat Market, Darling Harbour, 40 bodies prime (Burwood) beef, from 1½d to 2½d per lb.; 65 bodies for various owners, from 1½d to 2½d per lb.; 350 carcases mutton, from 1½d to 1¾d per lb.; 125 lambs, from 4s 6d to 6s each; 50 carcases pork, from 4½d to 6d per lb. Hides.—816 were offered and 622 sold at yesterday's auctions. Competition was confined to extra good heavies, prices for these showing an advance of ¼d. Light weights were easier and rather dull of sale. Quotations: Extra heavy, 3½d to 3¾d per lb., exceptional lines realising 4¼d to 4½d; ordinary heavies, 2¾d to 3¼d; medium, 2¼d to 2¾d; light, 2½d to 3d; dry station, to 5½d. Calfskins were slack at 1s to 3s; horse hides, 3s 6d to 5s, yearlings 2s 6d to 4s 4d.

Marsupial Skins.—Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report that at their weekly auction sale yesterday the largest and best description of kangaroo skins were keenly competed for at higher figures than those current at last sale. Medium and smaller sizes were difficult to dispose of, even at low prices. Extra large-sized sold at 100s per dozen; very large, 76s to 85s; large, 55s to 75s; fair, 48s to 54s; medium, 30s to 45s; small 12s to 26s; very small 2s to 10s. Leather.—At Tuesday's sales the market was very dull. The continuance of the dry weather produces depression throughout trade, and until a favourable change takes place no improvement in prices can be looked for. MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

MACQUARIE WARD.

Alderman S. E. Lees, who is seeking re-election as one of the representatives of Macquarie Ward in the City Council, addressed a large body of the ratepayers from the balcony of the New Zealand Hotel in William-street last night. After alluding briefly to his nine years' service for the ward, and some of the various and needful reforms and improvements which he was instrumental in bringing about, he glanced at the progress made in the ward in respect of lighting and drainage, and then dealt with the water rates. When he took office originally the water rate was 5s. per room, but he used his influence in urging a reduction, which was eventually achieved, and the price fixed at 4s. per room. At a later period he had it brought down to 3s. 6d. Now the Water and Sewerage Board had control of the water schemes, and it remained to be seen how they would be dealt with by that body. The rate of 6d. in the pound assessed value was accompanied by anomalies, but it might happen after the first half-year's revenue that alterations would be effected. Speaking of the city rate, he assured the ratepayers that he would never be a party to its increase. The revenue derived from this present rate would be ample for ordinary purposes, but there were frequently demands upon it of a special and necessary character. He instanced such an undertaking as the proposal to buy a portion of the Union Bank property at the corner of Pitt-street, in order to cut off the unsightly angle existing, and regretted that the negotiations lapsed. He complained that the sources of revenue were limited, and referred to the advantages the Melbourne City Council had in respect of the revenue derived from publicans' licenses, wharfage dues, and vehicular fees, while Sydney depended alone on the 1s. 6d. rate to maintain the streets and pay the interest on the Town Hall debentures, which was a large item, something like £15,000 when the building—at a cost of a quarter of a million—was completed. He advocated the demolition of the present City Market buildings, and hoped the day was not far distant when it would be done. Having dealt with the principal matters, and given an account of his stewardship, Mr. Lees made a passing reference to the opposition brought against him, and contended that the appeal made in the interest of "new blood" was not justified so far as he was concerned. He was comparatively a young man, and challenged any one to prove any neglect of his constituents. Mr. Lees had a most attentive hearing, and was frequently applauded. He answered some questions satisfactorily, one of his answers being that he would support the election of Mayor by the ratepayers. A vote of confidence, proposed by Mr. Coyle, was unanimously carried.

MR. M'ELHONE IN FITZROY WARD.

Last night Mr. M'Elhone, M.L.A., one of the candidates for the City Council for the Fitzroy Ward, addressed a large meeting of the electors at Campbell's Hotel, William-street, Darlinghurst. The chair was taken by Mr. Cosgrove.

Mr. M'ELHONE said that he came forward with the view of opposing Alderman Poole. What had Alderman Poole done since he had been elected? (A voice: Nothing.) Let them send independent men to represent them. He had nothing to gain by being appointed an alderman, but he would support Alderman Playfair, his old friend. He was the first mayor who put his foot down, and saw that the money was spent fairly throughout each ward. He reduced the expenditure by many thousands of pounds. Other mayors had squandered the public money. He charged Alderman Riley with having a desire to impose additional taxation. Very few of those listening to him partook of Alderman Riley's festivities and picnics. (At this juncture Mr. M'Elhone threatened to "murder" someone in the crowd who threw an egg at him.) He proceeded severely to criticise Alderman Riley's conduct. Alderman Poole, too, had trampled on the working-man. If he saw a labourer resting in the midday sun he would report him. Personally, he (Mr. M'Elhone) would look after the "high game" that idled their time at the Town Hall, and would not harass the labourers. (Cheers.) He depended on the working-men. He knew they would put him in, and when returned he would look after their interests. He was not going to employ paid canvassers. He was sorry Alderman Poole had not shown his hand first, but he could reply to him another night. When he was previously in the council he courted no man's favour or affection, and he should not do so should he be returned now. He would see that the money was not squandered, but was spent properly in the ward. He would sooner represent Fitzroy Ward than he would Macquarie-street. It was said that if he were elected he would resign, but this he denied. He meant to beat Alderman Poole, so as to allow that gentleman more time to look after his business. (Laughter.) Some of the aldermen had been called "old women," but they had better have honest old women to represent them than certain men. What was there to show for the money that had been expended in the city? Some people said wooden blocks; but wooden blocks were a curse whether it was for the man who drove a carriage or for he who drove a cab over them. He had seen three horses fall down within the space of an hour. He would object to any more money being spent on wooden blocks. It had been charged against Alderman Harris that he had dismissed a large number of men; but why was this? Simply because Alderman Riley had placed a large number of labourers on the corporation roll before he left office. He would agree that no mayor should engage men without a vote of the Council. (Applause.) He had been asked who he would vote for as Mayor. Well, he would be in favour of the re-election of the present Mayor, Alderman John Harris, as he thought he would keep the expenditure within the income. This could easily be done with a little economy. He objected to extravagance. Look at the money squandered on an enormous town hall. Why most of the representatives would be more at home in a wooden hut. What the working-man wanted was one who would see that justice was done to every ratepayer. Personally, they knew that he would quarrel with every one who wanted to do a job, but the result would be in favour of the taxpayer. Look at the jobs that had been done in the council. Think of the officers that had been kept on uselessly, receiving large salaries for nothing. Remember how servants had robbed the corporation. Had Aldermen Poole and others done their duty in the council these things would never have happened. But they all knew his own temperament. They had heard of him in Parliament. They knew he would represent them honestly and fearlessly. During his 13 years of public life he had never assisted in a "job" and had never injured the working man, although he admitted he had often acted violently, and had occasionally said things which had been better left unsaid. If they wanted him as their representative in the council he was at their service, and if they did not want him, well, he would have more time to look after his own business. (Cheers.) In answer to a question he said he would not vote in Parliament for the election of the Mayor by the people.

Mr. DILLON moved, "That Mr. M'Elhone was a fit and proper person to represent the Fitzroy Ward in the City Council."

Mr. QUINLAN seconded, and the motion was carried with cheers.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor therefore feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—
1. In every case the [illegible] Government stamp affixed to [illegible]
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with two EE'S.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

TONGA, a never-failing specific for Neuralgia, commented on in a leading article in the LANCET in reference to cases tried by such eminent medical men as Sydney Ringer, M.D., William Murrell, M.D., M.R.C.P., C. Bader, Esq., Ophthalmic Surgeon to Guy's Hospital, &c., &c., testifying to the marvellous relief and unfailing success invariably afforded by TONGA in the treatment of the most severe cases of NEURALGIA.
This marvellous remedy, unlike opium and other anodynes, produces its specific action on the NERVES without giving rise to any derangement of the digestive or other organs.

FOR GENERAL USE IN PLACE OF SUGAR.
SACCHARIN.
One Pound equals about 280lb. of Cane Sugar.
One of the chief uses of SACCHARIN will be in the enrichment of the diet of those persons who are forbidden the use of sugar, and who will now be able to enjoy a sweet flavouring in the various articles of diet formerly denied them. It is particularly applicable to those suffering from diabetes, gout, rheumatism, dyspepsia, obesity, and liver complaints, or any form of disease where the use of sugar is objectionable. It cannot "create acidity," as sugar often does, since it is non-fermenting and antiseptic—characteristics of very great importance.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"—Medical Times, January 13, 1866.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is a certain cure for cholera, dysentery, diarrhœa, colic, &c.

RARE OPPORTUNITY.

VALUABLE CITY PROPERTY.

GRAND KEY CORNER,

in a most central and valuable position, with one of the best constructed Buildings in the CITY OF SYDNEY, and therefore specially recommended to the notice of CAPITALISTS, PUBLIC COMPANIES, SPECULATORS, and Others.

BOOMERANG AND WILLIAM STREETS.

THE KEY CORNER, leading to the eastern division of the city, and to the many outlying suburbs, growing in importance, and including the most fashionable portions.

COWPER WHARF,

is to be greatly enlarged by ample jetties, and so provide accommodation for extensive shipping, sure to be attracted to this coming second CIRCULAR QUAY. This development and the projected SCHEME OF CABLE TRAMWAYS, to lead from King-street to Ocean-street, will pass this corner, a stopping place of which may naturally be expected at this spot, will materially enhance the value of the situation, and it is represented to be a MAGNIFICENT CORNER for HOTEL, COFFEE PALACE, or BANK.

The main street frontage could be almost wholly let off, apart from the immense capacity of the building, which is SIX (6) FLOORS IN HEIGHT.

All the ceilings are lofty, and the structure second to none for its substantial character, having been erected regardless of cost, under the able supervision of Messrs. M'Credie Brothers.

It is now distinguished as the SUPERIOR WAREHOUSE and CABINET SHOW-ROOMS, the largest in Sydney, of and occupied by the well-known firm of JAMES LAWSON and SONS, Cabinetmakers and Upholsterers.

The Land has 73½FT. to WILLIAM-STREET, depth of 98ft. back to Smedley-lane, to which there is also a large frontage, and by it easy working of premises is carried on, aided by a lift worked with a 6-h.p. gas engine. The extensive cellars are asphalted and dry.

This property could be profitably employed for a VARIETY of needed useful PURPOSES, and is in the active part of the city.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH will sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, 30th November, at 11 o'clock,

The above.

Inspection is invited any day. (3505)

SPLENDID CITY BLOCK.

CASTLEREAGH-STREET, BETWEEN KING and MARKET STREETS.

TO MERCHANTS, THE LEGAL PROFESSION, MANUFACTURERS, and SPECULATORS.

LEASE FOR BALANCE of 21 YEARS.

44 FEET Frontage to CASTLEREAGH-STREET, with the great depth of 168 feet, abutting on HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE. Building Covenant is only £3000.

It is not often that a block of land so centrally situated in a steadily-advancing part of our active city and with such an enormous depth is available on the favourable terms of about 21 years' lease.

The position renders it so suitable for a variety of profitable uses, and there is this great advantage to many, that the large capital sum that would be required to purchase it, if offered as a FREEHOLD, is not to be sought for, while the term of lease (allowed by Act of Parliament) is sufficiently long to allow the lessee to secure a very good annual profit from the venture.

ANNUAL RENTAL remains the same throughout the term, notwithstanding the great enhancement which must attach to this position within a few years.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 30th NOVEMBER, at 11 o'clock,

The lease for about 21 years of above city land, Castlereagh-street.

The annual RENTAL is only £300 per annum, a very low estimate.

Purchasers will bid a bonus for the right to acquire this exceptionally situated block under such a favourable lease as to rent and building covenant.

Copy of lease is at our Rooms for inspection, also information about the party wall. (3563)

PICKED SPOT, SUMMER HILL.

ESTATE OF LATE W. R. PIDDINGTON, ESQ., M.L.C.

CHARMING SPOT, MOUNT VICTORIA.

NEW COTTAGE VILLA, and 73 ACRES, long known as the well-chosen position of the late proprietor, who for years had been preparing the grounds, especially the glen, by the formation, at considerable expense, of A LARGE ARTIFICIAL LAKE, which is a feature of interest in the view; yet, apart from that, the elements of practical utility and bathing delights can be enjoyed from it.

The site is one of the prettiest discoverable at THE MATCHLESS MOUNT VICTORIA, and is only an easy walk from station. It possesses a variety of surface features peculiar to the altitude of the district, and if deemed too large could be parcelled off for sale into smaller areas to suit buyers.

THE COTTAGE RESIDENCE,

commenced in the lifetime of the late proprietor, has recently been completed from plans, and under supervision of J. Horbury Hunt, Esq., architect, which will vouch for faithful construction. It has been designed for comfort, and is built of brick on stone foundation, and having large verandahs on four sides, and containing 5 rooms, kitchen, scullery, storeroom, lobby, pantry, 2 bathrooms, and large cellarage.

_ It is widely known that the late Mr. Piddington was quite enthusiastic in the good work of procuring many valuable reserves and grand look-out spots for the benefit of the public, and was rewarded with a trusteeship thereof, so that approaches and necessary surroundings might be formed to give pleasure and safety to tourists from this and distant lands.

INSPECTION STRONGLY INVITED.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH, instructed by the Trustees under the Will, will sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 30th NOVEMBER, at 11 o'clock,

GLENVIEW, SUTTON FOREST.

A favourably-situated Country House, with highly-improved Grounds and Park of 63a., on the main road, between Hillview (the Governor's country residence) and the Moss Vale railway station, distant about 1½ mile from the latter.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from R. P. Richardson, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 30th NOVEMBER, at 11 o'clock,

The above well-known country property adjoining Mount Broughton, the estate and residence of H. K. Kater, Esq.

GLENVIEW HOUSE is a commodious, substantial, remarkably well-finished brick-built residence, dry, perfectly drained, and fitted with every family convenience. The site is rising ground, surrounded and sheltered by numerous basaltic hills, and commanding views of very pleasing English-like scenery, including a vista of the Medway Rivulet Valley, extending to the trap ridges of Vine Lodge, the estate of Messrs. Badgery Brothers.

_ GLENVIEW is a well-appointed family residence and park, on the coast range, 2300ft. above sea level—the most popular and healthy district in the colony—and is also adapted, from extent and position, for a medical sanatorium or an educational establishment.

THE HOUSE has spacious tiled verandahs on three sides, and contains wide hall and passages, dining, drawing, and breakfast rooms, 7 bedrooms, kitchen with Slee's range, laundry with copper and water laid on, well-fitted butler's pantry, lavatory and bathroom with water laid on, storeroom and dairy. Detached is a neatly-designed building, with wide verandah and porch entrance, containing well-lighted billiard-room and 2 bachelors' bedrooms. THE OUT BUILDINGS comprise stable, groom's and harness room, double carriage house and large hayloft above. At the rear of these are stockyard, shelter-shed, milking-shed, calfhouse, cart and implement shed. There are also pig and fowl houses, each with separate paddock, large stable yard, calf-paddock, toolroom, hayshed, coal and wood sheds, &c. THE WATER SUPPLY is never failing in all seasons; it is stored in an underground reservoir lined with brick in cement, and in 9 iron tanks supplying bathroom, laundry, stable, &c. THE DRAINAGE is perfect, and is carried by pipes to an underground cesspit in a plantation some distance from the house. THE PARK AND GROUNDS contain upwards of 63 acres fronting 3 roads. A carriage drive with elm avenue, well laid out garden and plantations, lawns, summer house, conservatories, orchard, tennis lawn, &c., surround the house. The residue is undulating grass land with sufficient timber to form a well-arranged park. THE ACCESSIBILITY and favourable position of Glenview are features that add considerably to its value. It is surrounded by first-class highly-improved properties, and is within 15 minutes' drive or walking distance from post and telegraph offices and railway station. Churches, schools, stores, &c., are equally near.

The MELBOURNE EXPRESS calls at the Moss Vale station.

DISTRICT OF WOLLONGONG.

THE NOTED MOUNT KIERA COLLIERY, situated near Wollongong.

FOR POSITIVE SALE,

in consequence of the Proprietor, Capt. Osborne, being about to leave the colony to permanently reside in ... This valuable and extensive property consists of situated within 5¼ miles of Wollongong Harbour, and communicating therewith by a railway from the mouth of the tunnel on the mine, to the staiths on the wharf.

The working-plant, both for mining and for carrying purposes, both by land and sea, is of the most extensive and complete character, including two steam colliers built for the present proprietor.

An Inventory of the Plant may be inspected at the Rooms, where plans of the property and of the underground workings of the mine may be seen, and the fullest information obtained.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from Captain Osborne, in consequence of his leaving the colony as above stated, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, early in the ensuing year, of which due notice will be given.

The MOUNT KEIRA COLLIERY consists of 2330 ACRES of COAL LANDS, forming one block, of which 1688 ACRES are FREEHOLD and 642 ACRES are LEASEHOLD, the latter being held as follows, viz.:—

79 Acres (Castles) for a period of 25 years, from 1st September, 1886, subject to a royalty of 6d per ton—not less than £625 in any one year—no payment to be made for proportionate time lost by strikes or lockouts. This portion is about being worked.

511 Acres Government Land, at an annual rent of £51 2s 3d, and a royalty of 6d per ton; subject to Government regulations as to the employment of labour. Mining was commenced on this block in October, 1887.

52 Acres Under Roads.—Application for these portions has been made and gazetted, and Lease is expected to issue shortly, which will be subject to the usual Government regulations as to rents.

642 Acres.

Under the whole area of this extensive property there are proved to exist FIVE SEAMS of WORKABLE and PAYABLE COAL

As yet only a part of the top seam of all has been made to yield up its mineral wealth and the total area of workings on the system of bord and pillars up to the present time is estimated to be about 350 acres. The mine has been at work for about 30 years, but only within the last five years have the operations been carried on of any magnitude. The estimated average output, with its present staff of 120 hewers working one shift, is 10,000 tons a month; but with extra getters the quantity might be largely increased, and find an immediate market.

The principal tunnel is in about a mile and a-half, with two cross-cuts running to the north-east, and one due north to tap the 79 acres leasehold previously mentioned.

The railway to the shipping port meets the incline from the tunnel, and runs thence to the Shipping Staiths at Wollongong Harbour. The last three-quarters of a mile of the railway being under offer to the Government is withdrawn from this sale. The length from mouth of tunnel to staiths is 3½ miles.

All the necessary winding and hauling gear is complete, and in first-rate order, and the sea carrying on account of the mine is performed by the steamers Kurrara and Kanahooka, each of 425 tons capacity, built expressly for the proprietor by Messrs. Smit and De Mees, of Rotterdam, in the year 1883. It is estimated that the value of the working plant, without including the two steam colliers, is about £30,000, but the exact amount will be determined by valuation in the usual way.

The country is not to be surpassed for wool-growing and fattening stock.

THE BURRABOGIE SHEEP

WELL-KNOWN and TALENTED ARTIST,
W. H. RAWORTH, Esq.,
full particulars of which will shortly appear.

Speaking of Mr. Raworth's power as a most accomplished artist, a passage may be quoted from the Australasian: "His pictures are not only of a very high order of merit as mere specimens of art-craft, but they have an immense advantage over those of many other artists in being absolutely transcripts of scenery, not merely picturesque imaginings." Also the European Mail: "That there is abundance of talent in New South Wales in the art of painting seems amply verified by some interesting pictures recently received in London from the colony and executed by Mr. William Raworth. Mr. Raworth's scenes in Australia and New Zealand have reached a degree of excellence which would obtain for him a good position in this country. The subjects treated display a proficiency highly gratifying to many eminent judges," &c., &c.

A CARD.
Merchants desiring to make a trial of the merits of the world-renowned
"REMINGTON" TYPEWRITER
are informed that we are prepared to send a machine on trial to their office, together with a clerk, to give instruction in its use. As various untrue statements are being made regarding the Remington by interested parties, we respectfully ask merchants not to be misled thereby, but to make a point of trying the Remington before having an inferior machine palmed off on them.

COPYING.
We copy documents of every description quicker, neater, and cheaper than by penwork. Special quotations for large quantities of work. References to legal and commercial firms.

TUITION.
Clerks should learn this fast-selling machine. We give thorough instruction, and have obtained many appointments for pupils. No charge is made for tuition to purchasers of machines.

CORRESPONDENCE.
We copy correspondence with the Remington three times faster than is possible with the pen. Merchants can dictate their correspondence to expert operators either at our or their own office.

REPORTING.
We attend conventions, meetings, legal proceedings, &c., and take a verbatim shorthand note, which we transcribe quickly on the Typewriter.
